RECOMMENDS REFORMATION INSTEAD OF SUPPRESSION

The labor value of the penitentiary product will be determined by reference to the factor or number of the class in which that employment falls. The example given in the report is that of a stupid convict without dexterity assigned to scrubbing floors and so falling in Class 3, and an expert intelligent convict set to operate a complicated piece of machinery, this employment being classified in Class 7. The latter's share on the distribution would be slightly over twice as much as the former's. If the former's turned out to be $30 for the quarter, the latter's would be $70. The plan proposed will be simple enough to operate once the classification of employment has been completed, and the promotion of industrious, well-behaved convicts, and the reduction in grade of ill-conducted, idle ones can be readily carried out.

Educate Convicts.

The committee contends that if a fair degree of education tends to secure success for the ordinary citizen it is unreasonable that the state should allow an illiterate to continue without education during the time of his imprisonment. They are impressed with the desire of many convicts, appreciating past errors and their unfortunate results, to improve themselves during the term of their sentence that they may be the better able to take their position in society after release and in competition with their fellows make their way. The report therefore, contains suggestions for the establishment of schools in the penitentiaries, the compulsory education of illiterates, the improvement of libraries and the general knowledge of the convicts by the use of scientific books and approved newspapers and periodicals. If good health is essential to the ordinary man's success what right has the state to do anything that lessens the tone of the convicts. Recommendations are also made insisting on the standard of the cells being respected, that opportunities be given for out-door exercise and that such other means be taken as common sense dictates for the maintenance of the health of the convicts.

Recommend Tobacco.

The deprivation of convicts of tobacco has, in the opinion of the committee not a little to do with the trafficking that destroys the morale of the keeper and convict and also makes for discontent among the penitentiary population. The report recommends a regulated distribution of tobacco as the members of the committee are of the opinion that it will improve generally the regimen of the institutions and greatly increase efficiency. The committee are of the opinion that to a limited extent those of the convicts who want tobacco get it by unjustifiable methods and that it would be better by far for the state to meet the want than to have it met improperly by subterfuge.

As stated generally above the report proposes to take away from wardens of penitentiaries the power to order corporal punishment, which, if imposed under any circumstances, is to be so only on the direct instructions of the minister of justice in cases thought by him to be incorrigible. The committee thinks that a number of convicts will be found on examination by specialists to be mentally defective or mentally disturbed, and that the removal of these to mental hospitals, and the provision for the rest of adequate work, combined with the arrangements for their earning something for the support of their families or themselves after their release, will have the effect of making disciplinary difficulties practically disappear. The punishments which it is proposed that the warden can impose consist, therefore, in the forfeiture of remission of sentence for good conduct, in the imposition of fines, payable out of convicts' remuneration, and in the deprivation of privileges. Incorrigible convicts must be reported to the penitentiary board and the minister's instructions obtained for any special punishment.

Other recommendations of the committee include the alteration of the present inside hospital cells which cut off the rooms occupied by the patients from the fresh air and sunlight of outside by an intervening passage and recommend interior hospital penitentiary arrangements to conform to what is thought necessary for the ordinary institution of that character. The report deals further with the medical administration of penitentiaries through the department of health and possibly through the co-operation of the universities.

Whipping Condemned.

Criticism is found with the practice by which keepers in the penitentiary are compelled to execute judges' sentences of whipping as the committee is of the opinion that this practice tends to create hatred between the convicts and the unfortunate keeper who has to administer the punishment. Suggestions as to the administration of the ticket-of-leave act, executive clemency, and reports by the convicting judges as to the circumstances and character of the convict are also made. At present there are only about sixty women convicts in Canada, the majority being confined in a building within the ordinary penitentiary walls at Portsmouth, the remainder being at Dorchester. The report recommends a complete separation of women convicts from the environment of the male convicts by the imprisonment of the former in a separate institution with a woman warden.

Co-operation Required.

The committee are apparently of the conviction that it will be difficult to effect the advanced changes recommended unless there is co-operation on the part of all concerned in the administration and realizes that there will be those who will criticize what is suggested viewing the problem from the angle that has governed for over half a century. The report of the committee has dealt courageously with a difficult problem. The members make it abundantly clear that their task was to suggest improvement not to eulogize that of which they approve; they have, therefore, indicated where, in their opinion, changes should be made, admitting, without going into details, the merits in the present system where the same exist. If it is admitted, and who can deny it, that our present system has not brought what its founders desired—penitence and improvement—the committee have given the minister, the house and the country a new scheme, in which the committee have abiding faith, after a careful consideration of modern methods, although the report frankly admits that the experience of years, provided the suggested changes are sympathetically operated, will point the way of still further and better things.

Much Liquor Seized On the Main Ducks

Belleville, May 12.—Inspector F. J. Nappia arrived home this morning with Inspector Harry Collison and Provincial Officer A. H. Ward, after having made a big seizure of liquor on the Main Ducks in Lake Ontario, ten miles off the Prince Edward shores. The party left here at 5 a.m. yesterday in a motor launch and found thirty-two cases of Scotch whiskey and gin, one ten-gallon keg of rye and two five-gallon kegs of alcohol in a stone shack. The owner was off the island. The officers borrowed a fisherman's motor boat and brought the seizure to Picton, where it was left. No arrests were made.
