and will be accompanied by Mrs. E. Wray VanLoven, Edgchill avenue. A surprise party, to which Mrs. W. Bermingham, "Otterburn" will extend her hospitality, is arranged for Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Friendship were pleasantly surprised at the home of Hugh Free, Division street, on Monday evening last, when nearly fifty friends of the former tendered them a miscellaneous shower in recognition of their recent marriage. The early part of the evening was spent in games and contests of different kinds and the winners in these received suitable prizes. At the conclusion of the games the presents were brought in, packed in a large basket, and the parcels opened. Many of the presents were accompanied by original poetry, which the groom was compelled to read, and which well reflected the spirit and purpose of the occasion. Both the bride and the groom, in appropriate words, expressed their appreciation of the gifts they had received and sincerely thanked the donors. An additional feature of the evening was the taking of a group picture of those present. Refreshments were served, after which the enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

There was a large representation of Kingston society at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening to see the charming young actress, Marie Lohr, in "The Marionettes," and several parties went on to supper after the play. The costumes which were by Reville, London, Ebor, were magnificent, and it was noticed then the evening gowns were in train with quite long and clinging skirts with many filmy draperies and much sequined embroidery.

The patronesses of the dance and card party to be given by the Woman's Aid Society of the Kingston General hospital, are Lady Macdonnell, Mrs. Bruce Taylor and Mrs. R. E. Kent.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY.

FEW women are averse to making pin money. It doesn't matter whether they need it or not. There is special pleasure in spending money one has made through one's own initiative and resources. Each day there will appear on this page one of a series of suggestions on making money. Each article will give women readers of The Whig an idea that may be turned into a money-maker.

No. 5—The Up-to-Date Glove Shop

"The Up-to-Date Glove Shop" reads the sign of a very attractive little shop in a Western city. In the window on the right are displayed all sorts and varieties of gloves—everything from a heavy walking glove up to the most delicate-hued gloves for evening wear. There are suede gloves, lace gloves, silk gloves in various stages of wear and tear, each in contrast with its mate, which, having been repaired, shows what a transformation can be accomplished by the skillful mender. Soiled gloves are also displayed in the same way, side by side with the clean glove as evidence of the work of the skillful cleaner. The interior is fitted up with show cases and long counters arranged for the fitting of gloves. It is a most unusual occasion, indeed, when there is not every indication of a very lively patronage pervading this "Up-to-date glove shop." It is run by a young woman who we shall call, for convenience sake, Miss Rollins.

A few years ago this young woman, desiring to earn some pin-money, did it by cleaning gloves for a number of her friends. They declared that she made a better job than the professional cleaners who frequently took the softness out of the kid. In handling gloves in this way, she learned also to repair them so neatly as to render the weak places invisible to the naked eye. The success which attended her work led her to believe that a regulation glove shop, where not only new gloves could be purchased but also old ones cleaned and mended—would pay as a business enterprise. Accordingly, when a small legacy was left to her by a distant relative, her first thought was to invest her capital in a glove shop. Her prediction has been more than verified, for the glove shop is one of the recognized institutions of the town. Men, as well as women, are numbered among its patrons, the former finding it a great convenience to have a place where their gloves—sometimes a trifle worn—can be restored to an as good as new condition.

There are many other cities where the glove shop idea could be made to work out with equal success.

Bit of Pride's Good For Your Soul and Your Finger Nails

Paris.—You will never know what a thoroughly vain woman you can be until your nails are in perfect trim—and better yet until you have made them so yourself.

And you can make them so; it's all in getting your pride worked up to the point where it will make you work for it. Really, a little vanity or personal pride is good for your soul!

It keeps you sweeter from the inside out! It won't let you sag.

Perhaps you never thought of changing your nails from the pudgy unattractive things which they are to nice tapering ones. But you can, you know! The world is full of concrete feminine proof!

First cut your nails down quite deep on the sides. Not so deep that they'll really hurt, but well down. Then soak them in warm soapy water. If they're the kind of nails which curl down and grow proud the summer in town, has returned to Cornwall.

Mrs. E. J. Bidwell and Lieut. Roger Bidwell, R.N., will go to Ottawa this week.

Mrs. Andrew McMahon, who is the guest of Mrs. J. S. Smith, Johnson street, will leave for Stratford this week.

Mrs. J. C. Gwillim and Miss Gweneth Gwillim will sail for England in November.

Miss Mildred Irwin, Albert street, left on Tuesday for Martintown where she will be the guest of the Rev. John Murray and Mrs. Murray. Later she will go to Montreal to visit Mr. and Mrs. S. Murray.

Sir Frederick and Lady Loomis, Montreal, are with Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Mundell, Brock street.

The Woman's Aid Society of the Kingston General hospital will hold a dance and card party in Grant Hall and the Red Room of Queen's university on Wednesday, Oct. 26th, at eight o'clock. Tickets $1; for sale at the hospital and at Uglow's book store.

The Woman's Aid Association of Sydenham street church will hold a tea and sale on Dec. 1st.

Although there may be expected a certain amount of activity in the affairs of the day, according to the astral operations, these may not be read as fortunate. There is likely to be strife and contention, with the disposition headstrong and impetuous, which may lead to sudden upheaval or adversity, as Mars, with its destructive force, is in unfriendly attitude. This menace is heightened by the adverse position of Uranus, a disintegrating force, operating with unexpected swiftness. Avoid change and removal, and keep affairs well in hand, with coolness and deliberation, is the advice of stellar sages.

Those whose birthday it is may succeed in keeping their affairs well in hand by strict attention, and perhaps by avoiding change or removal. A child born on this day may be disposed to be rash, headstrong and impetuous. It may be difficult to manage, and yet attain success in its undertakings.

An unexpected change may take place by the use of a Whig ad. on this flesh underneath, take your orange stick and work away under them, gently but firmly wedging away the proud flesh until you have the white part of the nail quite free of flesh.

Some of the fleshy substance will be hard and white, callous and rather dead; take your cuticle scissors and cut that all neatly away. Then pad just lots of cuticle cream all around where you've been cutting and pushing back to prevent any soreness.

Cut your nails ovally; don't point them! Keep in mind, for the entire shape of your nails, a perfect oval from tip to tip, pushing back and cutting to get the effect.

And in idle moments pinch the tips of your fingers, to make them more neatly pointed.

Keep it up all winter! By spring your friends will be wondering how you ever acquired your lovely, tapering fingers and beautifully shaped nails.

The death occurred on Saturday of Mrs. Mary Foley, a well known and esteemed resident of Brockville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Foley, aged eighty-two years. It is estimated there are 1,700,000 more women than men in Great Britain. No man is as perfect as he thinks his neighbors should be.
