Leather Currency. Hungry announces an issue of currency to be printed on leather. Pigskin is the chosen material which is said to be almost impossible to counterfeit. The ordinary way to determine the genuineness of pigskin is to note the presence of the tiny rectangular clusters of three small holes where the bristles grew through the skin. Yet manufacturers, by the use of electrolytic dies, with an impression taken from genuine pigskin have been able to produce a very deceptive article.

A Generous Spirit. At a Chamber of Commerce dinner a speaker dwelt at great length upon the suffering people of China. He suggested that all present should give something for them. A small dry goods merchant arose and said: "You have made for me a feeling already that something should be given. I move that we give three cheers for China."—Eve'ybody.

The Reason. "Well, what do you think of my acting?" asked an amateur player of a truthful but diplomatic member of the audience. "I can say this," replied the spectator, frankly. "I have a friend who I am confident would have given $500 to have heard you."

"Who is he?" asked the embryo Henry Ainley, highly pleased. "Well, you wouldn't know him. But he's as deaf as a post."

A Thorough Job. In the cook's absence the young mistress of the house undertook with the help of an inexperienced waitress to get the Sunday luncheon. The flurried maid, who had been struggling in the kitchen with a coffee-machine which refused to work, confessed that she had forgotten to wash the lettuce. "Well, never mind, Marie, said the considerate mistress. "Go on with the coffee and I'll do it. Where do you keep the soap?"
