Constance and Her Husband—"Over the Hill"—Larry Semon, Comedy King—Arbuckle Makes Good As Detective—Elaine Hammerstein a Charming Hostess—From Society Editor To Stage and Screen.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE and her husband have not yet gone into housekeeping. It seems Constance has been too busy before the movie camera, and Miss Talmadge has no intention of giving up her screen career. The fact that she is now filming a picture entitled "Woman's Place" seems to be quite in line with her belief that a screen career is not necessarily incompatible with married life. Many will undoubtedly agree that the titles of the pictures made by Constance Talmadge during the past few months are extremely appropriate. Just before she took the big matrimonial plunge she completed filming "Dangerous Business." While in the midst of "Lessons in Love" in December she hurried away with Mr. Piagiou and got married. She next produced "Wedding Bells" and now she is working in "Woman's Place."

Will John Piagiou ever go into motion pictures? The New York tobacco exporter and importer says not. He declares that he's quite satisfied to leave all the honors of his talented and charming wife, in spite of the fact that several directors have declared that he would make an ideal leading man.

"Over the Hill"

Where is the mother that has ever given a thought to the sacrifices she had made for her children? Ma Benton had slaved for hers and had seen them drift away one by one, with the exception of John, the harum-scarum, who cannot marry Isabella Strong because he cannot support her; and Charles, whose desire to become an artist has kept marriage from his mind. To his brothers and sisters John is a standing reproach. Particularly does he irritate his oldest brother, Isaac, a pillar of the church. Only his parents and his sweetheart have faith in him. To shield his father John is sent to prison and after his term is up goes West and makes good.

Falling of success in New York, Charles returns to the old home with his wife, Lucy, a selfish, designing woman. Unable to live with Isaac, Ma goes back to the house in which she reared her children—only to be turned out eventually and sent to the poorhouse by her first born. Isabella discovers John alive and wires him a plea to come home. He does so and learns of his mother's whereabouts. His next step is to send Charles and Lucy packing and then hastens to the poorhouse where he finds Ma falling fast. Back the two go to the old farm house.

"The Dollar a Year Man"

The story concerns the visit of a Prince to a California coast town, with the local yacht club appointed as host. Fearful lest Pinney, their only plebeian member, should snub their royal guest on the back, the club members lead him off on a trumped-up kidnapping plot. But the plot develops into a real one and Pinney, who is an amateur detective is given a chance to really show what he can do in the detecting line. He rescues the Prince and then joyously slaps him on the back all during the ensuing banquet.

A few days later Kirby returns home a ruined man, and the first sight he witnesses is Pell placing a valuable string of pearls around Margaret's neck. Hastily jumping at conclusions Kirby attempts suicide by taking poison. He is frustrated, but the poison has entered his system and he becomes a physical wreck. Upon the reports of the loss of the Kirby's money their social friends desert them, and it devolves upon Margaret to become the breadwinner of the family. How she does this and keeps the pathetic results of their actual status concealed from John Kirby is said to constitute a most appealing story.

"Poor Dear Margaret Kirby" Margaret Kirby is the wife of John Kirby, a man of considerable means. One of her admirers is Rutherford Pell, also a wealthy man. One day, through force of financial reverse, John Kirby is pressed for ready cash. He asks Margaret to negotiate a loan from Pell. She indignantly refuses.

Elaine Hammerstein is particularly happily cast in the title role which gives her every opportunity to demonstrate her emotional power. Jacquelin Logan—less than a year ago society editor on a country daily, but today—at the age of eighteen—a recognized success of both screen and stage. "Jacky" found less difficulty getting into the "Follies" when she invaded New York than she did leaving that organization to play the role of "Angela" in the revival of "Floradora." Her first cinema appearance was in the leading female role opposite Monte Blue in "The Perfect Crime." She has but recently completed the lead opposite Thomas Meighan, in "White And Unmarried."

TREASURE TROVE

Wetmore: The house I've rented for the last ten years was sold and I had to move. Dryden: Tough luck, huh? Wetmore: Not altogether. In digging out my old accumulation of truck I found a quart bottle half full of hooch that I'd put away and clean forgotten.

SMILES

LATE IN THE GAME
"Dorothy came near being an old maid."
"Yes, she won her husband in the last half of the ninth inning."

THE GROAN OF A BENEDICT
Mrs. Brown: Faint heart never won fair lady.
Brown: No; faint heart knew his business and dodged the high cost of living.

NOT DAMAGED GOODS
She: Everything he sells smells of smoke.
He: Fire-sale merchant, I suppose?
She: Dear, no—dealer in bacon and hams.

SOUL MATES
Scare Crow: Well of all the nerve—those birds are spooning right under my nose!

