YOUNG GIRLS NEED CARE

Mothers! Watch Your Daughters' Health

Health Is Happiness

From the time a girl reaches the age of twelve until womanhood is established she needs all the care the thoughtful mother can give.

The condition that the girl is then passing through is so critical and may have such far-reaching effects upon her future happiness and health that it is almost criminal for a mother or guardian to withhold counsel or advice.

Many a woman has suffered years of prolonged pain and misery through having been the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance on the part of those who should have guided her through the dangers and difficulties that beset this period.

Mothers should teach their girls what danger comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, and from overworking. Do not let her overstudy. If she complains of headache, pains in the back and lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her. She needs thoughtful care for a few years.

In all such cases Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be given as it is especially adapted for such conditions. It contains nothing that can injure and can be taken in perfect safety.

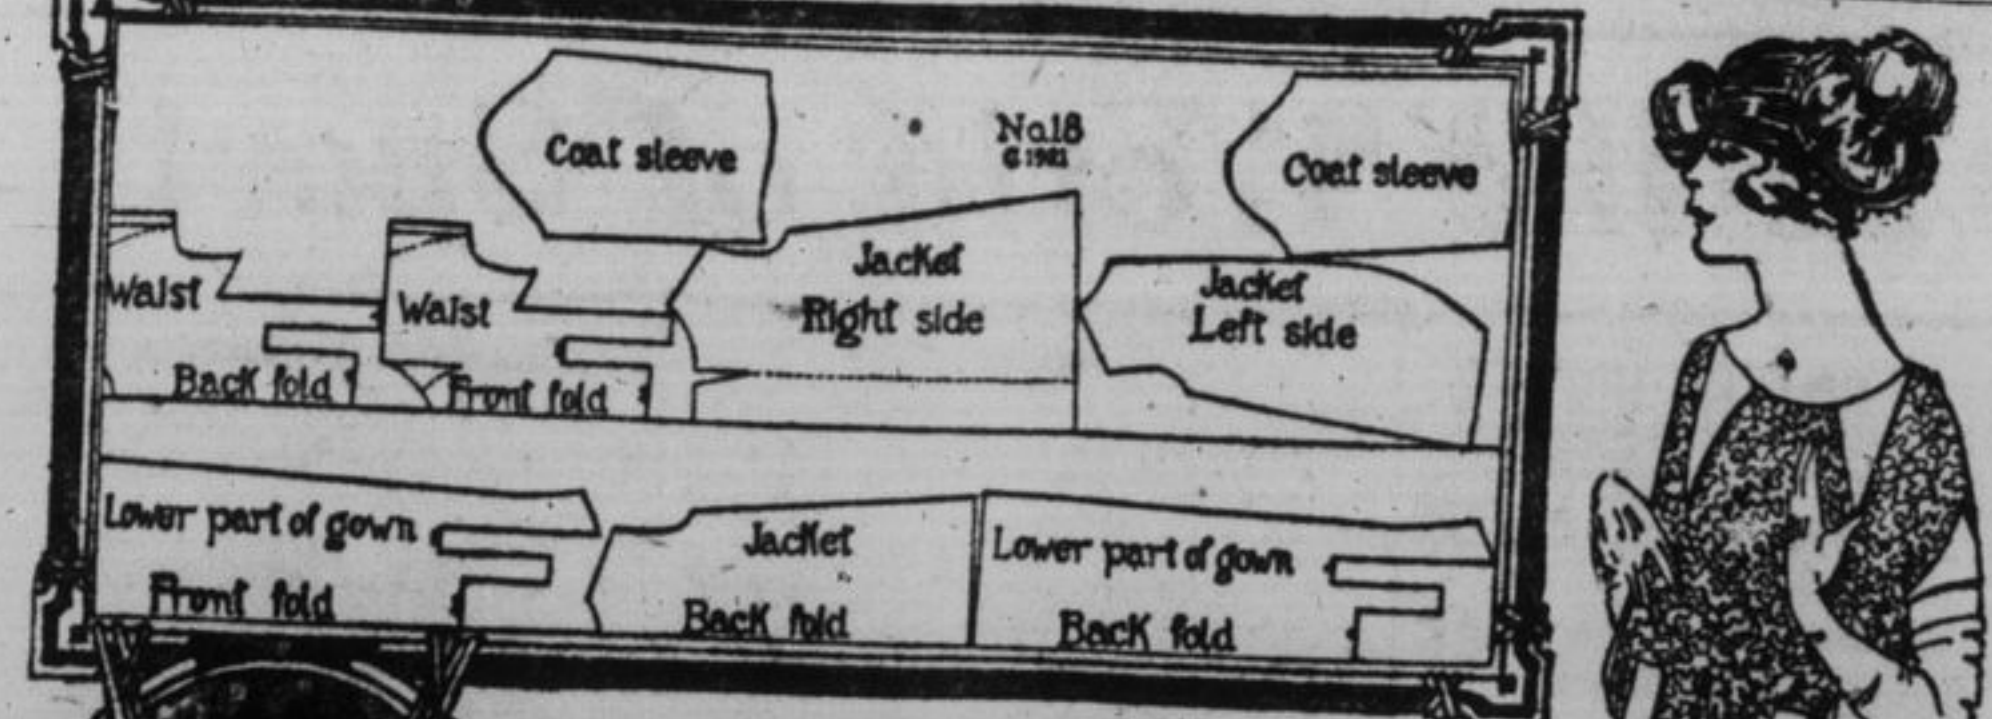

Read how Mrs. Eicher helped her daughter. She says: "At the age of sixteen my daughter was having trouble every month. She had pains across her back and in her sides. Every month her back would pain her so she could not do her work and would have to lie down. My married daughter recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I read the books which were left at my door. She took it faithfully and is now regular and has no pain. We recommend the Vegetable Compound and give you permission to publish this letter in your little books and in the newspapers."—Mrs. KATIE EICHER, 4034 N. Fairhill St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Williams will profit by her own experience. She says: "When I was thirteen years old I had sick spells each month and as I was very backward I would bear the pain and my mother knew nothing about it. I read in the daily paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took my own spending money and bought a bottle. It helped me so much that I took it regularly after that until I had taken two bottles and I did not have any more pain or backache and have been a healthy, strong woman. I am now 89 years old and have a little girl of my own, and when she gets old enough I shall give her some other than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. C. E. WILLIAMS, 2437 W. Toronto St., Philadelphia, Pa.

For almost fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been relieving women, young and old, of ailments peculiar to their sex. Ask your neighbor about it, for in every neighborhood there are women who know of its merits.

Thousands of letters similar to the above are in the files of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., and for years such letters have been published. Surely it is worth your while to make a fair trial of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

A Three-Piece Suit in Any Color Combination in the Newest Lines

This Suit was Designed by Marion Davies For Herself

By MARION DAVIES
Screen Star of "The Restless Sea," "Buried Treasure," "Enchantment," etc.

Here is my new three-piece suit in the latest lines for winter. I have great comfort from it and expect to wear it very often, with and without a winter coat. It can be lined warmly enough to wear without a heavy coat even on the coldest days.

