

HEADS THAT ACHE AND PAIN

It is hard to drag along with a head that aches and pains all the time. In nine cases out of ten, persistent headaches are due to poisoned blood, the blood being rendered impure through some derangement of the stomach, liver or bowels, but no matter which organ is to blame the cause must be removed before permanent relief can be obtained.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS which has been on the market for the past forty-five years, removes the cause of the headache by starting the organs of elimination acting freely, and when the impurities are freed off from the system, purified blood circulates in the brain cells, and the aches and pains vanish.

Miss Clara Murphy, Centre Dummer, Ont., writes: "My system was greatly run down and my blood out of order. I suffered a great deal from severe pains in my head, which made me feel very miserable. After having tried other remedies I purchased a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and was very glad to notice a decided improvement in my health. I took another bottle and it has done me an enormous amount of good. I have recommended it to some of my friends, who were in a similar condition, and they all say it is a wonderful remedy."

HOW ABOUT YOUR STOMACH?

If Acid, Sour, Gassy, and You Bloat or Feel Stuffed Up After Eating or Try Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The stomach may be rather sluggish in digesting the fried eggs you

You Radiate Happiness When a Good Meal Sits Well in the Stomach. eat for breakfast and the delicious croquette and salad for lunch. On top of this a soda confection is apt to add to the indigestion. It is a good rule to follow each meal with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet to avoid dyspeptic results due to eating and drinking. Should the stomach sour, with water-brash, biliousness, and the peculiar gassiness due to indigestion these tablets bring relief because they supply the alkaline effect to the stomach and thus offset the acidity of such dyspeptic conditions. It is well to know this and not deny yourself the pleasures of the good things to eat and drink through fear of indigestion. You will find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on sale in all drug stores at 50 cents a box.

SOME ROMANTIC WILLS

Really Queer Relics Are "Filed" at Somerset House in England.

All English wills for which probate is granted are filed in Somerset House.

Almost every day the Principal Probate Registry Office has to deal with wills of original construction. One of the most recent was the portrait of a pretty girl upon which the testator had simply written, "I leave all to her." The legator, a soldier, had signed it, and affidavits of identity being forthcoming the will was admitted to probate and filed in the archives of Somerset House.

These same archives contain others just as fanciful and some that are remarkable for their historical interest.

One, interesting from a medical point of view, was made by an unfortunate man who died of the black plague. This will was placed in a bottle filled with spirits and then corked, a precaution no doubt to preserve His Majesty's Law Officers, who would have to handle it in the course of their duties, from infection by the deadly bacilli.

Another will is in shorthand. Considering its date—about 1709—this is not a little remarkable, for the well-known cipher invented by Mr. Pitman saw the light of day over a hundred years later.

Luckily the testator had left a key, or the authorities would have been put to no little trouble to decipher it, for shorthand was unknown in those days.

A will salvaged from the bottom of the sea supplies the nautical interest. This will was recovered after a long period of immersion, and the only damage it received was in the way of shrinkage.

It was made on parchment, and this when soaked up was found to have shrunk to about a tenth of its normal size. But so beautifully had it been inscribed that the writing remains as clear as print to this day.

Another quaint, though cumbersome, record is the leg of a certain earl was hidden in a recess at the top of this leg, and as there was a dispute over the grant of probate the leg and its large wooden castor had to be filed and kept as evidence.

Shakespeare's will with its remarkable signature, Nelson's will written in an ordinary exercise-book on the eve of Trafalgar, and which toward the conclusion contains these words, "The enemy are now in sight," a soldier's will made in a black-covered note-book through which a bullet has passed without making it illegible—these and many more go to make a collection that many a collector would give much to possess.

Dorsetshire Folk Lore. R. Thurston Hopkins has been giving some quaint and humorous examples in the London Bookman's Journal and Print Collector in regard to Dorset folks and Dorset ways. He says the rustics of to-day are not quite so simple as those in "The Return of the Native" and "Far From the Madding Crowd," yet they are simple still, and show their robust spirit in their proverb, "I will not want when I have, nor, by God, when I han't, too!"

Mr. Hopkins tells the following story of an old blacksmith at whose lonely forge he applied for food and lodging, not knowing that the blacksmith's wife had just died: The old fellow opened the door to me and I guessed that he was in trouble by the fresh crepe band round his soft hat, which is the week-day mourning of the rustic. However, the old fellow was quite pleased to have me for company, and I stayed at his forge for some days.

