WILLARD IS STILL

Ray Archer, His Former Manager, Says So-Some Inside News.

Ray Archer is running one of those windy palaces, full of trick doors, sades Park, New York.

He used to have a champion of the world until Jess Willard decided he could manage himself.

Since then he has slipped away from the boxing game until he is just

Archer didn't allow Willard's breakaway to interfere with their friendship, and he is still on close terms with the Kansas giant.

Willard has been writing him for a year telling him he wants to come back. The big fellow never has lost the opinion that he could win the title back if he got the chance.

His chance rests with Tex Rick-

Archer says the big fellow can get n shape if he wants to, but he isn't sure that he wants to now.

"Willard is sore now," he says. 'He had his heart set on getting pointment was such when the match fell through that he got into a sort of dispair. He worked hard for a whole year. Very few knew about it. When he was making inspection trips over his oil wells he would ride out alone in the buckboard and when he got to the side roads he would jump out and run for miles behind the horses. He knew it was the failure to get enough road work a: Toledo that was his greatest mistake.

Although $40,000 does not appear to be such a fabulous amount after the half million dollar purse of the recent Carpentier-Dempsey battle, it is the largest sum ever paid a bantamweight for a battle in this or any other country.

BASEBALL GAME AT EASTVIEW.

"Henpecks" Defeat the Park Nine by

8-4 Score. A very exciting game of baseball took place on Thursday evening at Eastview between the Married Men called the "Henpecks" and the Single Men called the "Park Nine," which ended in a score of eight to four in favor of the "Henpecks." The Park Nine were good on the run, as they have often had to run from the old man, but the Dads were there with the club and after years of practice they found they could hit a ball as well as other things, and if some of them had less weight to carry around the bases, the score might have been larger. The Park Nine hope to have week. The dipper was passed among the spectators, but the collection was smaller than the expenses. Harry Breathwaite acted as' umpire, and handled a difficult job satisfactorily. The "Henpecks" were minus their star performer, "Phil" Burke, who was attending a meeting at Ottawa.

Purchase's Real "Comeback." A successful "comeback" after two years' absence from the race course was staged by Purchase, a five-yearold of the Rancocas stable. The racer, which broke down in the fall of. 1919 while training for a prospective match with J. K. L. Ross' Sir Barton in Maryland, won the six-furlong Katonah Handicap in 1.09 1-5, one and two-fifth seconds slower than the course record.

Australian Golfer

The young Australian golfer, J. H. Kirkwood, is something of a wizard with the ball and clubs besides being a first class golfer in the ordinary way. His tricks include driving the ball off the face of a watch without touching the glass. He can raise the ball from the ground with his niblick and catch it in its fall without changing his stance. He has driven a ball from under a man's boot toe. He has at times placed a ball near the lip of the hole and ten others at intervals behind it; then beginning with the tenth ball he lofts bination of "Larruping Del" and the them one after the other over the stymie and into the hole. He began a reader of the sport pages, and an we would think at least an extra mo- his golfing career as a caddie and at ment before edging in upon the grass the age of sixteen was appointed professional at Brisbane.