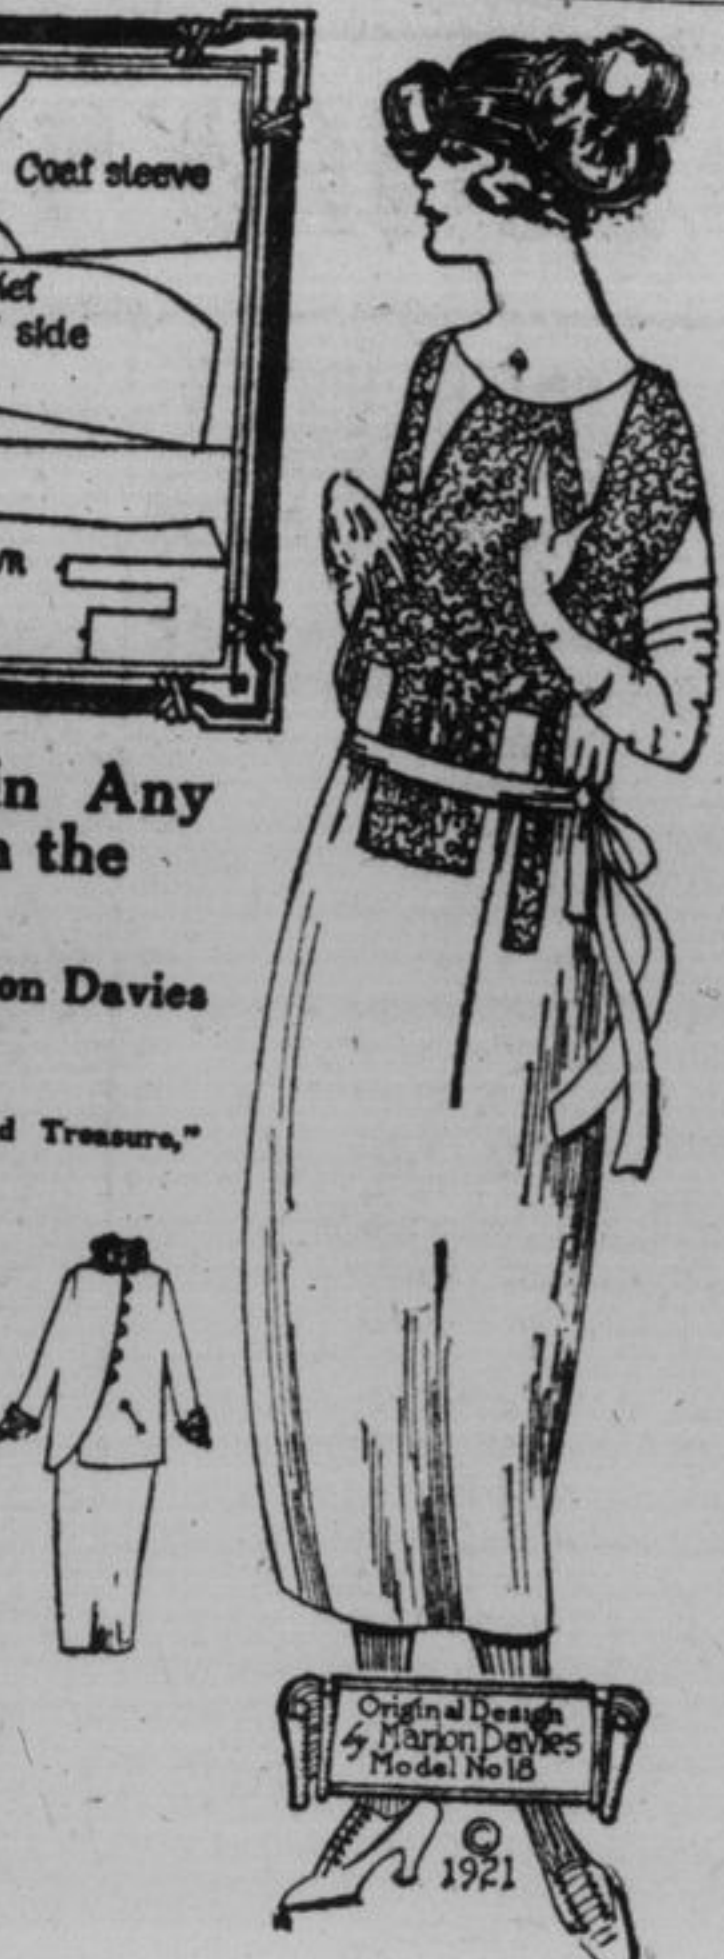

Mine is of the medium shade of tan, trimmed with dark brown velvet. The blouse I made of gold brocade cloth. Any color combination that you like is suitable and in place of velvet other cloth may be used and the blouse may be of silver brocade or embroidered.