"Her was a clever woman; her kept my things straight," he said to me one night at supper, as he looked wistfully at his old jacket full of simple rents from hedgerow briars. "But it's no manner of use of grumbling—never was a bull-sowerings (mosses fellow). And thank the Lord she was took quick. I went off for the doctor four miles away, and when I gets there he was gone off some where else; so I turned, and in tramping back alone remembered I had a bottle of medicine which he did give me last year, so says I, 'that will do for the ol' woman'; so I gave it to her and she died."

The old blacksmith drank his beer and dealt with his ham and bread in ten minutes in silence. Then he looked into the amber depths of his ale and said, "Say, mister, wasn't it a good job I didn't take that bottle of physic myself?"

Greenwich. The meridian of Greenwich is generally accepted as the starting line from which to reckon longitude and time all over the earth. But objections are, from time to time, raised against the universal adoption of the Greenwich meridian for such purposes. Recently Italian savants have emphasized these objections by pointing out that on the meridian of Greenwich clouds and bad weather are frequent, interfering with astronomical observations. They suggest that the civilized world should agree to adopt the meridian of Jerusalem as a common reference line, because there the skies are clearer, and the possibility of making Palestine neutral territory would eliminate political objections.

She Wouldn't. Mrs. Blifkins met Mary Smith, whom she had recommended to a neighbor for a situation. "How are you getting on at your new place?" asked Mrs. Blifkins. "Very well, thank you," was the reply. "I am glad to hear it," remarked Mrs. Blifkins. "Your employer is very kind, and you can't do too much for her." "I don't mean to, ma'am," replied Mary.

SMILES

"Your husband is in business for himself, isn't he?"
"Well no—He's in-business for me."

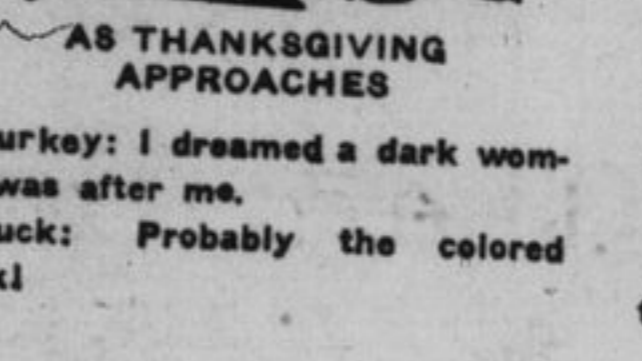

Mrs. Bunker: Winning that golf match will be quite a feather in your husband's cap.
Mrs. Fozzie: If it's a nice one I'll make him give it to me. Men shouldn't wear such fantastic millinery.

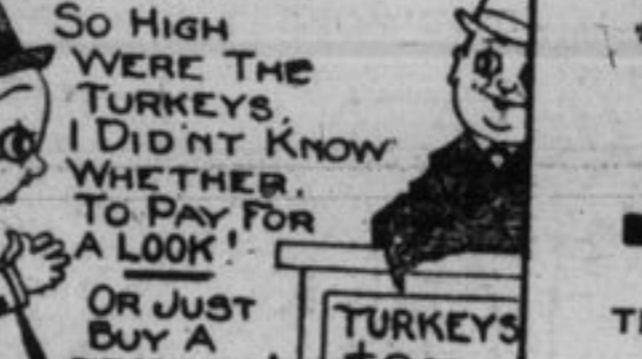

Dance Artist: Ain't it a shame that trained Jackass act gets twice the money I do?
Acrobat: Sure, it is girly. But, you know, the donk's got twice as many legs as you've got.

Turkey: I dreamed a dark woman was after me.
Duck: Probably the colored cook!

There was an old fellow named Mott. For a black-headed vamp he once flopped. Her face was quite fair And he admired her hair Till a hairpin came loose and it tumbled.

Prairie Pete: Well, what does that tenderfoot I shot think of me in an argument?
Friend: Not much; he says you nearly bored him to death.

