PRODUCING A NEWSPAPER

P. D. Ross, Ottawa Journal, Tells Fascinating Story to Rotarians.

Ottawa Journal. P. D. Ross delivered a highly interesting address on the subject of "The Inside of a Newspaper" at the luncheon of the Rotary Club of Ottawa, in the Chateau Laurier. In his talk, Mr. Ross referred to criticisms of the daily newspapers and various characteristics of the press of Canada. As past president of the Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association, he spoke of his personal knowledge of newspaper proprietors and editors, pointing out that the 104 daily newspapers of Canada were in the control of men who had grown up with the newspapers or who had been employed by those who had so grown with their papers. Therefore, any talk that the daily press of Canada was controlled by outside interests was without foundation. It had often been said that newspapers were controlled by capital, labor or other interests, but this was not so. To editors was given the privilege of conducting their newspapers as they would lead lives of good, strong men.

Newspapers on this continent were sometimes accused of being too sensational, inaccurate and partisan. Mr. Ross asserted that it would be folly for a Canadian or American newspaper to follow the example of leading English newspapers, because in Canada particularly, a newspaper must be broad in its appeal. The clientele was comparatively restricted in this country, and the paper must be of general interest and entertaining rather than instructive. People from overseas were inclined to criticize Canadian papers because they did not appear to be dignified, but Canadian papers must be such that they would interest Mr. Smith in the plug hat, the corner butcher, and the clerk in the grocer's. In Great Britain, almost any type of a newspaper secured support because there were the various classes of people to whom the paper would appeal.

News passed through six different hands before it reached the public in printed form. There was first, the informant from whom the reporter secured the information. The reporter wrote what was told to him, and the copy was passed over to the editor or copyholder, who almost invariably had to cut it down because of the constant problem of having too much news for the amount of available space. The editor wrote the heading and it was passed to the composing room, where it was set up by the linotype operator. The proof was then read and corrected by the proofreader, and it was sent back to the operator who, probably, would have to make changes which involved the resetting of the type lines. Thus, he might make a further mistake in correcting the first one. The makeup man might also make a mistake in placing the matter in the forms. Thus, it might be seen, there were at least six possibilities of a mistake in handling the one news item. There were between 1,000 and 3,000 statements of fact in every edition of a daily newspaper, and there was the equivalent of 30,000 lines of type in a daily edition. Finally, there were probably a quarter of a million chances for inaccuracy, all told, in an ordinary edition of a daily newspaper. Yet, people would exclaim that a newspaper was very inaccurate. It was a wonder that there were not more mistakes than were to be found.

Newspapers had been accused of being partisan but, Mr. Ross believed, politics were not being taken quite so seriously as formerly. There were more political groups and editors were not so inclined at present to consider politics above accuracy. The aim of the present-day newspaper was to give justice to every person to be fair in publishing reports. It was not the object of any newspaper to try to do harm to any person or enterprise. Mr. Ross declared that he did not know of any newspaper in Canada that was controlled by an advertiser, a political organization or other outside interests. He knew many Canadian newspapers personally and he had knowledge of many others indirectly, and he believed that they were all men of integrity and with honest motives.

Mr. Ross told of his start as a newspaperman. He obtained a position as a reporter at $5 a week, and his employer had advised him that the kind of stories he wanted in his newspaper was the kind that a person would read out loud to his next-door neighbor. This, in a word, was the real policy for Canadian newspapers. They could not hope to cater to a selected class. They must publish news and other features of general interest rather than information in its literal sense.

China to Have Large Mint. One of the largest mints in the world, with a possible daily output of 500,000 silver dollars, is to be erected at Shanghai, China, at a cost of about $2,000,000, under the direction of an American expert. When completed, in about two years, it will absorb some 14 tons of silver a day in its task of establishing a standardized currency in China, where the present unit of value, the Mexican dollar, competes with as many varieties of coin as there are provinces. The Chinese tael, now used for reckoning, is not a coin at all, but a measure of silver, the value of which varies in different parts of the country.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

THE MAN ON WATCH

When so little is made of Victoria day in Kingston, why should Robert J. Bushell worry because the civic flags did not appear until Frontenac's dinner hour?

When newspapers refer to "the church," the Lampman takes it that "the Christian Church" is meant. So those who think it is "the other fellow" who is getting a rap have another think coming.

Failing to observe Victoria day feels to the older generation like dispensing with Christmas.

The passing of the old steamer America from our midst takes away another old friend of our youth. Hughie Nickle can tell you all about the tight races the America (then the Maud) used to have with the Gildersleeve steamer Hero.

If you want to see a real clean cow stable, take a trip out to Rockwood asylum, alongside the golf course. It is certainly a convenient place for the golfers to visit when they put the ball over the fence at milking time.

