LAST TIME TO-NIGHT "A Virgin Paradise"

Theatrical

Last Night of "A Pair of Sixes." "A Pair of Sixes" has been spoken as one of Rex's outstanding successes of the season. The play aroused unusual enthusiasm in Peterborough where it good off to a good start Monday night. The house was turned over to the Rotary Club members co-operating with Mr. Snelgrove in providing a splendid evening's entertainment. The special campaign waged by Rotary to pay for a boys' camp which they have established at Stoney Lake, appealed strongly to Rex, and he accepted the lowest price possible for the theatre, thereby making his personal contribution a very generous one. Kiwanians were also present in large numbers. Tonight is the last chance to see this performance and next week's show is something entirely different. It is a comedy but a genuine romance with a delightful title "Just Like a Gypsy."—Adv.

"THE FOUR HORSEMEN."

Pictures Five Thousand Ex-Soldiers in the Marne Battle. The French village picture in the Rex Ingram production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" was probably the biggest setting ever constructed for cinema purposes. Nearly three months were consumed by Metro workmen in the construction of the buildings. Then the entire village, with the surrounding farm houses and the stone castle, was raised under the fire of heavy artillery used to represent the German guns in the battle of the Marne. One evidence of the care that was taken to reproduce the battle scene with complete accuracy was found in the rebuilding that was ordered after a careful inspection of the village houses by Rex Ingram. He discovered that three of the buildings had not been made to conform with the plans of the village sent from France. The buildings were immediately wrecked and exact reproduction erected in their places. More than 5,000 men participated in the battle scenes. Constant drilling of the actor-soldiers—all of whom served with the American forces abroad—made it possible to eliminate practically all danger of accidents such as usually mar great "mob" scenes, an added precaution, however, field hospitals were erected for practical, not picture purposes. In addition, field kitchens, mess tents and customers' shops were put up and supplied with their wares for use during the six days that the great army of actors and fighting men were under canvas. Although this was the first time in the history of film making that the reproduction of a battle on the scale of modern warfare has been attempted with conscientious fidelity to detail, it served as but one feature of the special Metro picturization of Senor Ibanez's novel. "There is a great story in the Ibanez novel, and it is not the story of the war," said June Mathis. "I think its true spirit has been caught in our picturization of the 'Four Horsemen' and I am sure that nobody who sees the screen spectacle will feel that he has been looking at a war picture. "However, I never was more impressed that I have been by the work of the French and German experts who served in preparing for the second, 'Battle of the Marne.' We have all but witnessed the murder of the experts as they re-fought the battle over their maps, but they succeeded in doing what no historian ever has done—carried one of the biggest moments in history to the very eye of their audience." "The Four Horsemen" will be presented at the Grand Opera House for three nights commencing on Monday, Nov. 22th, with matinees on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.—Adv.

never been his motto. Some of his homely maxims on thrift are well worth remembering. "Mitha wadna waste," says Sir Harry, "and I would be disgracing her memory if I wasted." Here are some of his maxims on thrift: "Behave toward your purse as you would toward your best friend." "View the reckless spending of money as foolish, and shun the company of the reckless spender." "Dress neatly, but not lavishly. A bank pays a higher rate of interest than your back." "Take your pleasure judiciously. You'll enjoy them better." "You can sleep better after a hard day's work than after a hard day's idleness." "Get value from your tradesmen. They watch out that they get good money from you." A bank book is better reading than most novels. Many of Harry Lauder's songs express the idea of thrift, but despite this, those who attend his performance at the Grand will discover no lack of generosity in his program. Lauder gives good measure to his audiences, and seems never to tire responding to the requests of his admirers for especially popular songs.—Adv.

