WILLIAMS

NEW SCALE

THE enduring Tone quality for which the Williams New Scale Piano is noted, is due to its flawless design and construction. We are proud of the fact also that the Williams is a true "Canadian-made" instrument which holds its own in comparison with any pianos produced in the world. Many great Artists give it unstinted praise. Discriminating people who purchased a Williams instrument many years ago affirm that its pure, resonant tone is as good today after years of use, as it was when purchased.

Select a Williams for your home. It will give you life-long pleasure and its true musical quality will prove a constant inspiration.

"WITS" OF HISTORY

By Mark Stuyvesant.

That Douglas Jerrold, the great English dramatist, satirist, and one of the greatest of English wits, started life as a sailor, was evidenced in his bearing even late in life. Jerrold's father was the manager of a theatre, but it was the sea which first fired the boy. Yet it is interesting that when Jerrold was only 15 he wrote a comedy which later was produced and started him on his stage career.

In London, Jerrold's lean little figure was familiar to many persons. His features were strongly marked and expressive from his thin humorous lips to the keen blue eyes which gleamed beneath his shaggy eyebrows, and lighted up with every jest. But far more familiar to all English and much of America were the witty things Jerrold said. He was kind-hearted, but he did not permit anything to stand in the way of the witty expression which seemed to fit the instant.