Not only is the cigarette to be attacked, but horrors! some reformers threaten to take the names of those who go out on Sunday and play golf.

If the Kiwanians and Rotarians wish to create a real sensation let them stage a free baseball game on a nice Sunday afternoon on the cricket field.

Monday is not a blue day for some ministers of the gospel, who sally forth bright and early and look cheerful.

Painting a house with a hose may be considered crude, but the latest stunt is to clean the carpet by means of a garden hose.

Over in Watertown, N. Y., the male dancing fans are angry because the police will not allow them to trip the light fantastic with girls with their coats and vests off. This condition does not exist in Kingston. No gentleman would think of dancing with a lady in a public hall without a coat.

"Joe" Hawkey might make a trip to Rensselaer county, N. Y., and secure tips as to how to conduct a jail where poker is played by the prisoners, and the inmates are taken on trips by the sheriff. Fancy our good sheriff taking some of Joe's boys on a fishing trip!

The statement was made from a city pulpit last Sabbath that there is no military aristocracy in Canada. Well, it is not so long ago since it reared its head. Kingston had more than its share of it in not very distant days.

THE TOWE WATCHMAN.

VERONA IS RECOVERING.

From the Effects of the Fire of Last Week.

Verona, May 26.—The effect of the fire is not lasting long and the village will be built up better than ever. L. W. Vannest, who sustained a total loss, is going ahead with the erection of a new brick dwelling and furniture store. E. L. Amey who also suffered great loss, has the foundation laid for a new three storey building comprising store and dwelling. S. Switzer will also probably build soon.

Sines Sampson came and opened up his house for Mr Switzer's use until he builds. William Clow is now living in part of Ross Bertram's house. C. W. Leadly is getting his store in shape again with considerable difficulty, having suffered quite a loss in stuff being roughly handled and miscarried.

Rev. Dr. Lawson and C. W. Leadly attended district meeting one day last week. Rev. Dr. Lawson and Rev. Mr. Stafford, Sydenham, exchanged pulpits last Sunday. Dr. and Mrs. Lawson were present at the burial of the former's niece, who died at Bath. The Ladies' Aid have postponed the bazaar which was to have been held this week.

There was quite a large number of people here on Sunday reviewing the ruins and on account of the heavy wind burning embers had to be kept well in hand.

Milton Jeffrey is the largest poultry-raiser in this district with some three hundred chickens already hatched.

Master Percy Lakins and Master Alfred Pepper, who have been on the sick list, are improving, also Mrs. D. Snyder, who was taken out of her sick bed at the time of the fire. Mr. Seord is having a well drilled and equipped with a force pump. E. A. Tallen is erecting a large new addition to their dwelling to accommodate travellers. Mrs. A. Wells, who underwent an operation last week is improving. T. H. Craig left for the west last week.

YOUNG WOMAN MINISTER.

She Believes in Short Prayers and Holds to Her Belief.

The youngest minister in Illinois believes in brevity of prayer. And "it" is a woman.

Rev. Norman Brown, twenty-one years old, pastor of the Christian church at Carlock, Ill., recently startled the legislature by delivering the shortest invocation on record—less than 150 words.

"I always make my invocations brief," explained the girl preacher. Senator Simon E. Lantz, a member of Miss Brown's congregation, added that she is more energetic in her work among her flock than most male

