"TECHNICAL EDUCATION"

Was the Theme of Prof. L. W. Gill's Address Before Kiwanis Club.

Prof. L. W. Gill, Ottawa, director of technical education, department of labor, Ottawa, was the special speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club in the Hotel Frontenac on Monday. His subject was "The Education of The Adolescent in Kingston and The Application of The Ontario Adolescent Act Here," and his appeal for support of the scheme which is designed to fit every boy and girl for some useful vocation in life made a profound impression. He gave some startling figures taken from reports on the high schools and collegiate institute in Kingston which show that out of an annual crop of 320 children between the ages of seven and nine years not more than ninety per cent. complete the elementary education; not over forty per cent. reach the collegiate institute; only twelve per cent. finish the third year and but three per cent. matriculate.

Noble Steacy presided and there was a record attendance of the members. President Noble performed the office of chairman in the most approved manner. When it came to the roll call, he was not sparing with fines as the following list shows: George Gillespie, Noble Steacy, S. Hill, E. Ryan, A. Hughes, Jim Sowards, R. J. Bushell, H. Davis, Elmer Davis, Stewart Robertson, Howard Dick, W. J. Keeley, H. W. Newman, G. Van Horne, J. L. Austin and W. R. Givens. Much amusement was created by the fines imposed upon Messrs. Bushell, Newman, Austin and Givens who simply stumbled into trouble. The silent host was put on by Billy Moore, of W. J. Moore & Sons, general rubber goods and auto accessories. Mr. Moore showed great generosity for, besides providing appropriate prizes, he presented to each member a bronze pocket cigar cutter. The winners were H. F. Hughes, Reg. Crawford, F. R. Anglin, E. Ryan, H. Wilson, Dr. Austin, W. K. Macnee, the last named receiving a valuable automobile tire. In introducing Mr. Moore, Kiwanian Givens paid high tribute to his many amiable qualities and referring to the firm spoke highly of the reputation earned for workmanship and business integrity. It opened business in 1907 and now represents the best repair plant in Canada. In concluding Mr. Givens said: "He is a worthy son of a worthy father." T. H. Sargent introduced Mr. Givens whose humorous address created much amusement proving him to be a pastmaster as an after dinner speaker, but he is perhaps the first one to put a valuation on his own words.

Prof. Gill was warmly received by his old friends and acquaintances and the earnestness with which he spoke on a most serious topic created a deep impression. "We ought to have more addresses of this kind," said several hearers after the luncheon. Prof. Gill has made a study of his subject and he states what everyone knows to be true.

In opening Prof. Gill said that there were distinct differences of opinion on the subject of education. Some people think we have too much education, and others that we should not have any education at all. "But," said he, "we have to deal with things as they are and conditions as they are." He gave notable examples of successful Canadians that were not educated. Others contend that all that is necessary is the public school and that every man should educate himself. It is true that every man should continue his education during life. Whether our system should be extended beyond the present limitations depends upon the point of view held by people.

Education really means nothing less than fitting a girl or boy for life's work, so to train them that they will fit into society as it is now. We must remember that a child of nature represents just so much raw material, but it is more valuable than any other asset. Do we treat it as we do other natural material in order to bring it to a condition of usefulness? "We do not," was his answer and, in order to show the neglect of training the young for life he compared the great care and enormous expense and labor put into the manufacture of steel. And yet, as compared with any material asset the young life of the country was invaluable.

Referring particularly to Kingston, Prof. Gill gave the following interesting figures that enable one to judge the value of education as carried out here at home. The situation is just the same in all other parts of Ontario he said. The annual crop of children aged seven, eight and nine years in Kingston is 320. Of this number three hundred reach the junior third form in the city high schools; 279 reach senior third; 219 reach junior fourth; 200 reach senior fourth; 150 reach the collegiate; 18 pass the third year; 20 take matriculation, 1 being full matriculation and nineteen but partial, making a total of forty. Taking a maximum of 200 children registered we have the following results: 180 complete the high school; and 150 enter the collegiate. Not over ninety per cent. complete elementary school course, nor over forty per cent. get to the collegiate. Only twelve and a half per cent. finish the third year, and three per cent. matriculate. "What happens to the rest?" asked Prof. Gill. His answer was "So far as education is concerned they are lost and left to drift: into life and paddle their own course as best they can." And this occurs at the most critical time in the life of the individual. Is it any wonder that some, or many, land in the scrap heap. Compare this situation with the care that enters into the production of steel and see what a vast difference there is.