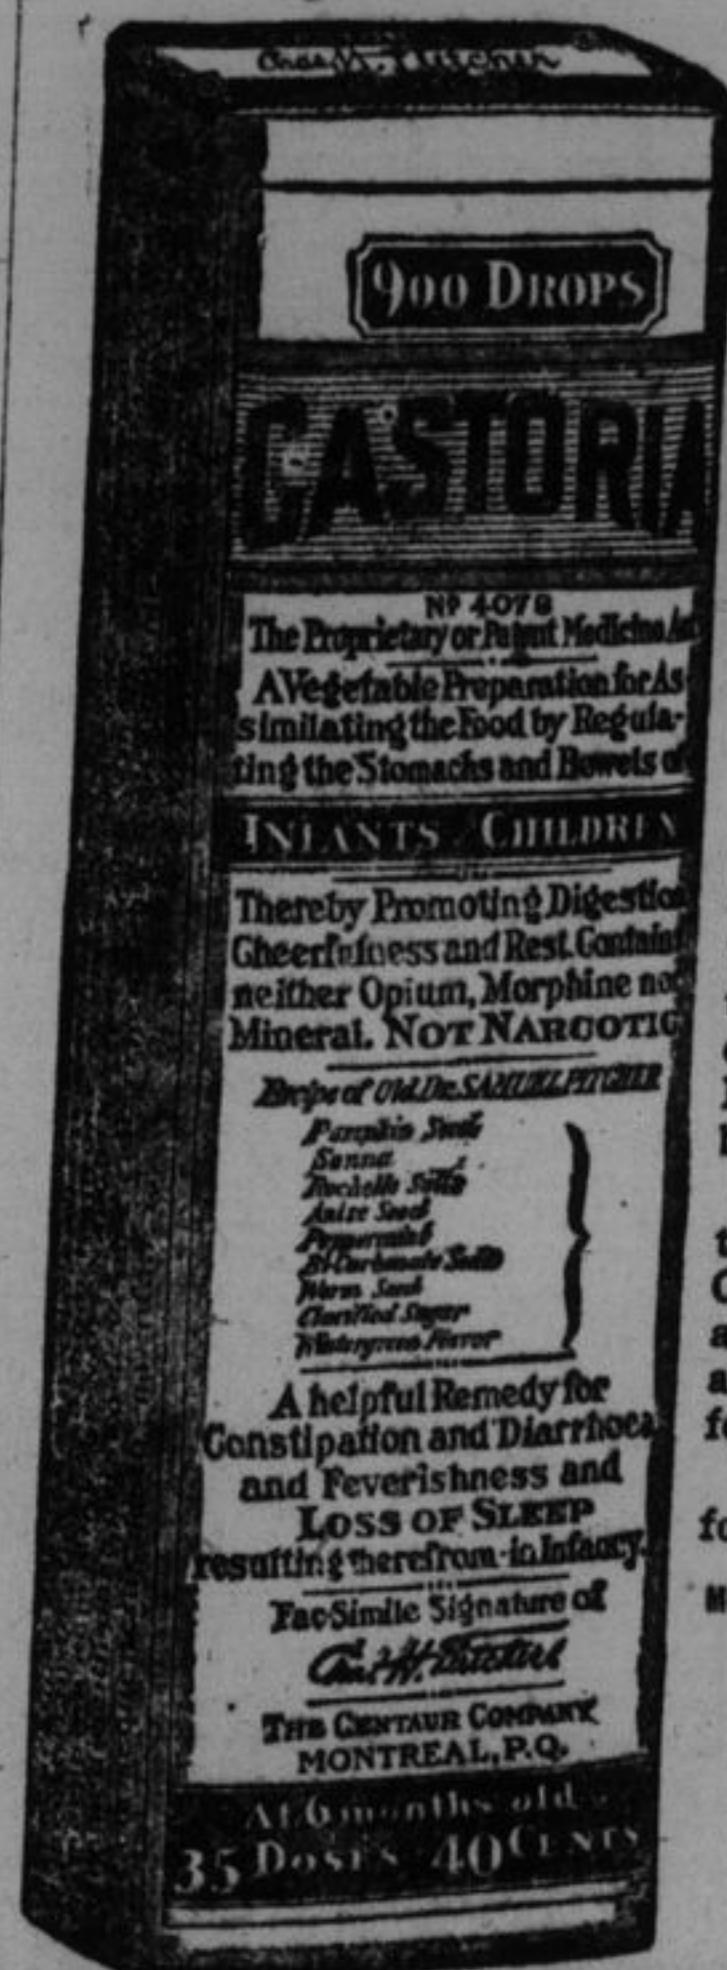

A literary friend of Jerrold's thought to bring himself into closer intimacy with the witty writer. This friend, however, was only a writer of comic things. Yet he did not hesitate to say to Jerrold:

"We row in the same boat, you know." "True, my good fellow," Jerrold replied. "We do row in the same boat, but with very different skulls." One day Jerrold found himself at a place where he was forced by courtesy to listen to the conversation of a pessimistic old woman. Everything Jerrold tried to praise she pointed out some fault in. Her manner also, was gloomy and depressing. As soon as Jerrold could he fled from the house.

"Hang it!" Jerrold cried to a

Rinso

Rinso can be used with cold water as well as with warm. Rinso is as harmless as pure water itself. Try this easy way of washing next Monday.

At Night—Soak the clothes in the rich Rinso suds.
Morning—Rinse them in either warm or cold water—that's all! They're ready for the line—clean and fresh.

If you have a washing machine—Soak the clothes overnight in the usual Rinso way. The cleansing will loosen every bit of dirt. In the morning operate the machine for a few minutes and the clothes are perfectly clean—even the most soiled spots.

friend of his. "She wouldn't allow there was a bright side to the moon." Jerrold's advice to a very young man who longed to see himself in print is remembered by many for its wisdom as well as its wit. "Be advised by me, young man. Don't take down the shutters before there is something in the window."

The sentimentality of Jerrold's day exasperated him as well as amused him at times. One day when Jerrold and some of his literary friends were walking in the sentimental observations of a young poet. Jerrold could stand it no longer when the poet with a rapt face pointed to an ass's foal who was playing in a field, and said: "Oh, how I should like to send that wee thing to my mother!" "Do!" Jerrold burst out. "And tie a piece of paper around its neck, bearing this motto: 'When this you see, remember me!'"

An equally witty but far shorter rebuke was that which Jerrold administered to a very tiresome gentleman of his acquaintance. This man waylaid Jerrold, and seemed determined to spend some time in talking with him. He began by saying: "Well, Jerrold, what is going on today?" Jerrold gave him one look. "I am!" said Jerrold, and hurried away, to the consternation of a man.
