O'Brien Cup Cobalt Silver. The O'Brien Cup, originally the championship of the National Hockey Association, will serve henceforth as that of the National Hockey League. Word to the effect has been received from President Frank Calder of the N. H. L., who will turn the O'Brien Cup over at once to the G.W. club.

The O'Brien Cup was presented by Senator M. J. O'Brien, of Renfrew, after the 'Creeley Kings' and other rebel clubs had successfully battled the Eastern Canada League into submission by organizing the National Hockey Association. When the National Hockey Association closed up shop several years ago, to be succeeded by the National League, the O'Brien Cup was then held by the Canadians. Arguments were made by President Calder this year, through J. Amos O'Brien, to have the O'Brien Cup turned over to N. H. L. Following the death of the late George O'Brien, it was secured by President Calder, who is having it named and gilded prior to its presentation to Ottawa.

The O'Brien is made of solid silver from the famous O'Brien Mine Cobalt, and is valued at $1,500 on presentation to Senator O'Brien.
