To-Night, "Charley's Aunt." "Charley's Aunt," that good old comedy which has been classed with the perennial plays because of its superbly human faculty of irrepressible laughter, has been revived, modernized and staged with scenic production by William C. Grew, the well-known producer and is now on tour with a superb company.

Mr. Grew has left nothing undone which would help this glorious revival of the laughing hit of the decade establish a new record in laughter making.

The cast includes such well known figures as James W. Swift, Gustav Bowman, Patricia Rand, Frank Harvey, Elythe Ketchum, Blanche Wallace and others.

The appearance at the Grand Opera House to-night only should be the signal for the turnout of the "old guard" as well as the lovers of laughter of this later generation for "Charley's Aunt," which will please one and all.—Advt.

At The Primrose Path. Pleasure Introduces Youth to Beauty, Wealth, Fashion and Intoxication. Youth's mother dies and Love wires him the news, but the telegram is intercepted by Temptation who holds Youth in thrall. Youth's money vanishes and his friends desert him. Chance offers Youth an opportunity to replenish his fortune at the gaming table, and Youth is ruined. He obtains work as a waiter in a dance hall and is discharged on an accusation of theft. Disgusted and ill, he falls prey to Vice and Habit who show him how to use drugs. He then meets crime and agrees to rob the home of Wealth. On the way, he hears singing in a church and repents. He returns home where he meets Love and finds happiness. Ambition again seeks Youth and with Love by his side he starts life anew.—Advt.

All careful people owe themselves this test—all who want teeth whiter, safer, cleaner.

That dingy film Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. Feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Your tooth brush used in old ways leaves much of it intact.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Teeth not clean Film-coated teeth are unclean. That is why so many teeth brushed daily discolor and decay. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing, and film is the cause of most of them.

Dental science, therefore, has sought ways to fight the film. Two ways have now been found.
