Civilization: The art of making life complicated.

The chief obstacle in the way of land disarmament is hysteria.

Agriculture sections are slowly recovering from the bump of bumper crops.

By the way, did Greece vindicate that great moral principle she was fighting for?

A man may still drink hard liquor all his life, but a lot of lives are being abbreviated.

Reported from the clothes closets that many are doing their Christmas shopping early.

The great national game seems to be that of trying to separate somebody from his bank roll.

It is a wise woman, who, disappointed in marriage, knows how to keep it from the neighbors.

As a child he likes an all-day sucker; but in later years he prefers one that he can trim quickly.

When the husband begins to find fault, the wife always suspects that he has found another woman.

The part of hell that isn't paved with good intentions probably is paved with war inventions.

An economist has figured out that a wife is worth $2.69 a day. The nine cents is doubtless the luxury tax.

A popular magazine writer says a successful writer must feel what he writes. He need not, however, feel his oats.

The trouble with the average reformer is that he doesn't know the difference between a reformer and a common scold.

An orator has an easier time than a writer. When he hasn't much to say, he can yell it loud enough to get away with it.

Some men who complain about walking in their sleep have little trouble finding their way to the cellar and back.

One fine thing about the Christmas season: It gives everybody a prosperous feeling while they are buying the gifts.

If we admit that war in a good cause is righteous, nations will always keep a few good causes on hand for use in an emergency.

The Chinese delegates may think that if the Washington conference does not take anything from them they will be ahead of the game.

When reading that a bellhop in a city hotel makes $100 a week in tips, a great many of us are forced to conclude that in picking a calling we choose the wrong thing.

Some think that the new treaty is a means for Uncle Sam to get into the League of Nations through the back door, and others think it is a kind of coalho entrance.

Perhaps the film company that is alleged to have offered the United States postmaster general a salary of $100,000 is hunting for a man to undertake the job of restoring Fatty Arbuckle to public favor.

NORTH OXFORD.

The old historic Liberal riding of North Oxford on Monday, in a keenly fought bye-election, returned a supporter of the Drury government by a majority of over 1,300.

THE NEW CABINET.

A great deal of advice has of late been tendered Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in respect to the new cabinet he will be called upon to form.

THE YOUNG LIBERALS.

The recent election in Kingston demonstrated the need for organization to young and old alike, and while J. M. Campbell came within a few votes of winning out, it is evident that with a more perfect organization the result might have been different.

GANDHI.

Perhaps two out of three press despatches coming to-day from British India have to do with a certain Hindu named Gandhi. Who is he, and whence has he such extraordinary power that at his word a whole city would refuse to watch the glittering procession of the Prince of Wales?

Our Canadian Question And Answer Corner

Q.—What was "the Quebec Conference?" A.—The Quebec Conference was a gathering in 1864 of 33 Canadian representatives of the then existing provinces and Newfoundland, to consider the forming of a union, which resulted in the Confederation of four of the provinces in 1867 as the Dominion of Canada.

sous spirit of self-sacrifice, which is not yet apparent. He admits and deplores the ease and frequency with which passive civil disobedience degenerates into murderous rioting and looting.

His personality and teaching has captured the hearts of millions. He is in the impregnable position of one who wants nothing for himself, living in the utmost simplicity and preaching that only through self-suffering does good come.

However one may disapprove of his political activities, one cannot but pay tribute to the courage of this Hindu ascetic, "the same picture always of physical frailty and unconquerable spirit," who has challenged with "soul-force" the might of an Empire.

LONGING FOR PEACE.

I'd gladly see the scrapping of every gun and rifle. I'd see no war flags flapping, no legions on the hike; glad lays I would be crooning if swords made hooks for pruning, or instruments for tuning pianos and the like.

ALONG LIFE'S DETOUR

BY SAM HILL

Still Need Umbrellas We know 'tis true, That Kings no longer reign, And yet we find We still get plenty rain.
