A TABLET IS UNVEILED IN CONVOCATION HALL

In Memory of Queen's Theology Students Who Fell During the War.

A most impressive memorial service was held in Convocation hall on Monday evening, in connection with the thirtieth annual conference of Queen's Theological Alumni Association, during which a memorial bronze tablet was unveiled in honor and memory of those students of theology who had paid the supreme sacrifice during the late war. There was a large attendance of students, members of the different faculties and friends of the university present for the ceremonies.

The opening exercises were conducted by the Rev. William Kinnam, Hamilton, and after the singing of a hymn, Professor J. L. Morrison read from the Old Testament scriptures, and Professor MacPhail read from the New Testament. Brigadier General A. E. Ross then led the gathering in a short and appropriate prayer in memory of the dead.

Principal S. W. Dyde, of Queen's Theological College, gave a striking and impressive sermon, referring to the debt which Canada owed to the fallen heroes. He spoke of the framed pictures on the walls of the historic hall, and of the great work that these men had done for the university and their country, and that these heroes whose names were engraved on the tablet had qualified to be included in this host of noble men. He said that a new page had been added to the history of our land by this last addition to the glory of our walls. Dr. Dyde told of the response to the call to arms throughout the years of the war, when men from all classes and ranks and home, had flocked to the colors in their country's time of trouble, and that the university had been prominent in this response. The classrooms became almost silent, and teachers and taught donned the uniform to fight for freedom. All these men loved their country that was, as well as Canada that is to be. The speaker paid an appealing tribute to the nobility of the soldier, and after giving a list of the decisive battles in which Canadians had taken a leading part, said that these names would forever remind the world of the part taken by Canada in the war. Some of these men now sleep in Flanders, but their memory will never grow dim in our minds. Freedom and peace for mankind was obtained by these fallen soldiers, and it is now up to us alone to make it secure. We are enlisted in the service of keeping fast what our noble dead gave their lives to save. The fallen are not dead, they live on, the peace-makers of the world, and the speaker then recited those immortal lines by the late Lt.-Col. McCrae, beginning,

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow,
Between the crosses, row on row,"

The speaker stated feelingly that, surrounded by the memory of these fallen heroes, and testifiers on the walls of the hall, we renew once more our pledge to them for a united humanity.

The unveiling of the tablet then took place, the ceremony being performed by G. M. Macdonell, K. C., chairman of the board of the theological college, which presented the tablet to the university. Mr. Macdonell read the inscription and names on the face, and a short history and war records of each, while the audience stood with bowed heads. He also gave a short and touching address, stating that these men were true empire-builders and they had made Canada a nation. Before the war, Canada had barely ceased to be a colony, but now she had taken her place in the councils of the nations on an equal footing. We owe these men a debt which can never be repaid in full. Can we let their memory fade or forget the noble sacrifice that they have made for us?

The names on the tablet are as follows: John Dall, professor; Henry Harold Allen, Percy Calvert Caverhill, Edward Fair Corke, John Gordon Leitch, Angus MacIntosh, Donald George MacPhail, Roswell Murray MacTavish and John Wesley North. The superscription is, "Eternal Honor to those who gave their lives in the Great War."

The "Last Post" was then sounded by two trumpeters of the R.C. H.A., and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. William Kinnam.

At the opening session of the Theological Alumni Association on Monday afternoon, Prof. Matheson spoke on "Formula and Thought." He gave a history of the use of formulas in mathematics and showed the practical application of a formula in measuring the volume of a cone, stating that otherwise the work required would be considerable. He then showed the relation of formulae to religion and Christian life, and if the code of Christ was followed there would be little doubt of the ultimate result. After the address, a general discussion took place, and much amusement was caused by a friendly argument over the relative value of the studies of mathematics and Hebrew.

City Property Committee. At a meeting of the city property committee on Monday afternoon it was decided to recommend to council that the island market building be no longer rented for rummage or auction sales, following out the resolution passed by the Board of Health. The committee received tenders for the construction of doors at the entrance to the northeast passageway of the city buildings, and recommended that the one of S. Aglin and Co. be accepted.

BEST, BIGGEST, CHARMING

Was the Party Given at the Mowat Memorial Hospital Monday Night.

Mowat Memorial Hospital was on a fete on Monday evening, when the best, big jest and the most altogether charming party, was given by the staff and patients. The assembly room was transformed into a fairland with every imaginable kind of Hallowe'en decorations, chandeliers with the lights shaded in orange, great pumpkins made into fearsome jack-o'-lanterns, a witch peering into her cauldron of poisoned brew beside a most realistic fire place on the platform, were a few of the many original ideas worked out by the clever hands of the patients and staff. Col. H. E. Pense was in the chair and the proceedings began with the Grand March and the costume contest, and the procession of Spanish girls' tramps, Indian maidens, John Bull, Jiggs, khaki girls, blondes, a doctor and nurse, jolson, jockeys, a sunflower, The Mikado and many others passed before the judges who declared that "Jiggs" (John Magee); "The Blondes" (Mrs. Ray); "The Blondes" (Cash Makin and W. H. Bocking), and Miss Agnes Brankin as the Jockey were the best. Mrs. E. J. B. Pense, Mrs. Donald MacPhail, Miss Deacon and Miss Marion Redden were the judges. McAuley's orchestra provided excellent music and two amusing monologues by Miss Goodfellow were much enjoyed. The refreshment hall where the most delicious supper was served was splendidly decorated. Jack Chinnick, chairman of the entertainment committee, and his assistants, Messrs. Such and McPaul, deserve great credit for their energy and skill.

Street Car Hit Waggon; Dastardly Hallowe'en Prank

The police report that Hallowe'en passed off very quietly, with the exception of a dastardly trick which was pulled off on Montreal street late in the evening, when a wagon loaded with stone, was left on the street car tracks, in the vicinity of the quarry. A street car going out to the junction ran into the wagon, and both the car and the wagon suffered damage. Luckily no person was injured. It is down-grade at the point where the wagon was left on the tracks, and the street car was going at a lively rate of speed when the collision occurred. It is just a miracle that the motorman was not seriously hurt.

STRAUBEZEE TABLET UNVEILED IN ST. GEORGE'S

In Memory of the Late Lieut.-Col. Charles Neruer Van Straubezee.

At the ten o'clock All Saints' day service, Tuesday morning in St. George's cathedral, a tablet in memory of the late Lieut.-Colonel Charles Turner Van Straubezee was unveiled. The tablet is on the north wall of the church beside the one placed there some years ago in memory of the late Colonel Bowen Van Straubezee, the father of Col. Charles Van Straubezee, and was given by the members of his family. It is of brass, mounted on marble, with maple leaves encircling the arms of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, and underneath in the inscription, "To the glory of God and in loving memory of Charles Turner Van Straubezee, killed in action in near Le Cateau, France, on Oct. 9th, 1918, while commanding as Lieut.-Col. the Royal Canadian Dragoons. Served with distinction in the South African war, and in the Great War, embarked with the 1st Canadian contingent and was actively employed before the enemy for nearly four years, 1874-1918. Faithful unto death." The names of the battles in which Col. Van Straubezee served are on a scroll and are, Cape Colony, Belfast, Diamond Hill, Orange Colony, Johannesburg, Bois de Morcuil, St. Quintin, Testubert, Cambrai, Paschendale, Amiens, Somme, Le Cateau.

The tablet was unveiled by the Dean of Ontario, "Who are these like stars appearing" and "For all the nights" were the hymns sung.
