KINGSTON ROTARY CLUB CAN MAKE FAIR LIVING

Rotarian Harry Breathwaite Gave Instructive Address on Pianos.

The members of the Kingston Rotary Club, at their noonday luncheon, in their quarters at the British-American hotel, on Thursday, had the pleasure of listening to a most instructive address from a Rotarian Harry Breathwaite, who dealt with the manufacture of pianos, giving the members all the details in the make-up of a piano from the very start to the finished product.

The speaker, in his introductory remarks, pointed out that all the advancement made in the manufacture of pianos had been brought about within one hundred years. It was of interest to know that in Canada there were turned out 30,000 pianos annually. These figures, of course, had to do with "normal" times. Another interesting fact given by the speaker was that there were 7,000 different parts of a piano. Particular mention was made of the scale, which must be uniform in tone and quality. It did not matter how much work was put on a piano, unless the scale was right, all the work would be in vain.

The speaker also told about the making of the plate pattern, a very delicate part of the manufacture, as allowance had to be made for shrinkage.

Rotarian Breathwaite's address was very much appreciated by the members and at the close, on motion of Rotarian Roy Ward and Harry Miller, he was tendered a hearty vote of thanks.

Rotarian M. S. Grace, who ably presided at the luncheon, stated that he hoped other members of the club would fall in line and give the club an address. The members of the club followed up their vote of thanks to the special speaker of the day by singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

As per usual, a number of fines were imposed on members who will persist in violating club rules and regulations, and Rotarian Harry Pense, who officiated in the absence of Rotarian Matt Graham, sergeant-at-arms, made several tours around the table, and did not return empty-handed.

The singing of the Rotary songs was good. It certainly takes more than warm weather to keep down the Rotary spirit. The luncheon, served in the club's new quarters, was an excellent one, reflecting great credit on the management of the British-American hotel, while the service was splendid. All the members were delighted with the menu and the service.

Warren Spencer, manager of Woolworth's store, at Orillia, Ont., was a guest at the luncheon, and was introduced by President "Joe" Stewart.

Were Royally Entertained.
The C.P.R. officials who took the trip to Picton on Wednesday were splendidly entertained by the mayor and citizens of Picton. After being given a most delightful tour through Prince Edward county, Mayor Fred Newman gave them a fine dinner at the Royal Hotel. The mayor and citizens were certainly very cordial and hospitable during the visit.

When Not Able to Carry on at the Trade He is Accused To.

"We do not consider that the workmen in Kingston are at all bad off," said two members of the building trades to a Whig representative on Thursday, and added, "All our lives we have been unable to keep employed more than eight months of the year, but knowing that we worked and planned so as to tide over the remaining four months and grab something as soon as we possibly could. This talk of panic because two or three plants in Kingston are closed is absolute rot because the men who were employed are just as capable as any of us in finding something useful to do. It is all in the attitude of the individual and it is unfortunate that so many people are looking to the city and other organizations to do what any man should do for himself."

"It does not follow that because men are out of work for a few months that things are going to the dogs for this has been a permanent condition in the building trades in Canada. We were equal to the occasion and we left nothing undone to find something to turn our hand to in the emergency. There is something that each man has got to do for himself and a condition like the present shows what stuff he is made of."

"But there are men in Kingston who are enterprising. Many of them have taken jobs of every sort. One man, an expert carpenter, is driving a truck another in a cartage business, and there is no end to legitimate avenues of profitable employment if the individual has it in him."

Auto Hit Bread Wagon; No Person Was Injured

The corner of University avenue and Princess street was the scene of another collision Thursday evening. About six o'clock a Ford runabout, coming up Princess street, and making a short turn at the corner, collided with E. Culcheth's bread wagon, which was standing on the west side of the road. When the wagon was struck, the horse became frightened and started down the avenue, but was stopped before it had gone many blocks. The car had the fender smashed and the axle bent, as it went up onto the boulevard. The collision made quite a crash and summoned a large crowd to the street. Fortunately nobody was hurt. Mr. Culcheth was delivering bread at the time.

To the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Gladys Ranson, the bride, who looked charming in a gown of white satin trimmed with pearls and veil of filmy net caught with orange blossoms, entered with her father. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served, after which the happy couple motored to Kingston, and left on the 3.45 G.T.R. train for Toronto, Winnipeg and other western points.
