LOCAL HOCKEYISTS ARE HANDICAPPED

By Not Having Ice For Practice—Things Dull So Far.

Between the weather and the elections, local hockey matters have been so held up that things are very dull in these circles and unless something is soon started the season will be on before half the teams are prepared. The lack of ice is a handicap not to be taken too lightly, when one considers that the local teams may be forced to meet teams which have been on good ice for over two months.

There promises to be a revival of the old City League this year. If the necessary teams can be formed up it will be a good thing, for last year showed what a small field the O.H.A. teams had to draw from. They could not muster anything better than what the Junior City series might once have brought forth and their games lacked interest accordingly. There is not much use crying to run teams without material and the only way to develop material is to form up junior organizations to teach the youngsters hockey.

What will develop with intermediate Frontenacs is yet to be seen. The nucleus of a good team is in the city but one weak point may spoil a team's season. However, Frontenacs have produced good teams from nothing before now and could do it again.

Queen's are better off than any of the local clubs. They have new material to choose from each year, sometimes some of the best in the province, and ample facilities for training and keeping an eye on their boys. With careful handling their junior team should this year go a long way in both the intercollegiate and the O.H.A.

In the intermediate and senior classes the tri-color is also fairly strong. The players who went through for the intercollegiate championship last winter are nearly all on the job again and two or three juniors, McKelvey among them, will move up to senior company for good on account of passing the age limit.

Roth Initiates Yankee Recruit. Like all ball players, Bobby Roth of New York Americans likes his base hits.

Possibly Bob is a little fonder than the ordinary athlete. There is no denying that Bob hits them hard when he connects.

Ball players have a lot of fun kidding him about his hitting, but never get very far, as Bob has a keen sense of humor.

Here is a story that got many a laugh last summer among the Yankees. It was published at the expense of a couple of recruits, and was so good that one of the recruits requested it in the club-house, thereby earning for Roth the recognition the quip merited.

As said before, Bob likes his base hits. The bunting game never had much of an appeal to Roth. He likes to take a healthy cut at the ball. Incidentally, Roth has always had a reputation of being a dangerous batsman.

When an opposing field is playing in close, Roth is a most undesirable person at the bat. He hits them so hard that, to use the slang of the ball field, "he is liable to knock you loose from your arms."

One day last summer Bob was walking down Broadway with a couple of youngsters. They passed a man who had lost both arms at the elbow. One of the recruits, who had seen service in the World War, remarked:

"I wonder how he was injured?"

Quick as a flash, Roth replied:

"He's an old-time ball player, a third-sacker. One day he came tearing in, thinking I was going to bunt. That's all there is to the story."

Then he stepped to the crub and pulled his watch to get the exact time it would take to have his remarks percolate.

And those National Hockey League magnates think they have mastered the art of publicity when the baseball moguls can make people believe that $75,000 was paid for the transfer of a Minor League player.

THE CURLING CLUB SKIPS

Selected for Ontario Tankard, District Cup, C.O.C.L. and Local Games.

At a meeting of the members of the Kingston curling club held on Friday evening the skips and rinks for the afternoon and evening games in the club series were selected. The skips elected for outside games were as follows: Ontario tankard—M. P. Reid and George Hanson. District cup—L. Sleeth and E. Green.

Senior Central Ontario Curling League—J. M. Elliott, F. Waugh, J. A. McRae and R. N. F. McFarlane. Junior Central Ontario Curling League—E. C. Gilderleeve, T. Copley and J. Matheson.

It was decided that the C. O. C. L. bonspiel would be held at Kingston commencing January 9th.

The curlers expect that providing there is cold weather there will be curling by the end of the week. The five sheets are ready for flooding and the ice makers expected to put on water this evening. Since the rink was moved it was decided to have the three centre sheets divided. For some years the three centre sheets were one sheet of ice. The dividing of the sheets will mean that in case one sheet goes bad it can be put in shape without interfering with the other two.

The skips and players for the club series are as follows. The name of skip appears first, vice-skip second player next and lead last.

"What's the matter with 'Varsity'?" asks the University of Montreal.

ICE CRYSTALS.

There are twelve senior hockey teams in Ottawa, and four in Toronto.

Dr. Howard Box, late of Queen's University and Kitchener, will coach the Arrnprior hockey team this season.

Frank Trushinski may not play for the Kitchener seniors this season. He has agreed to coach the Hamburg O.H.A. team.

The Falcons of Winnipeg, holders of the Memorial Cup, emblematic of the junior championship of Canada, will have few of last season's players to start this winter's campaign. Most of last year's champions have stepped up to senior ranks. Falcons defeated Stratford for the Dominion honors last season.

Pitre of the Canadiens, one of the wonder men of hockey, shows little signs of the wear and tear through many years of strenuous professional play. The right wing veteran is a great skater and is nearly as speedy as in the days that are gone when he could skate backwards and keep pace with the fastest men in the pro. league.

For Canada Only. An effort was made by the Pittsburgh Arena people to have Miss Gladys Robinson, the American skating champion, turn "pro" and give exhibitions. The idea behind this move was to finally arrange a match series with a professional lady skater of Switzerland, whose times compare about equal with Miss Robinson's. The plan was to have the races held as between the United States and Switzerland. But Miss Robinson refused, stating positively that she would skate only under the colors of Canada.
