HON. MACKENZIE KING'S ADDRESS AT PICTON

The Liberal Leader Criticizes Government's Railway and Marine Policy.

Picton, Aug. 2.—Prince Edward county people crowded the armories here last night to hear the first time Hon. Mackenzie King. The Liberal leader was given a splendid reception. His speech was really a review of the four addresses he delivered in western and central Ontario. Lucien Pacaud, French-Canadian member from Megantic, Quebec, accompanied the Liberal leader and won the huge audience with his address.

H. B. Bristol, a veteran Picton Liberal, presided, and among others on the platform were Hon. Nelson Parliament; W. V. Pettit, ex-M.P.; Dr. Morley Currie, ex-M.P., and H. H. Horsey, Liberal candidate for the next federal election.

Mr. Bristol took the opportunity to put in a nutshell the effect of a high protective tariff on the articles used in everyday life. He showed where exchange, tariff and the further protection passed last session kept cotton away up in price. The Canadian manufacturer took full advantage of it and maintained his prices at the high level.

Much in Common With Farmers. Mr. Horsey said he had much in common with the Farmers' party, particularly those who favored broadening out to include all people, except the autocrats and profiteers. The common aim of the forces of progress was to bring about the defeat of the Meighen government.

Hon. Nelson Parliament said because of his position as speaker in the legislature he would refrain from talking partisan politics. He did, however, express his belief in a lower tariff.

Mr. Pacaud said the first task to Canadians was plain. "Let us clear the decks for action. Let us open a new chapter in national history by putting in a new government fresh from the people with a clear mandate. The most Tory government of Canadian history is barricaded in the old home of Toryism, afraid of the storm, unable to drum up enough courage to face the people."

Mrs. Thomas Woods, president of the Prince Edward Women's Liberal Association, presented Mr. King with an address expressing confidence in his leadership.

Government Has No Mandate.

Mr. King praised the Liberals for choosing such a candidate as Mr. Horsey. Mr. King repeated that Canada is being governed by a government which had received no mandate or authority. He did not believe in coalitions, because in Canada they had always finished up as Tory administrations. The present coalition was no exception. Mr. King pointed out that Canada was the only country of the Empire which had not had an election since the war. Every province had had an election, and the "Tories are all gone except on Parliament Hill."

"I hope you won't divide the forces of progress in Prince Edward," said Mr. King. "The only hope Mr. Meighen has to divide the Liberals and the Progressives. If you can bring together in common understanding all the forces of progress—Farmers, Labor, Soldiers and others—the Meighen government will be overwhelmingly defeated."

Mr. King declared again emphatically that the Liberals were not advocating free trade—free trade was not possible in Canada—but what the Liberals did advocate, was a tariff for the people and not for a favored few. Tariff for revenue was as much the Liberal policy to-day as it had been in the time of Laurier. The cost of living must be lowered, and the big interests made to pay their full share. The government policy itself was an admission of being controlled by powerful outsiders. The same thing was indicated in the railway problem, which, Mr. King said, every Canadian should study.

Autocracy of Government.

The worst feature about the railways was that the Government would give no information regarding the expenditure of public money making up the deficits. The people's representatives could get no information at all, which was another indication of the autocracy of the Government. He declared again that the intention of the Government was to restore the railroads to its old friends, who were part of the interests dictating to it what it should be.

He also went into some criticism of the merchant marine, saying they could have been bought for outright.

In conclusion he said history would repeat itself. In the Napoleonic wars the people had triumphed against autocracy; Britain had its examples; and the people would soon triumph in Canada.

Police to Attend.

Chief of Police Robinson has arranged for all the members of the police force, with the exception of two, to attend the funeral on Wednesday afternoon, of the late Sergt. James Bateson. The two members will have to be kept on duty to answer any calls that might come into the station while the funeral is taking place.

Picton and the Sand Banks.

Sir. St. Lawrence makes this popular trip on Wednesday, leaving ferry dock at 10 a.m. Fare 75c.

A second big fire visited St. Mary's, Ont., on Monday. Three tons of flax were destroyed with a loss of $35,000.

THE MARTELLO TOWERS RECEIVING ATTENTION

Much Needed Repairs Are Being Made by the Militia Department.

Murray tower in Macdonald park is being repaired under the direction of the militia department. The stone work has for some years been in need of repair, and this summer the department has seen its way clear to do the much-needed repair work. The masonry is being pointed, and later on the roof will have to be repaired. The harbor tower in front of the city hall is also to be repaired, as some of the stones have dropped out, due to lack of attention. The Historical Society hope to make these old historical buildings points of interest in the years to come. It is thought that the buildings will be placed at the disposal of the Historical Society, members of which are pleased to see the repairs being made.