It has a plain box coat trimmed with fur, with a tailored pocket on the left side. The material required is 4 3/4 yards of the plain material, 30 inches wide. Mine is velvet. You will need 1 and 2/3 yards of the brocade, or whatever material you decide upon, one yard wide.

Cut the back and front of the skirt on the lengthwise fold of the material. The dotted lines on the waist pattern is where the cloth cuffs and points of the collar are to be placed.

Another thing about this dress which I must not forget to mention is that it can very readily be made from a suit or frock of last year or from a combination of several.

If there is anything that puzzles you about the diagram or directions I will be very glad to advise you. Address me at Cosmopolitan Productions, 127th Street, New York City.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home."

Do You Have a Special Way of Making the Beds in Winter-Time?

The first essential to comfortable sleep is a good mattress and pillows of the right thickness. Both pillow and mattress should be made over often to be light, sanitary, and fresh in appearance. The best mattress has always been considered the one filled with long, curling horsehair, but the question of expense often leads to the selection of one filled with cheaper materials, possibly topped with hair. The modern felt, cotton or wool mattress is liked by many women, who think it softer than hair.

Feather pillows are watched by health boards for obvious reasons, and large department stores cannot renovate them unless they have especially constructed factories for the purpose. So when we want pillows made over we must do it ourselves or find little upholsterers on side streets who will do two or three pairs at a time. In selecting new ticking, be sure to get fast coloring. Finely tufted mattresses with rolled edges hold the longest time and look best on the bed.

Slip-covers for mattresses and pillows save the ticks, for they may be taken off and washed easily. Some women find under-slips for their pillows practical in white pongee or China silk, or in delicate-colored wash crepe. Spots may be cleaned from both pillows and mattresses by placing a layer of dry starch over the spots then moistening them with water. When dry, brush with a whisk broom and repeat the process until the spots are gone.

In making the winter bed, cover the mattress with a soft blanket that is long enough to tuck under the foot to keep it smooth. Sheets should be two yards and three quarters long in order to cover the blankets at the top, and turn over and tuck in at the bottom.

One thin blanket is generally placed over the sheet, then the double blankets under the spread. Double blankets may be cut apart and bound with ribbon, which makes them easier to handle and less bulky in making the bed. In clean places, where the blanket can be aired and protected, they may be used two seasons without washing, especially if they are put into organly slip-covers.

The extra blanket placed at the foot of the bed should be folded fashion to pull up easily when needed. There is a wide selection of puffs, and their use depend upon the heating of the bedroom. The finest are down-filled and silk-covered. The cheapest are cotton-filled and cheese-cloth-covered. The puffs are bulky, and are not favored in small quarters, where there is no closet room to put them away in during the day.

Bed linen embroidered and initialed by machinery is very popular, and is but little less expensive than Madeira work, which is to be had nowadays in fairly good selection. Buttonholed, embroidered and laced-edged pillow-slips are finding great favor. Hemstitched hems often pull off after a few trips to the laundry or a careless laundress, and the cases are usually too short to allow a fresh hem, so it is wiser to button-hole the edges in scallops or points.

Where sheets are embroidered they are used with plain under-sheets. French sets, so-called, but really American-made, consisting of six embroidered sheets and pillow cases, intended for bridal or holiday gifts, are new this season.

The old Marseilles spreads in colors are fashionable in homes where they are chosen to match the other decorations, and where the bed does not have to masquerade as a couch in the daytime. Persian cotton spreads in native designs are large enough to cover bed and pillows and fall to the floor around the sides of the bed.

mean. "No, we're not separated, but we find it a thousand times better for each of us to have an apartment. In the first place, it's a protection to Mrs. Mole when she's raising her little ones. You know I've never heard of a mole growing tired of his mate. When we do see each other we're very happy. You see, Mama Mole's apartment, you might say, connects with mine by two passages, some distance from my castle. But here I am chattering as if I had nothing better to do. Come on and I'll show you a real-for-sure underground castle."