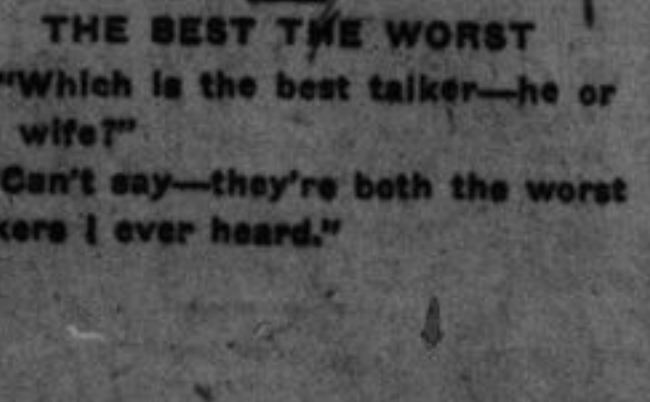

NOW HE CAN'T
She: You used to have better success selling poems before you married.
He: Yes, I—I wrote humorous poems then.

DANGEROUS
"I'd like to have you meet my husband."
"Why, trying to get rid of him?"

QUICKEST AND BEST
"When you want to reach a girl's heart what line do you take?"
"I've found the belt-line the best."

THE BEST THE WORST
"Which is the best talker—he or his wife?"
"Can't say—they're both the worst talkers I ever heard."

A DOPE FIEND
Deacon Bug: Well, well, there's that bee in an oplum den again!

NOT CONTENTED ON TOP
"Queer chap that—always happier when at the bottom."
"Who is he?"
"The well-digger."

AN AWFUL THREAT
Turtle: All right, if you don't pay an increase in fare I'll dive.

ONLY A FLOW OF TALK
"Did he open anything sparkling when you called at the house?"
"Opened a sparkling conversation, that's all."

AND NOBODY HEARD IT
"Did she ever tell her age?"
"If she ever did, it must have been when she was talking to herself."

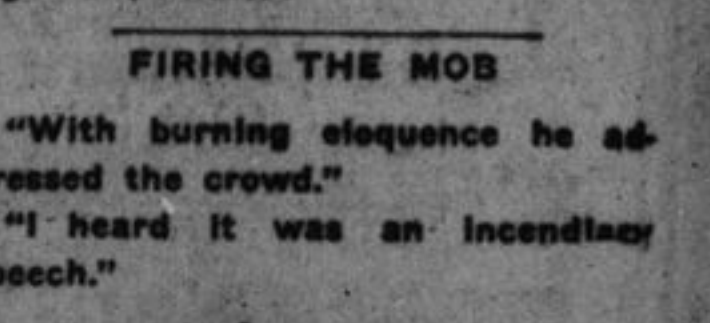

THAT SETTLES HIM
He: I think I was cut out for a baseball player.
She: Well, I'll tell you right now you've been cut out by one.

ADAGE REVERSED
"I thought she was an angel, but found she was only human."
"Too true to be good, perhaps."

THE FIEND
Old Gent: Have you hurt that boy? Why does he draw everybody's attention?
Boy: 'Cause he can't draw my cigarette, mister!

FIRING THE MOB
"With burning eloquence he addressed the crowd."
"I heard it was an incendiary speech."

HEART IS MORE EXPOSED
He: Women's hearts seem to be getting colder every day.
She: It's the way they dress I guess.

MADE TO TALK
"Dat banje she do say er let f meh!"
"Hit do!"
"Yes, sah; dat nigger Joe kin make hit talk!"

At Christie's Lake. Christie's Lake, May 14.—The farmers are through sheeling. The prospects never were better for a bumper crop. Morley White is busy with improvements to his cottage. He has built a wing to one and added a verandah to another. Tom Marks received a car load of lumber this week for his new cottage. Mr. Whitot has just finished painting his cottage. R. W. Marks is building a dancing pavilion at his hotel, Red Cedar Inn. Alford Price, General Manager of the C. P. R. and C. J. Humphrey, superintendent C. P. R., spent Monday at the lake. May Bell Marks is in New York securing plays and wardrobe for the coming season. She reports dramatic business quiet down there. Herbert Blair has a large gang of men the past month on the big rock cut on the C. P. R.

Shortly after the dawn of Thursday an old resident of Smith's Falls, in the person of Mrs. Clara Griffith, departed this life. She had been ailing for a number of weeks, suffering from troubles incident to old age, for she was in her eightieth year.

Pembroke will ask the Underwriters' Association to remove the insurance surcharge in that town.

Lots of married men believe that if there was a fool killer they would have been carried into church in a long casket instead of being lugged into church by a bride.