But what are the essentials in education, and why should these children that are allowed to drift not be given the opportunity the same as the university? The universities of Canada are now practically all state institutions and why should the state spend all its money to benefit those who are the best equipped, and neglect from forty to sixty per cent. that are left to drift? There is not equal opportunity for everybody; only one track and all must take the same training such as provided at the collegiate and university. Prof. Gill strongly advocated the course adopted by the government in the retraining of soldiers. There, it was recognized that men had to be fitted for what they were best adapted and desired, and the soldiers got what they asked for. Vocational education is to provide the opportunity for children of all grades and give them equal opportunity which does not exist now. In the past the universities were maintained for intellectual culture, there was no vocational or occupational motive, but now seventy-five per cent. of the energy and expense is devoted to training for vocation. Surely if the state is to provide training for the doctor or lawyer it should provide training for the plumber and electrician. There are three essentials: First, training of the body; second, training of the mind, and third, training of the spirit. The last or spiritual training shall include the spirit of relationship to others, to employer, to the community and to the nation. We train the boy, and we train the mind or rather the memory by loading it up with facts or information but without training the reasoning power as it should be trained. The man who makes a success is the one who can apply his mind to matters of fact with precision. The training of the spirit must have regard to the spirit that should be applied toward work, the employer, government, community, and society generally. "No training in craftsmanship would have prevented the Winnipeg strike," said Prof. Gill. "We must endeavor to eliminate selfishness."

Taking up the question of the cost of education the speaker showed that it was small compared to what was spent annually in this country and the United States in luxury and other forms of self-indulgence. Last year twenty-two billions was spent on luxuries and one billion on necessities. "In the city of Ottawa he estimated that $100,000 per year was expended on pleasure riding in automobiles. Then there were other forms of useless expenditure such as moving picture shows. Our taxes are not nearly so high as in Britain where technical schools are already in operation and we should be able to carry out this programme which marks a big step forward for the rising generations.

A very hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Prof. Gill by President Noble at the conclusion of his address which was warmly applauded. Major-Gen. Sir Archibald Macdonell paid a high tribute to Lieut. S. C. Cutbush, for eight years the physical director at the Royal Military College, who returns to England in July and upon his return takes over duty with the Lower Canada College, Montreal. Kiwanian Macdonell expressed regret at the loss of an officer whose work was of a high order always.

H. W. Newman announced that on Wednesday the following teams would represent the club at the matches on Queen's Bowling laws: W. Linton, Eddie Walsh, W. R. Givens, H. W. Newman, skip. J. Asselstine, G. Van Horne, W. Jackson, E. Green, skip.

Founder of Bethel Church. After the regular service, Sunday evening, the congregation of Bethel church passed a resolution of condolence to be entered on the minutes of the church and a copy to be sent to the family of the late E. W. Robertson. The resolution expressed sympathy for the bereaved family and recounted the active part taken by the late Mr. Robertson in the founding of the church and his later connection with it. The congregation had lost a valued worker in the passing of Mr. Robertson.

Almost a Runaway. There came near being a runaway on Ontario street on Monday afternoon. A team of horses attached to a grain wagon had been left standing on the street when suddenly the animals took a notion to get away. They started off and were about to make things lively when a young man succeeded in jumping on the wagon, and, taking the lines, succeeded in bringing the horses to a standstill. Had the horses managed to continue on their mad career serious damage would have resulted.

Bathing House Popular. The George Richardson memorial bathing house at Macdonald Park is very popular. Large numbers of swimmers are there every afternoon and evening.

A Bowling Tournament. The executive of Queen's Bowling Club is arranging for a tournament on the green on Dominion day. It is hoped that some outside rinks will compete.
