Figures From Cost of Living Report of Federal Department of Labor Show Local Prices Compare Very Favorably With Averages For Dominton.

How does the cost of living in Kingston compare with that of other cities in Canada? That is a question which has sometimes brought about a great deal of discussion, and which it has sometimes been difficult to answer. It is possible, however, by means of an exhaustive and complete table published in the Labor Gazette, to find out exactly where the city stands in regard to the cost of foods, fuel, rent and other commodities in this city as compared with the rest of the province of Ontario, and with the whole dominion. These figures, taken from the latest issue of the Gazette, prove to be very interesting, and show that, on the whole, the cost of living is slightly below the average for either the province of Ontario or the rest of Canada. In this article is given the complete set of comparisons, embracing practically all of the necessities of life, starting with meats of various kinds,, and finishing up with house rents. These figures are the official figures published by the department of labor, and as such may be looked upon as authentia.

Meats of Various Kinds,

In the price of meats of all kinds, the Kingston figure is in nearly every case below the average for the rest of Ontario and for the whole dominion. In fact, there is only one exception to this, that being in the price of breakfast bacon, the Kingston price for this being slightly above the average for Ontario, but under the average for the dominion. The following is the list of meat prices, the unit in each case being one ds		Kingston	Deminion	Ontario Average.

Fresh and Canned Fish.

The Kingston price for fish also compares very favorable with that for other parts of the dominion. Taking once again the average for Ontario and the whole of Canada, the price in this city is higher in but one or two instances, and the difference in these cases is very slight. The following table speaks for itself. The price in each case, except one, is per pound, the only exception being the price for salt herring, which are quoted by the dozen. The tinned goods prices are for a one-pound tin

Dairy and Farm Produce.

Kingston makes a fairly good showing in the prices for dairy and farm produce, although the balance on this item is not quite so marked in its favor as on the other items mentioned above.
