Nuptials Celebrated in Sydenham Street Methodist Church Tuesday Noon.

At half-past twelve o'clock on Tuesday, in Sydenham Street Methodist church, the marriage was solemnized of Agnes McCausland, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson, and Col. Frederick Etherington, M.D., C.M.G. Rev. Dr. W. Morgan and Rev. W. T. G. Brown officiating. The organist, Miss Shaw, played softly while the guests were taken to their places by the ushers, W. M. Nickle, M.C., Cadet Jack Richardson, W. H. Pilkey, and H. C. Baugh, the music chosen being the Swedish wedding march, "The Wings of Song" (Mendelssohn), and the Love Song from Hiawatha's wedding feast. In the latter numbers Miss Joy Higgs accompanied the organ with her violin.

The church was most artistically decorated by Earle, of Toronto, Pale pink ribbons twined with fern lined the aisle; roses and fern, tied with big bows of white ribbon, were at the guest seats; the galleries and pillars were festooned with fern and lilac, while the choir stalls were massed with lilies, lilac, ferns and golden daffodils, catching the spring sunshine.

As the strains of Wagner's inspiring Bridal March from Lohengrin filled the church, the bride entered upon the arm of her brother, James A. Richardson, a stately figure in her beautiful wedding gown of ivory georgette, the long train edged with ermine, a panel of rose point, fringed with pearls, falling to her feet; rose point was inset in the long sleeves with their touch of ermine, and more of the costly lace and soft fur were upon the georgette bodice, with its note of palest pink, repeated in the tiny rosebud catching the lace underskirt at the hem. A large hat of black Chantilly lace with a sweeping bird of paradise plume and an armful of lilies completed this charming tout ensemble.

Two small flower girls, Miss Nora McGinnis and Miss Margaret Goode (Ottawa), frocked alike in primrose tulle with hats of the same soft shade and baskets of rose leaves in their small hands, preceded the bride, and were followed by Miss Wilhelmina Gordon wearing a Victorian gown of blue tulle over silver, a hat of blue maline with touches of silver, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses and blue lilies, that matched the French blue of her frock. The bridegroom awaited his bride with Brig-Gen. Ross, C.M.G., as his groomsmen.

While the wedding party were in the vestry, Miss Joy Higgins, Belleville, played "Adoration" (Borowski) delightfully upon her violin accompanied by the organ, and as the bride and groom came out, Mendelssohn's Wedding March pealed forth from the organ.

The bride's home on University avenue, set on its smooth shaven lawn, bright with flowers, was beautiful with huge ferns, lilac and sweet scented tulips, and here in the bay window of the drawing room, Dr. and Mrs. Etherington received the good wishes of the many guests. The bride's table in the lounge dining room, with its hanging of deep blue, was lovely with its cloth of embroidered linen and filet lace, its wedding cake rising from soft white tulle, and white roses and lilies of the valley, making fragrant the air. The buffet wedding breakfast was served from the large centre table where, from primrose tulle, a tall centre of roses, lilies of the valley and yellow English primroses, with a blue bird, for luck hovering over all was the decoration. Many were the bright speeches voicing the good wishes given to Dr. and Mrs. Etherington who presently left their friends to motor to "Fetercairn," now in all the fresh beauty of springtime, where the bride of today has done so much to heal the wounds of war, in the men who came back from France, where her husband began the work of mercy.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was an opal and diamond ring, to match her wonderful opals, once the property of a French Marquis. The bridesmaid's gift was a gold wrist watch, the flower girls had gold bangles, the groomsmen a gold pencil, and the ushers silver match boxes.

Mrs. Etherington's going away dress was of blue brocade satin with touches of powder blue, her hat black faced with powder blue and she wore a magnificent Parisian cloak of black chiffon velvet, lined with blue and silver brocade, and trimmed with black fox fur.

Among the handsome gowns worn by the members of the family and out-of-town guests, were:

Mrs. H. W. Richardson, black satin and lace with a touch of blue in the black hat, and taupe fox fur.

Mrs. Sidney Jones, Toronto, brown, canton crepe and smart brown hat.

The wedding in the church was entirely private, only the guests being present. After the ceremony there was a fine reception at the bride's home on University avenue, when the guests had the opportunity of viewing the many beautiful gifts received by the bride and groom.

BALLADS OF BOHEMIAN

The war ended, Service returned to mufti, and a well-earned rest. He bought a home in France and began to study the people on intimate terms. He has frequented the Latin Quarter and the boulevards. The artistic life of Paris has fascinated him no less than the din of war, or the untrodden wastes of snow. For Service is a man of many moods and—as has been shown—his genius responds to the widest range of expression.

Reflecting this new experience comes his latest book, "Ballads of a Bohemian," published in 1921. It is an epic of France at peace no less than his "Red Cross Man" is the outstanding epic of the war. It is a panorama of life in four parts:—Spring, Early Summer, Late Summer and Winter. Before our eyes pass a swift succession of vivid pictures—of a poor poet's garret, of Jolot, the apache of Montmartre, of the cafes, the absinthe drinkers, the boulevards, of the various queer neighbors—artists, little serving girls, cocottes, grisettes—all the busy, jostling life of the Latin Quarter.

This volume is the largest thus far that he has written. It is full of humor, of pathos, of tragedy.

James Porter, Aged 81, Doing "Bit" on Farm

Although eighty-one years of age, James Porter, who lives west of Belknap, is able to do his "bit" in the fields these days, and he is very glad that he is still able to do a good day's work.

On Tuesday a Whig representative called at Mr. Porter's place and found him hard at work plowing. He is as active as many a man thirty years his junior, and says he hopes he is spared for many more years, as he loves work on the farm.
