To Wear Old Serge Dress

A Winnipeg despatch says when Miss MacPhail, Canada's first woman M.P., attends the formal opening of the first session of parliament, she will be gowned in her two-year-old serge dress, which she wore every day during her recent election campaign in Southeast Grey ridings, Ontario.

"It has been cleaned and remodeled, and I am saving it specially for the occasion, because I have a sentimental regard for it as it is my campaign dress," Miss MacPhail declared in an interview here.

Being the first woman member is a great responsibility, according to Miss MacPhail, because, to a certain extent, it is her duty to break any prejudice or traditions of the past which still exist.

"Since my election, or during my campaign, I have not met with much prejudice because I am a woman," she said. "If you have your subject in hand, the electors do not care whether you are a man or a woman, no matter what they say before they hear you speak," she declared.

When questioned about her plans, she said she was not a lobbyist, and had no special measure in mind which she wished to introduce into the house. "I believe that a change in the present economic system is necessary to give justice to the poor, and will support this principle at all times," she said.

Tea Room Salad.

A salad made with cranberry jelly is served at one of the tea rooms near the park and is made by cooking one quart of cranberries with one cup sugar and the juice of one lemon, half a cup of sugar, half a teaspoon of cloves, half a teaspoon of cinnamon and one teaspoon of granulated gelatine dissolved in a little water and melted over hot water. Pour into small wet moulds and place in the ice box to harden. When wanted unmould on a bed of shredded lettuce, place on top of each salad a spoonful of whipped cream. Serve with a lemon French dressing.

If coal is kept in a dry, airy place it will burn much better than if placed in a close, poorly ventilated cellar. Coal that is excluded from the air soon gets rid of its gas, and the absence of this renders it more wasteful when burned. After all, there's nothing worth worrying about.

ADDRESS BY MRS. JOSEPH

To the Kingston Conservative Women's Association on Friday Afternoon.

"It is a joy to me to be in Kingston. I love Kingston people and I hope some Kingston people love me," said Mrs. Henry Joseph, president of the Montreal Women's National Liberal-Conservative Association, speaking before an audience of women on Friday afternoon gathered in Garden Hall under the auspices of the Kingston Women's Conservative Association. Mrs. Joseph, who was indeed welcome in her old home, spoke of the responsibility given to women with the franchise, of the inspiration the life of Sir John Macdonald, one of Canada's greatest statesmen, to the women of his old constituency. "Kingston women get what they want usually," she said, "I fully expect to see a woman representing Kingston in parliament yet." The gift of the franchise brought its responsibility to every woman to learn to vote intelligently, and the speaker, though she made it plain she had never been a suffragette, said she felt women would supply their share to the perfect and complete government of the future. Legislation affecting women and children would be their special province and their entrance into the arena of politics would make for purity in the political world.

"With women in the government we will have no more wars, we who have brought children into the world, cared for them and seen them grow to manhood, value life more than men."

Mrs. Joseph has recently returned from the devastated area of France where she saw rows upon rows of little crosses, and said she had thought how many more rows of them there would have been, and how many more aching hearts at home if Canada had failed to send reinforcements in 1917.

Mrs. G. Hunter Ogilvie, who has been re-elected president of the Conservative Women's Association, introduced the speaker, who was given a hearty vote of thanks at the conclusion of her eloquent address. Miss W. Gordon spoke of the necessity of women studying the political questions of the day.

Tea was served from two tables where silver, china and feathered primulae lent a home-like air. Mrs. Charles McKay, Mrs. W. J. Vince, Mrs. John Sowards and Mrs. William Cook pouring tea, assisted by members of the association.

Luncheon Fruit Roll. For lunch the other day we had a fruit roll, served hot with a custard sauce; this was made by sifting two cups of flour with three teaspoons of baking powder and adding half a cup of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, one well-beaten egg and two-thirds of a cup of milk. Mix all to a smooth dough and roll out on a well-floured board to one-quarter inch thick. Spread with half a cup of soft butter, half a cup of chopped seeded raisins, half a cup of chopped blanched almonds, three peeled and cored apples chopped very fine and sprinkle over all the grated rind of one lemon and one teaspoon of cinnamon. Roll up lightly as for jelly roll and place in a baking pan, brush with melted butter or milk and bake in a quick oven.