Before Doris knew what had happened she was standing at the entrance of the mole castle no larger than Mr. Mole himself.

In through the we entrance and down the many hallways they went. At last they reached what Mr. Mole told Doris was his highroad.

"By this hallway or highroad," said Mr. Mole, "I can get in and out to my hunting grounds. And also all my other halls lead into it."

He led Doris down a very long hall, and into his mate's apartment, down her many hallways, and then into a centre chamber that seemed to Doris to be burrowed out in the very centre of the earth.

Mrs. Mole was glad to see Doris, and invited her into a cosy nest made of grass and leaves. Here, sound asleep, nestled two tiny little baby moles, all rolled up like wet fur balls.

"Now, I guess you can see why we have a highroad," laughed Mr. Mole, "by the time an enemy can reach this room we're far away."

"My goodness!" laughed Mrs. Mole, "I remember our old home. Why, we came so near being caught that Mr. Mole drew up the plans for this place, and we had built before any of our friends knew anything about it. And, would you believe it, Mr. Mole didn't dig out that hallway, he simply ploughed his way through it. Its walls are a great deal harder than any of the other walls. Well, when our friends saw what he had done they all set to work and built homes just like ours. I tell you I felt very proud of my husband."

A speck of dust made Doris sneeze. When she opened her eyes the castle and its tiny inhabitants had vanished, and she was standing out in the golden sunshine once more.

Doris Meets The Keeper of an Underground Castle.

"Oh dear!" cried Doris, as her foot sunk into a mound of soft dirt. "It looks as if some of the meadow folk have been building in our garden."

"Lots of good it will do if you giants persist in crushing it in," sighed a squeaky voice, and a dear little furry creature peeped out of a hole not far from Doris's feet.

"Well, well," Doris laughed, "if it isn't Mr. Mole! I wondered to whom this hallway belonged."

"And now that you've found out, I hope you'll take your feet off of it," snickered Mr. Mole. "Folks think all we have to do is to build our castles so they can dig them up or trample them beneath their feet. I just told my wife, when I built her place, that if it wasn't for our many, many halls we never could get away from you people. These halls have saved our hides a great many times, I can tell you!"

"Oh!" Doris exclaimed, "is your wife at home now, and may I see her?"

"I'm glad you are interested," said Mr. Mole. "But she doesn't live here with me. She—"

"My goodness!" exclaimed Doris. "I'm so sorry!"

"For what?" asked Mr. Mole in astonishment. "Why do you say that?" Then he laughed merrily as it dawned on him just what Doris

A Skeptical Woman.

"Well," said Mrs. Peckton coldly, "you telephoned two hours ago that you were on your way home. What detained you?"

"Oh, a variety of unforeseen incidents," said Mr. Peckton, thinking fast. "Traffic congestion, a street fight, a broken trolley wire and a fire alarm."

"You left out one unforeseen incident."

"What was that, my dear?"

"An earthquake."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

WONDERS NEVER CEASE

Now it is a Ready, Prepared Cake Batter, Better and Cheaper than you can make at home.

Inventors have come to the rescue of many lines. Now the tired housewife gets her innings—a factory has been established in Toronto for the manufacture of a Cake batter in dry form, which will keep indefinitely.

This preparation, known as EXCELO Cake Mixture, contains just the proper amount of sugar, eggs, shortening, milk, flour, baking powder and flavoring to make a perfect cake batter by simply adding a glass tumblerful of cold water. Even the water is converted into milk when stirred in, for each package of mixture contains the dry milk solids from about one pint of sweet milk.

Not an ingredient, which is used by the cook to make a cake, is left out of EXCELO and not a thing which a good cook doesn't use is in our preparation. It is frequently referred to as "The Wonder Product". You can depend upon getting a wonderfully whole some, delicious cake by using EXCELO Cake Mixture. Simply stir in a glass of cold water and bake. Costs much less than when you furnish your own materials.

EXCELO comes in four delicious flavors—Lemon, Vanilla, in white, apricot, Chocolate and Spiced Devil's Food in the dark cake.
