REV. PROF. W. G. JORDAN

A Sketch and Appreciation Written by a Former Student.

W. M. Kamawin in the Presbyterian Witness.

One of the most pleasant and interesting parts of the programme at the recent closing exercises of Queen's theological college was the unveiling of a portrait of Professor W. G. Jordan, D.D., and the presentation of the same to the board of management of the college. The portrait, which is the work of E. Wylie Grier of Toronto, is an excellent one, and is the gift of the graduates and students of Queen's theological college. It was unveiled and presented by the President of the Alumni Association, and received by G. M. Macdonnell, K.C., chairman of the board of management, both of whom spoke in fitting terms of the great service rendered by Dr. Jordan to the college, the church and the country.

Professor Jordan was born in the town of Whitby on the east coast of England. He received his early education in the National Schools of his native town and afterwards attended Alredale College, Bradford. He received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from London University and a few years later became a graduate in Theology of the Presbyterian College, London. He entered the ministry when quite young and preached for a number of years in England. For some time he was in the town of Dudley in Worcestershire, and then his attention turned to Canada.

In the year 1889 he came to this country and spent several months in Montreal. When not otherwise engaged he attended lectures and pursued postgraduate studies in the Presbyterian theological college. In the spring of 1890 Dr. Jordan entered upon a happy and successful pastorate of more than nine years in St. Andrew's, Strathroy. The writer, who for a number of years was minister in Strathroy, knows the esteem and affection in which Dr. Jordan is still held, not only by the Presbyterians, but by all the residents of that town and the surrounding country. Not only was he recognized as a preacher of unusual ability, but he was also a faithful pastor and a kind and sympathetic friend to all who needed his counsel and help. Nor did he confine his attention exclusively to the work of his congregation.

As a member of the Presbytery of Sarnia he took an active part in the larger work of the church, and thus became well acquainted with the country and its needs. This was no unimportant part of his training for the position he was afterwards to fill. Before he had been many years in Canada his scholarly attainments and literary ability began to attract the attention of more than his congregation, and he became a frequent contributor to the Canada Presbyterian.

In the year 1898 Principal Grant of Queen's University, who was looking for a suitable man to succeed Professor Mowat in the chair of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis, had his attention directed to the brilliant occupation of the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church, Strathroy. This resulted in an invitation to give a special course of lectures on the Prophecies of Israel to the students in theology and the members of the alumni conference. The following year this invitation was repeated, and these lectures were so well received that he was unanimously chosen for the above mentioned chair in Theology. Queen's University conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity in April, 1899, in recognition of his ability and service to the church, and in October of that year Kingston Presbytery inducted him into the chair of Hebrew and Old Testament Exegesis. Thus he has just completed his twenty-second session as professor in Queen's.

The students who have had the privilege of attending his classes have carried away with them not only the information which he imparted, but, what is far better, the inspiration of his strong and sympathetic personality. While not underestimating the value of a good training in what the modern world calls practical, he has held tenaciously to the conviction that the best equipment for the Christian minister is a thorough education in literature and philosophy. The General Assembly has always had Professor Jordan to reckon with when there was any mention of dropping Hebrew from the list of compulsory subjects on the theological curriculum.

But not only those who actually sat in his classes have had the benefit of his wide and accurate scholarship. He has contributed to the bookshelves of Bible students some cherished volumes. Shortly after he entered Queen's he published "Prophectic Ideas and Ideals." Since then the following books have come from his pen: "The Philippian Gospel," "Biblical Criticism and Modern Thought," "A Commentary on Deuteronomy," "The Soul and the Soil," "Religion in Song." And one of his very best productions is an article on "The History of Hebrew Religion" in Peake's One Volume Commentary. It is sincerely hoped that he may be spared to complete another volume on which he is now at work, which will give to the world the benefit of his ripe experience and more recent research.

Besides writing these books he has been a frequent contributor to such periodicals as The American Journal of Theology, The Biblical World, Queen's Quarterly, and our own church papers. No articles have been more eagerly read or more highly appreciated. And those who have attended the annual meetings of Queen's Theological Alumni Association have always come away feeling that no man has contributed more to make the conference a success. For two successive years he held the chancellor's lectureship.

From time to time his services have been sought by other seats of learning to which he has gone and given special courses of lectures in his chosen field. For this purpose he has visited Westminster Hall, Vancouver; the Theological College, Saskatoon; Georgetown, Texas, and other places. And everywhere he goes he is recognized not only as a scholarly lecturer and graceful writer, but as a man of wide general culture.

But it is in the pulpit that he is at his best. His many years of study and his intense devotion to the pursuit of truth have deepened his conviction that in the Christian religion the individual and the world will find a solution for every perplexing problem. It is this deep conviction, kindled with enthusiasm and emotion, that drives his message home to the hearts of his hearers. No professor is more willing to help his fellow ministers, and his services have always been highly appreciated by other colleges as a special preacher on special occasions.

His one hobby is pictures. He is passionately fond of a real work of art, and through the years he has succeeded in gathering a very fine collection. When not in his study or classroom you are likely to find him in his own or some other drawing room, or in a studio, admiring a beautiful painting. This has been a very profitable pastime, and has helped to keep him in living touch with the best minds in this and other lands.

On the walls of old convocation hall hang the portraits of those who have done most to make Queen's University a great uplifting force in the life of this young country, and among these portraits, this picture of Professor Jordan finds a fitting place.

Christian Science and Well-Being. John C. Lathrop, of Brookline, Mass., Member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass., will deliver a lecture on Christian Science in the Church Edifice, 95 Johnson Street, tonight, at 8:15 o'clock.

There is no collection or admission fee.

You and your friends are cordially invited to attend.

Prices Are Down.

$32.00 one year ago just bought one bag of potatoes and one bag of sugar. To-day $32.00 will buy one bag of potatoes, one bag of sugar, and 32 other articles. Crawford's Grocery has made a big sensation by proving the above facts in a window display of the goods. One glance at Crawford's window will prove this statement.

Hear the English Evangelist in Bethel church tonight. Give his testimony to the saving power of God. It's thrilling.

A Heavier Fine For Automobile Speeders

The price of foodstuffs is taking a drop, but the fines for auto speeders are being increased.

It has been usual for "joy riders," or, in other words, car drivers who exceed the speed limits, to be fined $3 and costs. Now the fine is $5 and costs. Five drivers who pleaded guilty were touched for this amount by Magistrate Farrell on Friday morning.