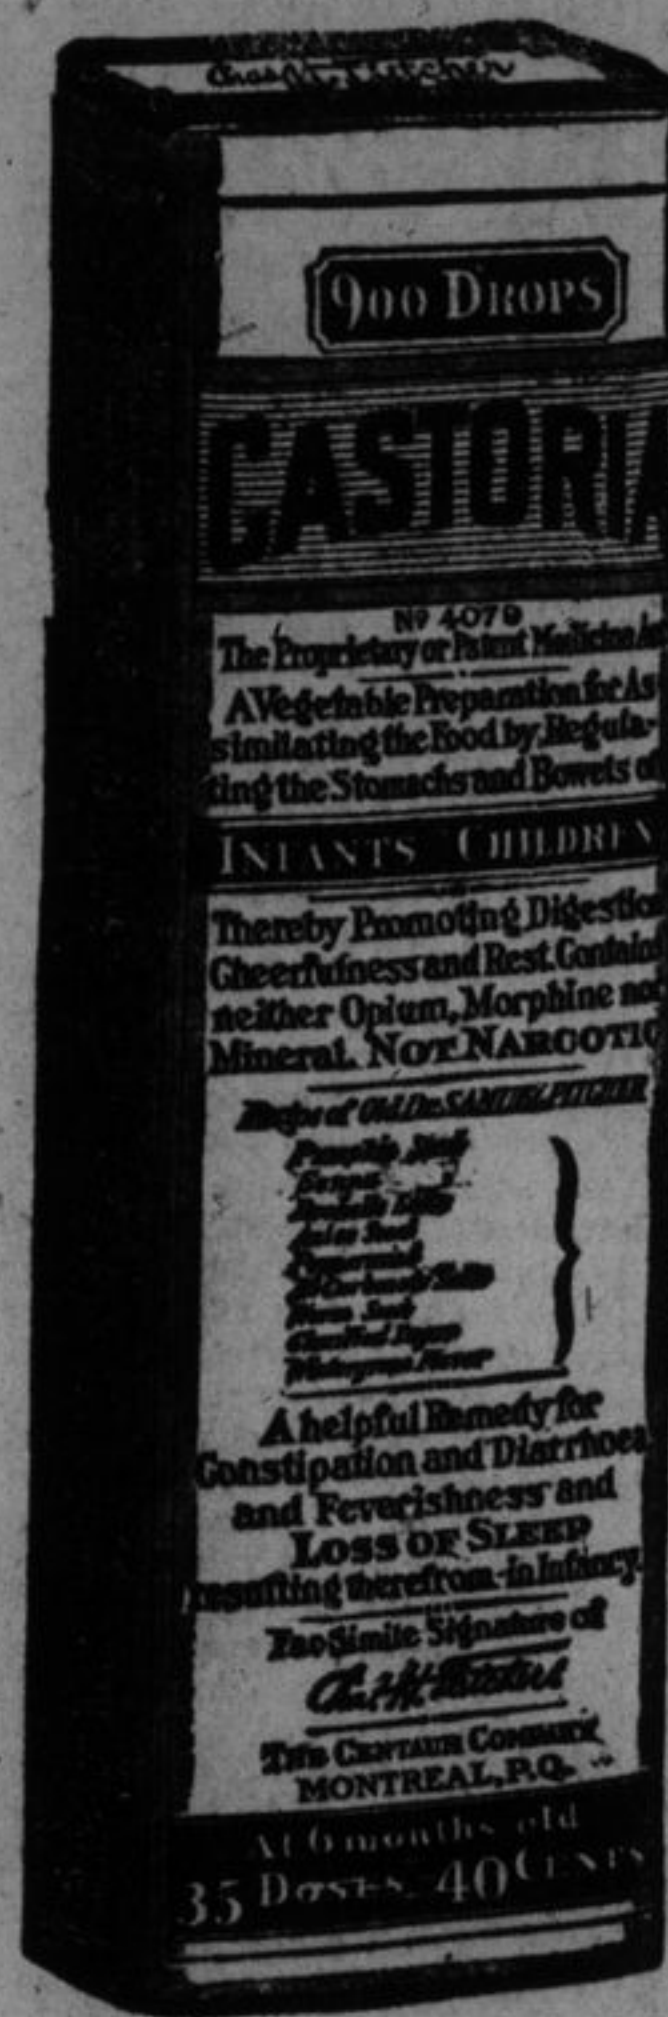

False Claims.

WE hope there is no Mother who thinks she can treat her sick baby without calling in a Physician, or with remedies that she uses for herself.

Most Mothers know that Baby requires remedies especially prepared for babies, yet there are some who think that what is good enough for them is good enough for Baby, and it is to these Mothers we appeal to give nothing to their babies that is not specially prepared for babies or recommended by their Physician.

False claims may kill, but false claims can never restore your child.

For over thirty years Fletcher's Castoria has been aiding in the reduction of the deaths among infants as Mothers have become more and more acquainted with it. Always keep it in the house.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

The Safety of Mutual Insurance

THERE is no safer investment than life insurance.

If the Mutual Life of Canada were to stop selling life insurance and just continued in force the policies now on the books, the resources of the Company would not only pay all claims as they occurred, but there would remain a splendid surplus to be distributed in the form of dividends.

As a proof of the safety of Mutual Life Insurance, let us see how the immense assets of the Company are invested.

Government Bonds.....	$7,721,631.55
City Debentures.....	3,504,151.94

Among all these millions, there are no speculative securities. Safety First, Last and All The Time is the motto of the Mutual Life of Canada.

As an additional precaution, the investments are widely distributed in every province in Canada and in a variety of sound, safe securities.

Working on this careful system has resulted in the unusual and highly desirable combination of well-secured principal with a high interest-earning rate.

The prudent, conservative business man will find in the Mutual's system of investing its funds a very strong reason for the purchase of Mutual Life Insurance.

Have you a Mutual Life Policy among your assets?
