INDUSTRIAL WEEKLY REVIEW KINGSTON

ODD GLANCES HERE AND THERE

Work has started on Queen's new rink. Another big lift for our local unemployment situation. It is said that one local firm is employing youngsters from twelve to sixteen years old ostensibly to "pull out nails" from old lumber, with other work incidentally, while many married men with families are at work on the streets.

Also, without knocking building activities at Queen's, has every man employed at Queen's Stadium this summer been a married man or a man with dependents? Has every man there who is not married needed the work as much as many who are and have no work? Some labor men still remain who cannot be convinced that their wages must drop to a certain mark if they wish normal conditions to return again. A great many want the other fellow to bear the whole burden.

Then, too, there are some employers of that type too miserable to live, who take advantage of the scarcity of work to become veritable slave-drivers. To these we would only say, be careful. Irony; that condition of affairs when a gang of men are working busily in front of the Ontario Government employment office where forty or fifty men are lined up waiting for work.

Kingstonians will talk of hard times with over a dozen fruit and confectionery stores in half a dozen blocks of the main street; with ten tobacco shops in the same space; ten restaurants in the downtown area, exclusive of hotels; ten savings banks doing a flourishing business. Truly, this world is funny at times and it seems that "Unto him that hath shall be given."

"At any rate, it cannot last forever," said one of the unemployed on the street this morning. That's the spirit that makes hard times a lot easier. Take a run down McGinnis & O'Connor's highway in your car. Feels like a million dollars.

Cheer up, everybody, it's a long time till winter yet and don't forget to do your Christmas shopping early.

O, city fathers of next year, when ye come into council to discuss paving, consider the lot of West and

About Memorials

In the old days the pen was mightier than the sword but now the typewriter is greater than the machine gun.

Albert street is almost paved. It provided employment for a gang of men anyway.

Some work might be done on the boulevard on Kensington avenue. Seeing that it was paved to make a "regular" avenue, the job might as well be finished up. Perhaps some of the goodhearted residents with a little pride in their surroundings may take pity on the earth in that plot this fall and remove the weeds.

EMPLOYERS' ATTENTION!

Advertisers wishing to employ men may use this column every Saturday for the purpose free of charge until further notice. In an effort to help out in every possible way the Industrial Slackness at the present time, the Whig has decided to offer the use of this column for those who have employment to give. If you can give any man work, even for a day or two, send in your name and address to the Industrial Editor on Wednesday or Thursday of each week. Note: This does not include advertisements for domestic help, stock salesmen, commission agents, etc. All notices subject to our approval.

"Belfast" is Popular All the Year Round

According to the observations of the manager of the Thompson Bottling Works, soft drinks are fast becoming an all-year-round favorite. Like ice-cream, soft drinks were formerly looked upon as a summer article, but they have now become established as popular beverages during the entire year.

One of the principal reasons why the public is taking to soft drinks is the improvement made in their manufacture. The soft drink of a few years ago was a much inferior product to that of today. With the coming of prohibition more attention has been paid to these beverages and today they are the chief liquid refreshment of the nation.

"Belfast" Ginger Ale, the product of the Thompson Bottling Works, has taken front rank among the soft drinks of this city and vicinity. It is an absolutely pure beverage which can be drunk with enjoyment and benefit by old and young alike.

When Do We Eat?

Have you noticed how the Prince of Wales restaurant's menu has been changing with the seasons? The manager of this popular eating place does not claim to be a medical dietitian but he is certainly giving first aid to some Kingston digestions. This restaurant is always clean as a new pin, with attractive dishes on the list and prices always a little less than fair. It is gradually becoming known as the place where one gets the best coffee obtainable, and this, along with many other distinctive facts is making it the favorite rendezvous of discriminating lunchers downtown.