"My face was a mass of pimples and I had an unusual amount on my forehead and chin. They were hard and red and later they came to white heads. They itched so I would rub them, and then they started to burn and hurt. I saw an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and tried them and found they helped me. I purchased more and when I had used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and one and a half boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Anna Fyalks, Carroll, Wash., Dec. 5, 1919. HOW TO MAKE MONEY.

Few women are averse to making pin money. It doesn't matter whether they need it or not. There is special pleasure in spending money one has made through one's own initiative and resources. Each day there will appear on this page one of a series of suggestions on making money. Each article will give women readers of The Whig an idea that may be turned into a money-maker.

No. 70—Typewriting. Which must be considered. First, you must have a first-class typewriter with desk, a comfortable chair or two and a copy-holder. You can often make a beginning by renting desk room in the office of some man who is willing to take pay in work provided you have not money enough to open an office of your own at the start. You should be able to pay your rent for at least three months in advance. You should have a desk, a table, a dictionary and several chairs besides the furniture which you would purchase if renting desk room only. As you see, you would need several hundred dollars for a start you will do best to get into an office building where most of the tenants are young business men for a good many of them have not sufficient business to warrant them in purchasing a typewriter and employing someone to operate it. At first you will have to send out cards and circular letters soliciting work and perhaps do a little advertising in order to let it be known where you are and what you are prepared to do.

To-morrow's HOROSCOPE By Genevieve Kemble SUNDAY AND MONDAY, JAN. 15-16TH. Sunday's astrological forecast is on the whole rather favorable, although it will be wise to beware of treachery and to safeguard the money, especially from extravagant expenditures or pleasurable indulgences. Those whose birthday it is have a rather fortunate year to anticipate, but they should not spend their money carelessly. A child born on this day may be inclined to waste its money on personal indulgence unless well trained. It will be rather fortunate.

Monday's horoscope holds figures which advise against important change, removal or travelling. It also points to the hazard of speculation of the free use of money in the pursuit of pleasure, in self-indulgence or gambling. By keeping quiet and attending carefully to business matters may hold their own. Those whose birthday it is have the promise of a year calling for attention to matters in hand, and the avoidance of all manner of risk through foolish expenditure or self-indulgence. Avoid removal, change, travel and speculation, the stellar wise men say. A child born on this day will be industrious, but may be disposed to change and rove about.

RECEIVES RECOGNITION Paris, Jan. 14.—One of the youngest heroines of the war has just been honored by France. She is Helene Jacquemin, of Fontherne, up near the Belgian border. When the Germans swarmed over the frontier, Helene, who was then ten years old, and her brother acted as liaison officers between her father, to whom the French commander had confided an important mission, and the French army.

The Germans swept through, driving the French on toward the Marne. Helene's father was killed in action. Her brother was arrested and held before a summary German court-martial, charged with aiding the French forces, although he was not a combatant. Helene was threatened with death by the Germans unless she revealed the modus operandi of her father. The little girl of the Ardennes refused. Here is what the official citation, "a horde de l'armee," which has just been published, says: "She refused to utter a word in reply to the questions of the German officers. In spite of the threats of the prosecuting officials, she did not furnish a single piece of information which might have put our enemies on the track of her father's collaborators."

Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation Army is well known as an orator, but not so well known is the fact that she is a poet and musician as well, and has written and composed a number of songs.

That a London despatch says English girls are recovering from the masculinity forced on them by the war. The mannish woman was never very popular, and such compliments as that of a young man who told his good-looking tennis partner that she played "like a thwarted woman" did their work. Eight in ten women in recent days in Hyde Park are declared to have been riding side-saddle.

That the French modistes are drawing their inspiration from the Orient and the spring will see the straight lines, wide saas, and flowing sleeves of the Japanese "Obe," somewhat moderated to suit western ideas. That the Victorian Order of Nurses committee is to be congratulated on the election of Mrs. Samuel Crawford as their president. Mrs. Crawford is herself a graduate nurse, and therefore will bring an understanding sympathy to bear upon the work so splendidly carried on and so appreciated by the citizens of Kingston of the capable V. O. Nurses. That when a certain type of ultra-modern female displays what she calls her "frankness" other persons think she is merely giving an exhibition of her bad bringing-up. That before giving advice we should be sure we have made it desired. That a New York professor has this sign on his door for callers: "Be brief. Remember the hit the short skirts made."