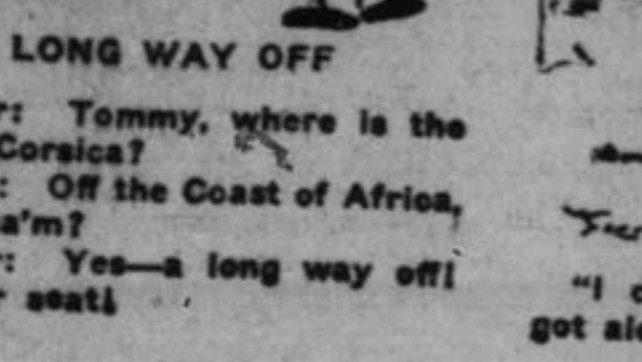

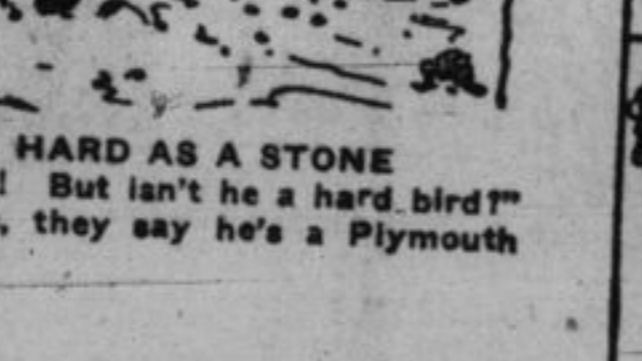

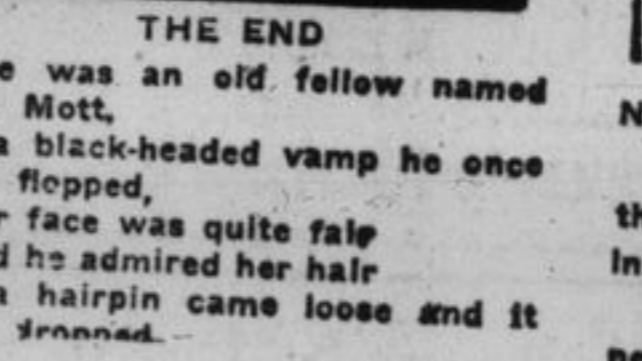

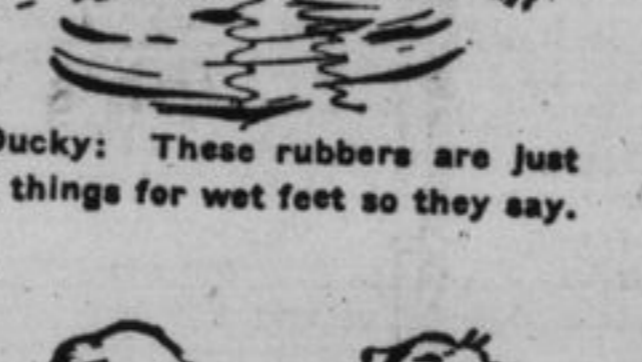

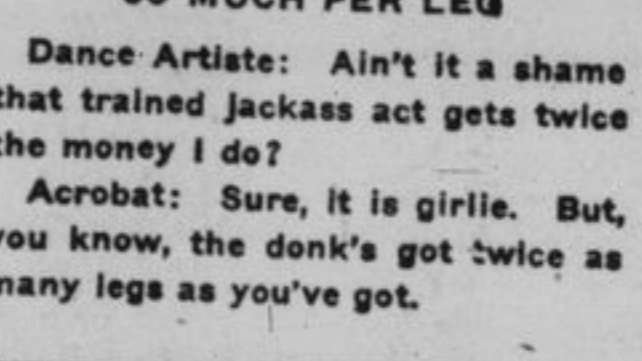

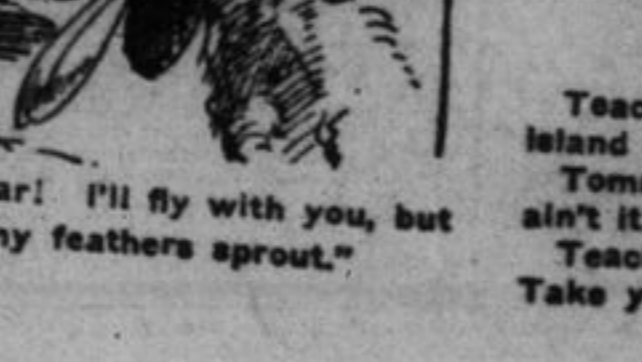

"AH! YOU WISH TO SING IN THE OPERA PERHAPS?"
"OH NO! I JUST WANT TO GET EVEN WITH MY HUSBAND!"

"My! But isn't he a hard bird?"
"Yes, they say he's a Plymouth Rock."

Teacher: Tommy, where is the island of Corsica?
Tommy: Off the Coast of Africa, isn't it, ma'am?
Teacher: Yes—a long way off! Take your seat!
