THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

Holds Annual Convention—Opening Address by Inspector Stuart.

The annual convention of the Kingston Teachers' Institute opened Thursday evening in Victoria school, with an illustrated address on "Belgium," by Inspector J. R. Stuart, from which country he recently returned after an extended visit. President G. Scott of the institute presided and gave a few remarks with regard to the lecture of the evening. A large number of the city teachers and their friends were present, filling the up-stairs hall of the school.

Mr. Stuart opened his address with a few introductory remarks on the wonderful country of Belgium, and showed a map on the screen where he sketched the position of the various places of interest and the places he had visited. He described the two main peoples of the country, the Walloons and the Flemish, their characteristics, customs and appearances, and gave a general survey of their history. Then a number of splendid views were thrown on the screen, showing the beautiful cathedrals, museums, castles and other buildings of historic interest, mainly in the cities of Bruges, Antwerp and Ostend, the great sea-side resort. Mr. Stuart gave a most entertaining talk as the views were shown, and described each in detail. After the address, refreshments were served and the session was adjourned, to continue Friday in a more serious strain.

The session Friday morning was in the Robert Meek school, opening with an address by the president, George Scott. An instructive lecture on "Nature Study and Culture" was given by Dr. G. A. Cornish, of the College of Education, Toronto. Miss Eason and Mr. Hill, musical director of the Kingston schools, entertained the gathering with a Scotch song and "Negro Spirituals" respectively. Miss B. Scammell and Miss I. Baxter gave interesting reports on the trip through Northern Ontario, as members of the Teachers' party who spent some weeks in this region as the guests of the provincial government. Dr. Cornish gave another talk on Nature study, which ended the morning program.

Friday afternoon, Dr. Cornish addressed the teachers on "Study of Living Plants and Animals," which was followed by the report of the Ontario Educational Association delegate, J. G. Ettinger. The convention concluded with the annual business meeting and the election of officers.

IN THE HALLS OF QUEEN'S

The Alma Mater Elections—Chances For Students' Parade Are Slim.

A new system of elections in the Alma Mater Society is being tried out this year and the indications are that much of the excitement and campaigning which characterized the election week of the year gone by, will be a thing of the past. As it was felt that when the faculties combined, as they have for the past few years, with medicine and science opposing arts, each party supporting a candidate, for each office, that a sweeping majority for the party with the balance of power was assured, and hence all the students were not equally represented on the A. M. S. executive. Under the new system, which is to go into effect this year, the presidency will be contested by two faculties, the other nominating a candidate next year, in opposition to the faculty whose candidate was defeated this session. The athletic stick is filled in the same manner. The candidates for the other major offices will be nominated from the three faculties; two offices being assigned to each. This assures that each faculty shall at least have two representatives.

Arts '24 entertained the freshman year at a year meeting on Thursday afternoon.

To Toronto in a truck is the way a few of the Medicals propose making the trip to attend the game withVarsity. The party of about fourteen will leave Friday evening and travelling all night hope to make the Queen City Saturday morning. As for the game with McGill a few pools have been circulated in the years and the lucky men will be making the trip to support their team. Although not as large a crowd as the other large universities might send to support their teams the local students will have just as much enthusiasm. They are confident that with just a few of the breaks of luck the tri-color will on Saturday make a showing that will certainly not be no discredit to the university.

The Queen's Missionary Association was addressed on Thursday afternoon by Prof. J. T. MacNeill.

The Radio Club, which was organized last winter, held a meeting for re-organization purposes Thursday afternoon when plans for the session's programme were made.

The chances of a students' parade, which was a yearly event in pre-war days, being held this year, appear very slim at the present time. Both the engineering and accuplan societies are reported as being unfavorable to participating in the parade. Some of the students feel that the expense, which is necessary to stage such an event, is considerable for a short evening's fun. Last year the years went to considerable expense to hold the fine parade which amused the citizens.

The consensus of opinion among the students is that for acrobatic stunts, the workmen employed by the Hamilton Bridge company have circus performers "beaten a mile." The thrills, which these men give the people, unaccustomed to see such construction work being carried out, are a real treat. The company hope to have their crane on Arch street by Saturday and then will be working on the last stretch of the work.
