PROF. A. E. ZIMMERN LECTURES AT QUEEN'S

On the World After the War
—Attended Washington Conference.

Professor A. E. Zimmern, of the London School of Economics, who is lecturing at Queen's on "The World after the War," gave the first of his series of three lectures, to a large audience in convocation hall Tuesday evening. The address, on the new strategic and economic situation of the world from one who is decidedly an authority on the subject of international relations, was heard with interest by the audience, and a discussion was encouraged by the lecturer a number of the university professors at the close of the lecture had questions answered by Prof. Zimmern. The speaker came to Queen's direct from the Washington Conference on Disarmament, and brought a lot of light on the results to be expected from this conference. Prof. John Watson introduced the speaker as one of the most brilliant political scientists in the English-speaking world.

The lecturer in opening pointed out that the world had changed more during the past eight years than in any period of the same length of time in its previous history. The war, the speaker stated, was really a siege of the part of Europe of the materials necessary for civilization and which had to be brought into the country, the navy of the allies really by its supremacy decided the struggle. The victorious generals of the war were really those of cotton, wool, rubber, nickel, and the other materials which Germany has to import. The lessons which might be learned from the war Prof. Zimmern classified as, firstly, the interdependence of the modern world, for neither war nor civilization can exist in the fact of a blockade; secondly, the war was also a demonstration of the supreme value of sea power. The effect of this blockade has been that the people of Germany know that they are dependent on the British navy for their existence. An alliance between Germany and Russia is impossible for this reason. The lecturer quoted statistics to show that the United States was also in a similar position as it was to certain extent dependent on other parts of the world for its imports of very necessary materials. The speaker declared that the real sanction of the treaty of Versailles was not the French army but the British navy as the Germans feared the blockade of their ports.

To defend Britain's naval supremacy as a necessity has become more difficult of late years, the lecturer stated. It was stated that an account of the geographical situation of the empire's dominions it was needed but now it is shown that this also applies to the European countries which to secure their existence must protect their traders bringing in the necessities of civilization. The attempt of naval balance of power made by Germany was defeated but at Washington has been formulated the doctrine of co-operation each nation recognizing that sea power is for mutual service and protection. The agreement for disarmament had to bring with it an agreement for protection of the countries participating in the agreement and so the Pacific pact was suggested. This the lecturer remarked, was really so far merely a gentleman's agreement for mutual protection. On account of the fact that the Mediterranean could not be dealt with at the Washington meeting the speaker predicted that in the future the Mediterranean powers will come together and draw up a similar agreement, when France will be able to gain what she desires but was not able to get at the recent conference as more power were not representative.

As the navies are now using oil as fuel and syndicates practically control the oil wealth of the world the speaker saw in this the cause of quarrels in the future. Some kind of international control taking this out of the hands of private concerns would have to be decided if the peace of the world be maintained. This has been a sore question between Britain and the United States. The lecturer also impressed on his hearers the responsibility the Canadians have with 86 per cent of the world's supply of nickel in Ontario. In closing Prof. Zimmern briefly spoke of the advisability of the adoption of a policy for trade which will abolish discriminations between nations, which only lead to friction. It was all right to be a protectionist, the speaker stated, but be "equal to all" was his suggestion. A vote of thanks moved by Dr. O. D. Skelton was heartily approved by the appreciative audience.

Buying Two Vessels.
The George Hall Coal & Transportation Co., a well known St. Lawrence river forwarding concern, is carrying on negotiations for the purchase of two new steel vessels of maximum Welland canal size for operation between the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Chicago during the coming season. The new boats will be equipped for salt water as well as inland service. The fleet of the company now consists of 15 steamers, three tugs and two barges.

Has Many Duties.
The council of the village of Westport has appointed Jerry Steele to be constable, street commissioner, sanitary inspector, school attendance officer, pound keeper, dog tax collector, an officer to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act, and caretaker of the town hall and the other municipal buildings at a salary of $209.

A CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD

Previous Good Record and Friends Saved Youth From Getting a Term.

A previous good character, and a host of friends ready to speak a good word in his behalf, saved a young man from a sentence in the police court on Wednesday morning. The young fellow could not resist temptation the other day, and stole some articles that did not belong to him—and from relatives too.

Constable Thomas Mullinger was given the case, and he succeeded in rounding up the guilty party and also recovered the stolen goods. Magistrate Farrell stated that he had given the case some consideration, and in view of the previous good record of the accused and the fact that friends asked for leniency, he had decided to allow him to go on suspended sentence, and he hoped that he would take advantage of the chance given him. The accused thanked the magistrate for the chance.

There was another theft case on the docket, and it had a very sad touch in it, in that the accused, also a young man, is not right mentally. He has been stealing money and cheques, and a physician, who gave evidence, told the magistrate that the prisoner was not accountable for his actions, and that he should be cared for in some institution. The magistrate enlarged the case to make arrangements for the care of the prisoner. The latter was taken into custody by Constable Mullinger after several complaints had been made by citizens.

Oddfellows, Attention!

Coming To Kingston.
It was learned on Wednesday that Kingstonians would have the opportunity of hearing the world's famous pianist in the person of Leopold Godowsky, who would appear in Kingston on Friday evening, January 20th at the city hall, for one night only. At the present time this wonderful player is performing in Massey hall, Toronto.

The Late Miss Boyce.
The funeral of the late Miss Susan Boyce took place from the residence of her brother-in-law, William Purcell, 25 Upper Charles street, on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. J. J. Laidlaw officiating. The pall bearers were relatives of the deceased, James Reid, undertaker, was in charge of the funeral.

Visitors to Algonquin Park.
Recent arrivals at the Highland Inn, Algonquin Park, included Miss A. M. Currie, from Kingston.

The death occurred on Tuesday of Mrs. Elizabeth Doyle at the home of her son-in-law, Owen O'Brien, Belleville, after an illness extending over the past six months. She was born in L. nadale sixty-three years ago and was the widow of the late James Doyle, who died about nine years ago. A daughter, Mrs. J. Bradshaw, lives in Kingston.

The meetings of the Retail Merchants' Association at the Y.M.C.A. are absorbing the time of the staff at the institution, and as a result all classes and games were cancelled at the "Y" last evening. It is hoped to have some of the regular games tonight.

Belleville may use unemployed men in keeping the channel of the Moira river open and prevent floods in the spring.
