

SCHOOL STUDY SPORTS

THE JUNIOR BRITISH WHIG

BIGGEST LITTLE PAPER IN THE WORLD

HUMOR PLAY WORK

HINTS FOR THE MOTORIST

Albert L. Clough

Tire-Chain "Tips"

Overight Chains Work Better With Tire Treads

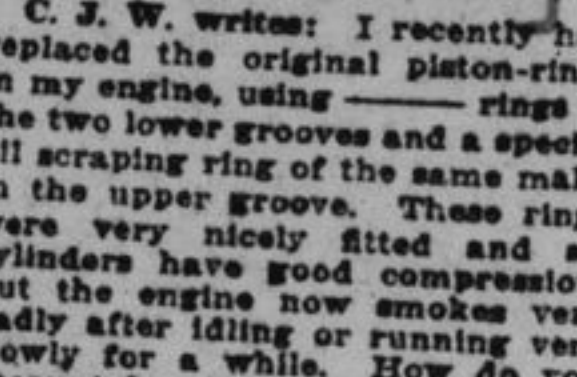

NEVER ON ANY CONSIDERATION, adjust a chain so tightly that it is not perfectly free on the tire and able to creep around it...

REPLACING NOISY TIMING GEARS

C. R. C. writes: I have an old but serviceable car the timing gears of which have never been replaced...

NEW RINGS, BUT ENGINE SMOKES BADLY

C. J. W. writes: I recently had replaced the original piston-rings in my engine, using rings in the two lower grooves and a special oil scraping ring...

ONE REEL YARNS

THE GETAWAY

"No, I'm not going anywhere to-night," said Phil carelessly. "I have a lot of problems to do and I'm going to stay up in my room and do them."

"Me too," answered Stanley. "I'm going to stay home and give the books a chance. So long. See you later."

"Thank goodness," breathed Phil, as he went into his room. "I'm rid of him. I hated to tell him that, but if I said I was going out with some other fellows he'd be sore. We all ways go around together. I hate to leave him out. He's such a stick-around."

Phil sat down to wait a few minutes; his wraps still on, until he was sure Stanley was inside his room. He and Stanley had been chums in high school and now they were at school together and had rooms in the same house. Phil was beginning to be tired of his old friend, though, and was always trying to "ditch" him, without hurting his feelings.

Thinking he had waited long enough, Phil opened his door cautiously and peered out. As he did so, the door to Stanley's room started to open, as Phil ducked back. He didn't want to run any risk of his friend seeing him about to come out for a drink or to use the phone in the hall. Again Phil waited. Then he opened the door and looked again. The coast seemed clear. He got his hat, and then backed out, very slowly closing the door quite softly, and stepping on tiptoe.

He thought he heard something, and he whirled about quickly. There, at the end of the hall, Stanley, still wearing his wraps, was tiptoeing towards the stairs.

HE PARTED HIS HAIR IN THE MIDDLE

Practice Long Shooting, Too. The next step is to learn to shoot a basket without having the ball touch the backboard.

Learn next to shoot baskets from a radius of about fifteen feet. Here you will find that the loop shot is more successful than a bank shot.

Long shooting is the next thing to practice. Stand twenty-five or thirty feet from the basket and toss the ball. Never make a long shot without following it up.

PLAYING BASKET BALL

FORWARD

By A. F. Hammesfahr

All-around Basket Ball Star; Basketball Chairman, Amateur Athletic Federation; President Athletic Officials Association, Chicago District.

"You don't have to be wonderfully developed physically to start playing basket ball," says Mr. Hammesfahr. "That will come with the playing of the game. Just get out with the other fellows and help put the ball in your basket."

Should you be preparing to play the position of forward on a basket ball team, as many moments of your spare time as possible should be utilized in shooting baskets. A forward's main duty is to do the scoring for his team.

At first, practice should consist of throwing the ball through the loop at close range. Pick out an imaginative spot on the backboard and throw at this spot so that the ball will rebound at an angle and fall through the loop.

The little black cross on the backboard is the spot picked out by the basket shooter. The ball should bounce from this spot through the basket.

Practice Long Shooting, Too. The next step is to learn to shoot a basket without having the ball touch the backboard.

Learn next to shoot baskets from a radius of about fifteen feet. Here you will find that the loop shot is more successful than a bank shot.

Long shooting is the next thing to practice. Stand twenty-five or thirty feet from the basket and toss the ball. Never make a long shot without following it up.

