THREE SCORE YEARS BUT GLAD OF A CHANCE Workers Are Created at the Canadian Blind Institute.

Can you run a straight seam on a sewing machine with your eyes shut? You can walk downstairs in the dark. With practise you could do many other things without light. If you want proof call with us for a moment at the industrial department for women of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

It is a fine day you'll find the place flooded with spring sunshine from south, north and west windows. In a breeze from off the lake horse chestnut buds print sticky kisses on the window panes and when the west wind blows elm tree branches sweep caressingly towards the wall.

In that big upper room power machines stitching, hemming and trimming four hundred and eighty nightgowns a day hum like swarming bees.

The workers at the wheels are blind, though they have the same kind of machines as used in other whitewear factories with shafts revolving at the same high speed.

Sixty—But she learned. None of these workers ever touched a power machine before this industrial department for women was opened by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in December of 1918.

Two years ago many of them had never stitched on even an ordinary sewing machine.

There is an old lady of sixty among the sightless seamstresses. It is four years since she became blinded. A husband's care guided her through the first two years of darkness, then death took that help away.

In ordinary factories managers want the workers "young and nifty." In less than two years' time this woman of advanced years has controlled her nervousness, sensibllized her fingers, and overcome the tremendous handicap of blindness. She is a pieceworker on a power machine, earns a good wage, and does fine work that no young girl could surpass.

Help the Canadian National Institute for the Blind by sending your contribution into the Whig Office.

Cattle Prices Are Tumbling and Consumers Should Soon Feel Benefit.

Crop conditions in the Kingston district are reported to be splendid. Everything except hay gives promise of a bumper harvest. Grains of all kinds are heavy, and are expected to mature early as the season is just two weeks in advance of any previous year. The early fruits, now flooding the market, are an indication of this. Strawberries in quantities have been looked for before July 1st, but already first prices have been slashed and a reduction of fifty per cent, has taken place in two days.

Wheat, oats, barley, and in fact all grains will yield heavy, while roots are also well advanced. The farmers feel that they will be fully compensated for a light hay crop resulting from the open winter that killed out many meadows.

As to prices there have been rapid declines. Cattle are quoted in Montreal at one and a quarter cents on the hoof. While this seems a ridiculously low price compared to fresh beef, it is beginning to be felt on the counters of the butchers, and in another week the effects of the slump in cattle will be fully realized by the consumers.

Hogs are also low, and when the lambs appear on the markets no fancy prices are expected. The real reason for this is attributed to industrial and unemployment conditions. The workman and his family have always been the heaviest consumers of meats, and when the workman is not working he does not feel the demand for meat, consequently the market falling off in consumption is quickly felt at the abattoirs. A recovery in prices is not expected.

AYKROYD STRUCK LUCK

He Has Found Oil and It is Said To Be A Fine Shooter.

A former Kingston boy, Fred W. Aykroyd, now in the west, and who but three years ago purchased 640 acres of land in Alberta, has struck luck. It appears that the title to his land carried the mineral rights, and while engaged in digging a well he encountered oil which is reported as one of the most important yields in the Wainwright district. His land is just three miles from the town of Wainwright and the following account of oil discoveries there appears in an Edmonton paper:

Oil discoveries at Wainwright, Alta., may lead to the development of this district into one of the great oil producing areas on the North American continent, according to information forwarded to The Tribune today.

The first discovery was made three weeks ago and was attributed immediately to a leaking oil tank. Since then, however, oil has been found in four wells, ranging in depth from 16 feet to 35 feet, and ending in a streak of sand. Many believe the oil has seeped through the sand owing to the pressure of gas which, it is supposed, has escaped from one of the wells at Battle River, near Irma, and entered the oil-bearing sands.

In No. 1 Gratton well, south-east of Irma, three showings of oil are indicated in the log of the well published by the federal department of mines. The first oil was found at 300 feet. Over this was about 70 feet of gray shale, and under the shale, 42 feet of gray sand.

The next oil was found at a depth of 1,215, in a thick layer of gray shale, and a heavy gas pressure was tapped at 1,670 feet. Owing to drilling trouble, this hole was abandoned, and No. 2 well started, which was drilled to about 2,000 feet, when a gas pressure of 680 pounds was tapped. This well has been tapped for more than a year.

The oil at the Gratton well is of a high grade. The oil in the Wainwright wells is of a very light amber shade. Since the first oil find at Wainwright, the Edmonton land office has reported that more than 5,000 acres of land have been leased near Wainwright by residents of the district.

The Times, of Irma, declares that it believes the district will be one of the greatest oil producing areas in America. All that is needed, it says, is a few energetic companies to do the developing work, and from present indications, it will not be long before such companies are engaged actively in production.

TENDERS ARE ASKED FOR QUEEN'S RINK

Builders have been asked to tender for the Queen's University new skating rink. The University authorities are hoping to erect the building this season and have it ready for December, if the cost is not too high. The rink was to have been built last year, but the steel could not be delivered in time.
