To-morrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, DEC. 31.

The old year dies with a merry degree of liveliness animating all activities. Both social and other matters are under the impetus of a promising planetary spur, with the disposition to be bold and enterprising even to the point of rashness and impetuosity. This tumult should be curbed lest it lead to contention and litigious situations, since the rampant Mars rules, to the point of excesses of varying natures. In social celebration of the eventful day, this holds a warning. It may be found that old obstacles will break away and new operations be builded upon their foundations. Those in the employment of others are favored by the stars.

Those whose birthday it is have the assurance of a "happy and prosperous New Year" if they attend to affairs with calm judgment and welltempered dealings. Those in the employment of others are under excellent auspices. A child born on this French Huguenots Driven Into Exile day, although perhaps quick-tempered and difficult to manage, will be successful.

TRAVELED BY DEVIOUS WAYS

Correspondent Experienced Acute Diacomfort While on a Journey Through the Holy Land.

It is eight or nine miles, as I estimate, from the Euphrates to Constantinople, if one follows the course of the Bagdad railroad, whose track is laid a part of the way where the feet of the "ten thousand" had marched, where St. Paul had tramped in his first and second missionary journeys, and where Godfrey of Bouillon, Tanered, Baldwin, Raymond and Bohemond had passed, and Frederick the First had perished.

In my anabasis (if I may give my lonely expedition a name so ambitious and yet so contemned by many a youth) from the Euphrates toward Constantinople I had to make a circultous journey, as did St. Paul from Damascus, writes John H. Finley in July Scribner's. I went first from Aleppo to Damascus, then to Jerusalem, then to Halfa (near old Caesarea where St. Paul took ship), and then by sea to Belrut and Herina, on the coast of Asia Minor, a few miles from St. Paul's "home town" Tarsus, which was also the same town as that toward which Jonah sailed from Jaffa, when evading the call to Nineveh. But the reader would, I fear, find this an uncomfortable and perhaps a tiresome trip, even to read of, for I traveled most of the way in freight cars (of the type known to our soldiers in France, accommodating "forty-five hommes or eight chevaux") on a trawler (which was absolutely the most uncomfortable means of transportation that I had ever endured) and on a British "destroyer" which might very fitly have borne St. Paul's name before he changed it, in the days when he was "breathing out threatenings and slaughter."

There is a shorter and less indirect way, for, speaking generally, there is no direct way from one place to another in that part of the world. This is probably the reason why the street In Damascus called "Straight" got its distinguishing name.

SUFFERED FOR THEIR FAITH

by the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

The Huguenots were the Puritans of France in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. The name was first used about 1560; its origin is unknown. The Huguenots suffered severely in the reigns of Francis I and his immediate successors, and after 1562 were frequently involved in war, under the leadership of such men as That there is a constant demand Admirat Coligny and King Henry of 30,000 others fell in the massacre of St. Bartholomew, August 24, 1572. > China's ministry of the interior has telegraphed the following circular instructions to the Shenchangs and Tutungs all over the country, according to the Peking Daily News:

"It has been noticed that almos everybody in the country has indulged in the use of cigars or cigarettes, which will become a worse curse to the nation than opium in former days unless some restrictions are imposed. It is hereby decided that before taking up any measure for the total prohibition of its use, the following restrictions shall be imposed: First, no boy or girl under eighteen years of age shall be allowed to smoke cigars or cigarettes; second, any military or na val man using it shall be punished; third, the use of cigars and cigarettes in all government schools and colleges shall be strictly prohibited."-Far Eastern Bureau Bulletin.

Legislatore Must Work. A novel method of forcing aftend-

The suggestion is in the form of bill providing for payment per day to seputies instead of a lump sum every onth. Fallure to answer the roll call is equivalent to absence, and the neasure provides that no deputy shall receive his pay for days when he is beent from the regular somions.

"I had just graduated from the Normal College in Philadelphia as a kindergartner and was all-enthusiasm for my work. I had given some good lessons during the term in the School of Practise, and my principal had promised me a position in some public school for the early fall.

Coming home from business the evening of my graduation day, father announced the fact that he had taken a cottage at Atlantic City for the summer and he smiled on me saying. "Aren't you glad? You need a change of air and surroundings after your winter of hard study."

"No, I was not glad. I did not like Atlantic City in summer; least of all the life a cottage in Chelsea had to offer, so I began to think out a plan furdays. by which I could not only make the time pass quickly and pleasantly but also make it pay.

Mother, who was distinctly fore July, our starting time, about 50 letters had been sent to families that had children from the ages of 6 to 10 years, whom I knew would be at the shore during July and August.

These letters stated that I would conduct a "Story-Telling Class" on the beach three mornings a week from 9.30 to 11 o'clock; that I would call principal as reference as to my tages of the ocean breezes too.

ability to train children and spoke of my love for them. I explained that the time each morning would be divided into three periods of one half hour each-for healthful games. raffia and basket weaving, and stories about nature, history and folk-lore.

To be sure, my name was not entirely unfamiliar to many of these mothers so the responses were prompt and satisfactory. They passed the good word along to their friends and there were so many eager to give their little ones wholesome occupation at a place where the tendency was towards idleness that had to form two classes-one to meet on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and the other Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sat-