Following it up. If the basket is missed you still have a chance to recover the ball and take a shorter follow-up shot. The follow-up shot should not be used after a long shot only, however. Follow all of your shots.

The best shot for the basket is made from the chest and upward. It is the hardest for an opponent to guard. The figure on the extreme right of our picture shows how the ball is held. Get your hands well in back of the ball so you get full results from the force of your push.

Take Much Exercise. Practice dribbling. Do considerable running to develop your leg muscles. Jump rope; swing clubs; exercise with pulley weights; go through setting-up exercises that combine arm and leg movement; take all kinds of exercise that will limber you up, for if any player on the team must be quick of movement, it is the forward.

There is a type of forward who, realizing that it is his duty to do the ball to another player, though he is so closely covered by the opposing guards that his shot at the basket will be useless.

Don't be that kind of a forward. Let some one else have a chance at the basket if you see that he is more likely to score than you are.

Next week Mr. Hammesfahr will write the last article of this series. The subject will be the position of Guard.

TODAY'S PUZZLE

Curtail a kind of feather and leave a fruit.

Curtail to frown and leave a kind of boat.

Curtail a portable lodge and leave a numeral.

Solutions to-morrow.

Fair Exchange.

Many striking instances of the sagacity of animals are given in Mr. H. T. Massingham's new book, "Dogs, Birds, and Others." The following are given as true stories of a young fox terrier, Billy, who was a Devonshire dog, has a dog friend who lives next door, and is regularly supplied with bones, while Billy is expected to lead the simple life on small puppy biscuits.

The two dogs apparently put their noses together and arranged a regular system of exchange of diet, which he continued for over six months to their mutual satisfaction. One day Billy was presented by his friend's mistress with two especially luscious chop-bones.

He accepted them with evident gratitude, and, trotting off, returned with five puppy biscuits, which he laid at the feet of his benefactor. A truly generous rate of payment. At another time Billy developed a habit of saving from his supper two biscuits which he presented to his master and mistress when they came down to breakfast next morning. When a visitor arrived Billy took no notice of her for one or two mornings, but then, evidently feeling that he had been lacking in hospitality, he saved three biscuits, and the visitor had her share as long as she remained.

And the bottom of a cup of joy is seldom far from the top.

AND DAD WAS MAD

"Just tell him I am out of town," said dad to little Hector.

"That's one good way to turn 'em down—'em only a collector."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

A little later someone called to pay his dad some help.

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

"He's out of town," young Hector stalled. "He told me so himself."

THE PLAY MAN'S GAMES

By E. D. ANGELL

Illustrated by C. H. WINSOR

BOSTON

Dear Sneezy: Well we had a party, sneezy, and it was at Miriam Modest's house. It was her birthday and, hardly, if every did I ever go to a place where there was so many different kinds of things to eat. She got lots of presents, for when you go to a birthday party you get lots of presents to whose birthday it is. I would have brought a better present for Miriam when I got thirty-five cents moved up it was the last day that Donny's father was to be at the dinner. It cost seventeen cents. That only left eighteen cents and I got a banknote with an X on it to stand for her name, and so if she had it she would know it was hers. That left three cents over.

Whenever any one in the neighborhood has a party, you'll find Chip and Tubby and all the other "game" on hand, having a great time. This week in his letter to Sneezy about Miriam Modest's party, Chip tells about a new game they played—Boston. Like all of the other games, Boston is a top-notch. Just try it.

It is to have two rows of chairs, and all the kids sit down but one, and he is in the middle. Everybody has a number. If thirteen play the game I is the lowest and 13 is the highest number. The boy in the center is blind-folded and he calls out two numbers like 5 and 2, or 6 and 4, or any other two numbers under the high number.

The kids who have their numbers called must change seats, and if the one in the middle catches one who is trying to grab a new place, that one is it.

Every now and then the one in the middle "blows," and that means that all the kids must change seats, and while they are making a grand rush the one who is in it tries to get an easy seat, and if he does the one who is left out and don't get a seat is it.

We had an awful lot of fun playing this, Sneezy, only some times you would sit in a girl's lap. Not on purpose, but by accident. Some laugh then, Sneezy.

Your friend, your truly, CHIP.

There was both boys and girls at the party. That kind of a party is nice, only you get to be all dressed up. You shake hands with the folks when you come, and say to the one who has the party, "Many happy returns of the day."

All you guys sit together and all the girls sit together and all the fun we had at first was pushing Paddy and Kelly around and getting their noses and glances and whaps. It's much better when the setting starts, but before we had the setting we played a game and it was a course. If you have parties it is lots of fun and you can play it.

