INDUSTRIAL WEEKLY REVIEW KINGSTON

Why the look like the gloomiest morning that ever happened after the worst night before? Oh, water-works in the house on the hummer. Just look up Davie & Barrett, 203 Wellington street, phone 688. There's where you'll get a job that will make you smile again.

If we just had a little dressed lumber with the slightest bit of fancy machining on it, we could have an extra cupboard right over there which would hold a lot of things that are in the way now. Here we are, Hooper & Slater, all kinds of lumber for anything from a box to a house.

Had to walk to work this morning. Two flat tires and didn't have the time or the inclination to fix them. Guess I'll drop around and have Suddary's look after them. I got good satisfaction there the last time.

The motor-boat is a little under the weather and we have that picnic all planned for Sunday. Absolutely must make an impression on the wife's classy relatives, too. I'll ring up the Davis Dry Dock and have it put in shape.

This rod is just as good as new except for that one break. Seems a shame to sink all that money in a new one. I've heard the Thos. Bishop does good welding so I think I'll drop around there and save myself some money.

Gosh, she's a little chilly this morning. Reminds me there is only about half ton of coal down cellar, also. Jane, remind me to go down to Swift's some time to-day for some coal.

Yes, sir, there's one thing never goes back on a man and is always the best of friends and companions and that's his pipe. The better the pipe the more fun the man has and the greater enjoyment. There is nothing that can touch a Dunhill. Each Dunhill is a treasure in itself. People come from near and far to get them. Oh, yes, they are sold in Kingston. I got mine at Baker's Cigar Store.

Growl, growl, growl. Big head, pile of work ahead at the office, hair as long as a horse's mane, beard worse than that and things generally on the hummer. Frank Robbs smiles when he sees you come into his barber shop on Wellington street because he knows just how to take that tired feeling away and put some pep into you once more.

How many motorists waste dollars and dollars of good money each year by throwing away batteries which do not answer when called upon. They don't work, therefore they must be dead. When the milk is out of the jug, do you throw away the jug? When you've taken a drink from your tea-cup, do you throw it in the garbage can? Same thing with batteries. They may be re-charged or repaired. Go and see your battery man, the Kingston Battery Service, Phone 410W.

EMPLOYERS! ATTENTION! Advertisers wishing to employ men may use this column every Saturday for the purpose free of charge until further notice. In an effort to help out in every possible way the industrial slackness at the present time, the Whig has decided to offer the use of this column for those who have employment to give. If you can give any man work, even for a day or two, send in your name and address to the Industrial Editor on Wednesday or Thursday of each week. Note: This does not include advertisements for domestic help, stock salesmen, commission agents, etc. All notices subject to our approval.

LEST WE FORGET. That old scrap iron, metals of all kinds, rags, paper and such stuff has an actual money value that sometimes runs pretty high, therefore this little reminder that Max Rosen is buying all that sort of stuff and paying good prices for it. One does not notice how stuff gathers in odd corners of the house until an inventory is taken. Look around and you may be able to clean up a little and make some money at the same time. Max Rosen's card is near the bottom of the page.

There is a scarcity of gold all the world over, and though this gold famine is chiefly attributable to the war, it is a fact that the world's gold production had begun to fall off some years before the war. The output of the pin factories of Britain amounts to over a million millions of pins a year—a figure which would in ten years cover every town in the kingdom with a layer of pins several inches deep. A blind man states that he can tell most shops by their distinctive scents, and that each street has its own particular echo or sound when the pavement is tapped with a light cane.

All the best men have been best because they possessed "Ideals." Ambition to merit praise fortifies our virtue.

Words That Help

There are two little words, "if" and "but," that are called a great many unfair names at times. "If" is often held up as the symbol of uncertainty and indecision, and "but me no buts" is a stock phrase.

But—these are times when those two little words are cheerful voices inspiring hope, casting bright reflections backward from the future, nerving some man nearly down and out to get up and go on.

No doubt industrial affairs are in pretty bad shape just now the world over. No doubt Kingston is feeling the pinch along with the rest of the world.

But—cheer up, Kingston is more fortunate than most towns and it can't last forever.

But—Queen's rink is to be built this fall and that will help out considerably.

But—twenty-five of the unemployed men were given work tearing down the old knitting mill on King street west this week.

But—some of the younger fellows have gone off to the west to get work which will tide them over until things brighten.

But—there are many men working on the new wing at the General Hospital, while other cities have no such lifts to help them.

There are half a dozen cheerful little "buts" to start away with.

If—the Locomotive Works should start up before winter things would be pretty good.

If—many boats come in to be repaired at the shipyard, things will be a little better.

If—the Queen's University and General Hospital central heating plant is started this fall it will be a great big help.

If—it rains a little more crops will be bumper ones and prices therefore lower and we'll all be able to see the Big Fair.

If—some of the people in town would only loosen up and get their money working instead of jumping over buddies to pick up straws, then Kingston would grow faster, although it is going ahead without them if they do not.

If—you just dig up the odd smile every ten minutes you'll find that hard luck isn't half as bad as it looks. We've all had more or less of it and a gain is one of the best helps going.

Some sandstones will bend like pieces of india rubber. If a moderately thin piece of sandstone is supported only at its ends, it will sag in the middle; while if a piece is supported in the middle, the two ends will drop.

Truth is a mighty instrument, whatsoever hand may wield it.