Chooses New Type of Story in "Stranger Than Fiction." Beginning Monday the Allen theatre announces the showing of "Stranger Than Fiction," Katherine Mac Donald's latest release through Associated First National Pictures, Inc. "Stranger Than Fiction" has been filmed from the original story by Charles Richman and A. S. LeVino and was directed by J. A. Barry. In many respects it is radically different from the type of stories in which the screen beauty has previously appeared since it combines the elements of humor, suspense and dramatic tension with the necessary settings in which Miss Mac Donald may have full scope to display her charms. The remarkable rise to popularity of Katherine Mac Donald is largely attributed to the sheer beauty and histrionic ability of the star; but undoubtedly the selection of her stories has been a great factor. According to advance reports "Stranger Than Fiction" has turned out to be the type of story which ideally fits her. As Diane Drexel, wealthy society girl, Miss Mac Donald has a role of unique appeal. She is introduced when giving a society ball at her home in order to screen a motion picture in which she has played the leading part. Her fiance, good natured and rich, but hopelessly aimless, is anxious to set the date for their marriage, but this she refuses to do until he has a set purpose in life. The opportunity for her admirer, which part is played by David Winter, to have a career comes rather unexpectedly when the notorious Black Heart Gang make a wholesale loot of the jewels and valuables under the very noses of the Drexel guests. Winter, as Dick Mason, decides that he will unearth the gang, and sets out to find them. Diane promises that she will marry him when he brings the offenders of the law to justice. When she considers what a difficult proposition Dick is up against, she regrets that he has undertaken such a hard job to prove himself worthy of her. The plot then becomes more complex and leads the pretty Diane into the very lair of the Black Heart Gang. The smashing climax comes when the leader of the Black Heart Gang, in order to escape, flies an aeroplane from the roof of the building. Dick Mason leaps aboard just as the plane is taking off. Then follows one of the most exciting air battles ever seen on the screen. A rescue from a burning plane in mid-air is but one of the thrills that add zest to this incident. Among the supporting cast is Wesley Barry, the freckle-faced little fellow of "Dinty" fame, who, in "Stranger Than Fiction," plays an interesting and humorous part as "Freckles," a little street urchin taken into the home of the Drexels. Others in the cast are Wade Boteler, Jean Dumont, Harry O'Connor, Evelyn Burns, and Tom McGuire. "Stranger Than Fiction" will remain at the Allen theatre for three days.—Adv.

Katherine MacDonald. Katherine MacDonald is a Pittsburgh, Pa., girl and was educated at the Blairville College, in Blairville, Pa. As leading lady she attracted the attention of producers more than a year and a half ago, and since that time she has been a star in her own right. Her nine independent starring releases have found her growing in popularity. Among her features are "Thunderbolt," "Passion's Playground," "My Lady's Latchkey," and "Trust Your Wife." She is generally conceded to be the most beautiful woman on screen of stage, and has won sixteen national and state beauty contests in less than a year. She is generally termed "The American Beauty."—Adv.

Wesley Barry. Wesley Barry is generally conceded to be the greatest juvenile actor in the history of the screen, and plays the part of "Freckles" in "Stranger Than Fiction," Miss Mac Donald's starring vehicle through Associated First National Pictures, Inc., at the Allen, Monday. Appearing in "Daddy Long Legs," and "The Unpardonable Sin," he attracted such attention that in Marshall Neilan's "Don't Ever Marry," and "Go and Get It" he was given important parts. He became a star in his own right in "Dinty." Mr. Neilan loaned him to the Katherine MacDonald company for the part in "Stranger Than Fiction."—Wesley hails from Los Angeles.—Adv.

Another Beauty Secret. At last Katherine Mac Donald has explained the secret of her beauty. The mystery was revealed when Miss Mac Donald was working on the new feature, "Stranger Than Fiction," her Associated First National release, which will be shown at the Allen theatre, commencing Monday. One of the self-appointed traveling evangelists preaching the Blue Law movement got inside the Mac Donald studios and insisted on talking to the screen beauty, saying he was a writer and wanted to interview her. "How do you account for your remarkable beauty?" asked the Blue Law writer. "Why, I go to picture shows on Sunday, don't object to harmless amusement, don't make myself a pest, and don't try to preach Blue Laws," she responded sweetly.—Adv.

At The Strand. In "The Conquest of Canaan," Paramount's picturization of Booth Tarkington's celebrated novel of that name, which will be shown at the Strand theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Thomas Mel-an, the star, has an opportunity for some of the best work of his motion picture career. As "Joe Loudon" Mr. Melghan plays the part of the ostracized youth—a member of the so-called "other half" in Canaan, a typical middle western town with its provincial likes and dislikes and its "society." He loves Ariel Tabor, who also belongs to the same strata of unrespectables, but life for them is a burden. Ariel's uncle dies and she goes to Paris and Joe goes to study law. He returns to conquer "Canaan" and his problems give Mr. Melghan a splendid opportunity to display his talents. Doris Kenyon is leading woman in the picture.—Adv.
