HINTS FOR THE MOTORIST

ALBERT L. CLOUGH
Editor Motor Service Bureau Review of Reviews
Measuring Oil Deterioration

Guess Work and Rule of Thumb Should Be Discarded

ADVISE AS TO RENEWING ENGINE OIL is always given in miles of service, for instance, "at the end of each 1,000 miles run in summer and of each 500 miles in winter," but this rule is a very unsatisfactory one. Oil should be renewed when and not until its lubricating qualities have become seriously impaired and the mileage run has no exact bearing upon this point. The mileage rule is given only in the absence of a more positive means by which the user can tell how seriously his oil has deteriorated and is framed to meet average unskilled driving and oil of ordinary quality. Under extremely unfavorable conditions the mileage rule may not cause frequent enough oil renewals while, under ideal conditions it leads to serious oil waste. What the user needs is some automatic or readily operated device to tell him the lubricating value of his oil at any time, so that before it becomes dangerously low, he will be warned to discard it. With good filtering arrangements, loss of body or viscosity—thinning, in other words—is the best indication of impaired lubricating value and some simple form of viscosity meter, attached to or readily applicable to the engine lubricating system, conveniently read and properly corrected for temperature is all that is needed. Instruments designed to accomplish this purpose are already appearing upon the market and, if they operate satisfactorily, should prove a boon to the motorist.

ODOMETER READS TOO LOW

E. M. R. writes: My speedometer does not register correctly. When the car has run 20 miles it only shows 15 miles and it appears to record only three-quarters of the distance actually run. Can you inform me how to correct this?
Answer: Evidently, your speedometer gears are wrong. The driving gear should have a larger number of teeth or the driven gear a less number, or both. If this speedometer is front wheel operated, the change can be very readily made, but if it is driven from the transmission, the required change will be somewhat more difficult. Any service station of your make speedometer will tell you just what gears you require to give exact results.

MANUFACTURER'S WARRANTY ON CARS

C. A. L. asks: Are autos guaranteed by their manufacturers and if so, to what extent? I have been having some trouble with mine.
Answer: The usual warranty given merely obligates the manufacturer to replace any parts which are returned, transportation charges paid to his factory, within 90 days of the delivery of the car to its original owner, and which he, the manufacturer, considers to be defective in material or workmanship in respects which should have been detected before being delivered. This guarantee does not apply to parts of the car which are made by and warranted by others than the car manufacturer and it ceases to apply to a car when any of its original parts have been replaced.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

placed with others not made by the guarantor. Fortunately, car manufacturers are generally quite liberal in standing behind their product and frequently, as a matter of fact, in the case of business policy, go far beyond their obligations as set forth in this very mild form of guarantee.

ELECTRICAL LEAKAGE THROUGH PLUG PORCELAINS

C. R. F. writes: I have had much trouble with spark-plugs in large (aviation?) engines. New plugs work fine for about 100 hours and then show a poor spark, although the porcelain is not broken and there is no apparent short-circuiting. The plugs seem to put up a high resistance. How can this be the case if the porcelain does not crack nor the electrodes burn excessively?
Answer: Most of the trouble with spark-plugs under heavy continuous service is from breaking down of the insulation resistance of the core with the result that, after a few hours of service, ignition current leaks through the porcelain to such an extent as to rob the spark of much of its energy. There is much to be learned about this matter, but it appears that there is a structural change that occurs in the porcelain, due to intense heating and that, further, there is an embedding in its surface of conductive particles, both of which can most probably be eliminated by improvement in the dielectric qualities of the material.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

BROTHERS IN BOXING

Lon Marsh in Toronto Star: Brothers in the fight game are almost as common as dandelions on a new lawn. Right here in town we have the Burke brothers, the 90 and 100-pound amateur champions, Walter and Chris. Newton, the lightweights, Scotty and Phil Limer, two featherweights, Frankie and Fern Bull, the light and welterweights, Tiger Smith and his brother, Percy or Harold, or something flossy, as I remember it—both good hard battlers, and across the line I recall Phil and Leach Cross, Pinky Mitchell and his brother, the three Shade brothers, Harry and George Schuster, but a pair of brothers in the fight game, both of whom are managed by their wives, is indeed a rarity.

Pain in the Loins Driven Out Quickly

That dragging, wearying sort of pain makes life a misery to many people. This pain is due to a passive inflammation of the adjacent tissue. Because every drop rubs in, because it penetrates so deeply, Nerviline gives a wonderful result. More powerful because five times stronger, more penetrating because it strikes through soft tissue, more healing to pain, Nerviline Liniment should be always on hand. Sold everywhere in large 35 cent bottles.

LADY OWNER MADE A GREAT BARGAIN

Grandson Good Purchase For Mrs. McKee Had It Worked Out.
Mrs. M. McKee, New York, struck a veritable gold mine when she followed the thoroughbreds to Saratoga last August. While there she learned that a lot of cheap horses were to be sold at auction in the sales paddock one night, and she determined to attend the sale. Mrs. McKee isn't a wealthy woman, and while a score of horses were being sold she remained silent. They were too expensive for her.

Finally a little brown colt by Stallwart out of Naughty Marietta was brought forth. He was the property of R. H. McCarter Potter, and didn't attract much attention. The colt's name was Grandson, and George Bala was the auctioneer. A few hours before the sale Mr. Bala received a telegram that he had become a grandpa. When he read the colt's name on the catalogue he became enthusiastic about him, and confided to the gathering that he had a new grandson, and predicted the colt would "make good."

But this prediction failed to arouse the crowd to a buying mood, and he finally blurted out: "My grandson is worth something and so is this colt."
He was about to tell all the good things he knew about grandsons when a voice from the rear of the audience said: "Two fifty." It came from Mrs. McKee. There were no other bids, and she got the horse.
The colt was not heard of again until last week. Then he came forth at Empire city and finished second at the long odds of 30 to 1. Wednesday he came back to the races again, and in the Rambler purse, the feature of the card at the Yonkers track, defeated a dozen youngsters in sensational style. Mrs. McKee and her friends had a good sized wager on him, and were rewarded at the rate of 8 to 1.
After the race H. J. Horner claimed the colt for $1,750. This sum, plus $573, the value of the purse, and $200 second money he won last week, brought his total up to $2,523, more than 1,000 per cent. profit in less than three months.

Mrs. McKee also made an extremely profitable purchase when she bought Star Court at Belmont park. She paid $150 for this unsound son of Star Shoot, and on Tuesday he galloped home a winner at the long odds of 20 to 1.