It's called Boston. The way you do is to have two rows of chairs, and all the kids sit down but one, and he is in the middle. Everybody has a number. If thirteen play the game I is the lowest and 13 is the highest number. The boy in the center is blind-folded and he calls out two numbers like 5 and 2, or 6 and 4, or any other two numbers under the high number.

The kids who have their numbers called must change seats, and if the one in the middle catches one who is trying to grab a new place, that one is it.

Every now and then the one in the middle "blows," and that means that all the kids must change seats, and while they are making a grand rush the one who is in it tries to get an easy seat, and if he does the one who is left out and don't get a seat is it.

A great many people have an idea that the Reward of Virtue is not worth collecting.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Singing Sand. Now that so many people have recently been taking their holidays at the seaside, we hear a lot of the sea-bird mysteries of nature. For example, there is "Singing Sand." In various parts of the world there have been discovered sands that when rubbed together, or otherwise set in motion, give out distinct and sometimes quite loud notes. This sand, if stirred with a stick, produces a deep note, which varies from a shrill whistle to a noise like the baying of a hound. A low bell-like note arises when the sand is placed in a cup which is hit smartly with a stick. The first tune of the sea was discovered in the island of Elgg, off the West of Scotland. It is generally believed that the sound is due to the rubbing together of millions of grains of sand of a certain shape.

Ambition is merely a nightmare preceded by a deep slumber and followed by a rude awakening. Why should a tax collector have a high opinion of human nature? You May Have Kidney Trouble And Not Know It. If your back aches and you suffer from dragging pains, it is an evidence that your kidneys may not be acting just right. What you need is a course in Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They contain both Mandrake and Butterbur and act very beneficially upon the liver and kidneys. "I was bothered a great deal with my kidneys, but got quick relief from Dr. Hamilton's Pills. My trouble manifested itself by pain in the back and by constant headache. I quickly recovered after using a few boxes of Dr. Hamilton's Pills." "I brought me health, strength and vigor." Sold everywhere. Price, 25c. or The Catarthorone Co., of Montreal.

David said in his haste that all men were liars. It would have sounded better had he taken time to say that they were diplomats.

A pessimist thinks it is an ill wind that blows anybody any good but himself. An optimist doesn't care whether it is windy or not.

Automotive Equipment. Tourists' Bureau. Manufacturers' Agents. Accessories. Phone 515W. G. V. DREDGE. 100 Brock St., Kingston, Ont. R. H. M'RAES.

PLUMBING WORK DONE RIGHT. For Plumbing and Heating Equipment, let us give a price on your work. Contract and Job Work given first-class attention. H. APPLETON. 417 PRINCESS STREET Phone 515W.

FOR SALE. Frame house, 7 rooms, 4 bedrooms, electric lights, 3 piece bath, private driveway. This is a real bargain if sold within 10 days. Good location. Price $2,600. M. B. TRUMPOUR. 111 1/2 BROCK STREET. PHONE 704 or 1461W.

Forty Attractive Government and Municipal Bonds. In view of the pronounced shortage of high grade bonds, our new bond list, which offers a selection of forty Government and Municipal bonds, should prove of unusual interest to investors. This list includes several Provincial issues as well as a number of attractive long and short term bonds issued by substantial Ontario Municipalities. Copy gladly mailed upon request. Wood, Gundy & Co. Montreal 26 King St. West Toronto New York London, Eng.

FURS. Gourdier's. BROCK STREET.

SPECIAL PRICE ON BRISCOE TOURING CARS. We offer THREE ONLY new, model 4-34 Standard Black Touring Cars for PRICE of $995.00 each, delivered Kingston, free of all charges. This is a reduction of $600 a car—equal to or lower than a pre-war price. Sixty of these Cars were sold in Toronto, at this price, in two days. We have only three and they will be sold to the first three buyers. See them at our Garage. ANGLIN BROS. BAY STREET KINGSTON, ONTARIO.

FORD. RUSH DELIVERIES WITH A FORD SPEED TRUCK. When a customer phones in a rush order do you deliver it "as soon as you can" or "right away?" There's a world of difference in the effect it has on your customer. These "as soon as you can" deliveries are all right for your competitor, but mighty poor business for you. A Ford Speed Truck with canopy top body and 30-35 miles an hour gait, will ensure every order reaching your customer on time, undamaged by dust, rain or snow. Your cash register will show in no uncertain fashion how people appreciate such a service. VanLuvén Bros. Phone 1609. 34-38 Princess Street.