MISSING BODIES MAY NEVER BE RECOVERED

No Trace of Victims on Steamer City of New York.

According to the latest report received from Oswego, N.Y., no trace whatever has been found of the bodies of Capt. Harry Randall, Baby Randall and Stanley Pappa, a lad, who were on the steamer City of New York, which was lost near the Duck Islands a few weeks ago.

Capt. John Randall, Seely's Bay, father of Capt. Harry Randall, has been making inquiries around Oswego, but thus far has not been able to secure any information.

Owing to the lateness of the season, it is doubtful if any of the missing bodies will be recovered. A good deal of the wreckage of the steamer has been washed ashore at different points along the shore.

FALSE ECONOMY TO CUT EXPENSES

Gen. Hill, of Headquarters Staff, Kingston, Guest of Belleville Rotarians.

Belleville Ontario
We all like the word, disarmament. Perhaps because the wish is rather to the thought. But total disarmament now is folly," said Brig-Gen. Hill, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., formerly in command of the 9th Canadian Infantry Brigade and now the Rotary Club on Monday.

To disarm now would be folly because the world is not ready for any such revolutionary move, but to bring peoples and nations gradually to a condition of thought where disarmament would be possible would be the best thing for this world, he declared.

"In order to disarm we must feel secure," said Gen. Hill, "secure not for the present, but for a considerable time to come. Wars are not decided upon overnight; they are the result of a condition of the thought of a people for periods up to fifty years."

The conference at Washington, he said, was doing splendidly, but disarmament was not the crux of the situation desired. It was that to bring about a combination of a group of nations who would agree to a contract to police the world. Then forces would be big enough only to force their ideas on rivals; big enough so that they would maintain their prestige, so that they would be respected. The Washington conference was busy now removing possible grounds of dispute.

No one there thinks of disarmament. France, he said, would never consent to it, with the constant menace of Germany beside her. With regard to Canada's position Gen. Hill said that we in the dominion could not look, much as we desired, for complete disarmament, because as one of the free states which go to make up the British Empire, we must do our share, we must co-operate with the others, in helping to provide protection, not that the permanent forces here were more than enough to do the vast police duties, imposed on them. If we did not the whole structure would be in danger.

It was his opinion, not because he was a soldier, but because he was a citizen of Canada, that it was a mistake to curtail the amount spent by the department of militia and defence in national insurance, to that extent weakening the national protective devices.

"Let us not economize falsely," he concluded.

TABLET AT QUEEN'S.

Placed in Grant Hall—Classes Close on Saturday.

The bronze memorial tablet, which will be unveiled by Lord Byng at the convocation Wednesday was erected Monday afternoon. It is placed in a temporary position on the wall at the rear of Grant hall on the University avenue side of the main entrance to the auditorium. The tablet stands about ten feet high and is a handsome piece of work. It will worthily commemorate the one hundred and eighty gallant Queen's men who fell in the great war.

The college closes this week-end for the Christmas holidays and will reopen on Jan. 4th. The faculties of arts and science will have their mid-term examinations after the new year but the medical students are this week writing on examinations.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.

They say it is folly repining,
Be merry, don't grumble and fret;
Laugh tho' the sun is not shining,
For sadness and gloom bring regret.

The true royal road to honor and fame
Is by making care fly on swift wings;
Life it seems sweet though far from home,
When we look on the bright side of things.

Contentment is a precious blessing
That every one now may possess,
If we all learn the lesson,
'Twould help us in times of distress.

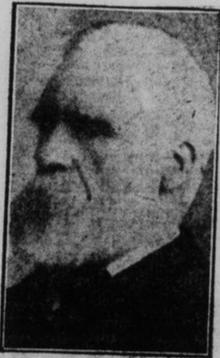

Bring down your wants to your means every day,
Much happiness it truly brings;
The prince and the peasant alike can be gay
If they look on the bright side of things.

THEY DECIDE TO SELL THEIR CHURCH BUILDING

First Congregationalists See No Need To Hold It Longer.

The members of the congregation of the First Congregational church met on Monday evening, and decided to place the church building at the corner of Wellington and Johnson streets, for sale. This matter has been engaging attention for some time. Last year the church was closed and every effort has been put forth to ascertain whether there was any real service in demand for this church within the locality. It has become apparent that there is no future in the downtown district, which is well provided for by all denominations, and that Bethel church fully meets the requirements of the Congregationalists of the city. The First Congregational people have united with Chalmers.

Orphans' Guild Eucbre.

The weekly eucbre held in the Recreation hall of the House of Providence on Monday evening was most successful. The patrons were received by the president, Miss Agnes B. Doonan, assisted by Mrs. H. C. Sharp, Mrs. E. Thompson and the Misses Madge Daly, B. Shaw, I. Shaw, M. Sheehan. Mrs. H. Cooper and Mrs. C. Diamond were at the door to take the entrance fee. The ladies on the refreshment committee were Mrs. J. Bioof, Mrs. P. Gratian, Mrs. L. Joyce, Mrs. W. Macdonnell and Mrs. W. Shaw. The ladies prize was won by Mrs. W. Robertson; D. Peelow winning the gentlemen's prize.

The first instalment of "Main Street" appears in the Whig on Monday. Do not miss it.
