LIBERAL CANDIDATE

Robert Fawcett Elliott

Chairman of the Utilities Commission

Mr. Elliott has given his time without reserve and has applied his energies in the services of the people of Kingston in expanding and extending their water, gas and electric plants until to-day they have one of the most efficient and best managed plants in the whole country.

Even in the face of ever rising prices the electric and water rates have been reduced until these necessities are within the reach of all the people.

The man who has served you so well at home is the man to serve you in the Legislature at Toronto.

William Folger Nickle

Political Free Lance.

Always in opposition to all political parties.

Opportunity knocked at his door in 1917 when the Citizens of Kingston in no uncertain terms gave him a mandate to proceed to Ottawa. How did he requite that trust? By differing with all political parties and resigning before his term was half completed.

Weighed in the balance of political life and found wanting. His opportunity has gone, never to return.

The Kingston curlers were the winners of the games played with the Detroit curlers at the local rink on Monday afternoon and evening by a score of 41 to 38. The visiting curlers arrived in the city on Monday afternoon and proceeded to the rink where two games were played with Kingston rinks skipped by F. Waugh and S. R. Bailey. Skip Waugh won from Skip Duffield by a score of 10 to 4, and Skip S. R. Bailey won from Skip N. R. Cornwall by a score of 11 to 8. In the evening games the Kingston rink skipped by M. P. Reid lost to N. Cornwall by a score of 12 to 9. J. P. Macdonald's rink of Kingston also met defeat by a score of 14 to 11. The visiting curlers left on the midnight train for the west. H. Travers who played on one of the Detroit rinks was formerly manager of one of the banks in Nanapan. The rinks were:

The Kingston junior rinks skipped by J. Matheson and E. C. Gilderale defeated the Belleville curlers in the Central Ontario curling league games at the local rink on Monday evening by a score of 37 to 29. Skip Matheson won from Skip McCurdy by a score of 17 to 13 and Skip P. C. Gilderale won from Skip Hardjig by 20 to 13. It had been expected that Belleville would bring down three junior rinks. ### Rockwood Will Play Brockville.

The Rockwood curlers, who have not been very active for the past few years, have been admitted to the senior series of the Central Ontario Curling League. The first games will be played on Wednesday morning at the Rockwood rink when Brockville and Rockwood curlers will meet. In the afternoon Brockville will play the Kingston curlers.

Will Leave on Saturday.

The Queen's senior hockey team which will meet McGill in Montreal on Saturday evening in the second game of the senior intercollegiate hockey series will not leave Kingston until Saturday noon and will arrive ### in Montreal about 5.30 o'clock.

In years past the team would leave on Friday. The reason for the change is on account of the financial conditions at the university. The athletic board has been put to a great expense in building the new rink, and every effort is being made to save money.

Policemen Stirred Up.

Word received at police headquarters on Tuesday morning that the firemen had declared that they could put it all over the policemen at a game of hockey, and as a result the "cops" are right on their ear over the matter, and say they are ready to take on Chief Armstrong's "smoke eaters" during their spare time. The firemen had a practice match on Monday, and it is stated that when they were sounded for the end of the first period, the fireman ran to the station, thinking there was a fire. This seems rather hard to believe, but nevertheless they say it is true. The policemen are busy figuring on their lineup. "Tom" Mulligan is slated for goal, and is to be provided with a suit of fly paper to help stop all the shots. "Tom" will watch the nets like he watches all evil-doers. The police have a star in the person of one, Casterton, and they are pinning their faith on him to lead the team to victory. They have the celebrated Clark brothers, Leslie and Fred, for the defence, with Constable Hornbeck as an all round man with experience in some of the big town leagues, not to forget "Nick" Timmerman, Leslie Armstrong, Fitzgerald and Vernon Campbell, all good stickholders and fast men.

Bill Box Out for Season.

It is very likely that Bill Box, manager of the Kitchener O.H.A. section, will be out of the game for the rest of the season. The injury to Box's foot in the Granite game in Toronto last Friday night may necessitate the placing of the limb in a cast. Two X-rays were made, one showing a broken bone, while the other disclosed no apparent breaks.

Verona Eaters Protest.

E. F. Elliott secretary of the Frontenac senior hockey association, has received a formal protest entered by Verona against the game played with Sydenham on the Sydenham rink on Saturday night on the ground that Sydenham played a man who was not eligible according to a ruling of the executive made on Jan. 21st. The player was Art Lee. Sydenham won the game by a score of 11 to 2, but it was well known that Art Lee was not eligible.

Belleville Wins Group.

By defeating Cornwall by a score of 11 to 8 on Monday evening, Belleville won the eastern group of the Intermediate O.H.A. It had been thought that Cornwall might pull out a victory and give Queen's intermediates a chance of getting into the race. The Belleville team, which is one of the finest outfits seen on Kingston ice in years, will certainly keep the western teams hustling to defeat them.

Policemen vs. Firemen.

Today it is hockey, hockey, hockey, wherever you go. Some people tell about it and dream about it. Even the policemen and firemen of Kingston are at it. For some time the members of the Kingston police force have been talking about their fine team. This got Chief Armstrong's freighters going, and now they have organized a team and are ready to take on Chief Robinson's "Rats" any time for fun, money or marbles. The firemen were out to practice ### on Monday, so it was feared by a

Whig reporter, and it is stated that they handled their sticks even better than they do their hose, while their speed is on a par with the speed of the fire horses. The rail birds declared that when the firemen and Kingston's "Inest" stack up against each other the contest will be worth going miles to see.

Young Irishmen Champions.

The A. O. H. team has resigned from the senior series of the city league, and as a result the Young Irishmen are winners of group B on points. These two teams were to play on Wednesday for the group championship, but the former team has become broken up, forcing their management to retire from the series.

EIGHTEEN INCHES OF SNOW.

In the Woods—Roads Are Good For Drawing Wood.

Vennacher, Jan. 23.—Farmers require the roads in good condition for drawing wood and marsh hay. There is about 18 inches of snow in the woods. Stanley Gregg has a job cutting and drawing pulp wood. He cuts it in G. W. Jackson's swamp and delivers it on Lacksie creek. G. M. Bebee made a business trip to Lavant Station this week. Miss Emma Gregg accompanied her sister, Mrs. Ezra Lloyd, to Kingston to spend the winter months. Mr. and Mrs. William Beverly, Matawahan, are visiting at Solomon Bebee's. Mr. and Mrs. William Bailey, Mountain Grove, are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bebee, this week.

Tonight "Boob McNutt."

The many lovers of musical comedy will have their findings at the Grand Opera House tonight when Rube Goldberg's sparkling musical novelty, "Boob McNutt," will hold forth. The screamingly funny musical comedy is based on the popular attracted musical play, which is in two acts, with original and interpolated songs, dances and music, is said to be playing to packed houses everywhere. The management promises a most gorgeous and extravagant scenic production and stunning costumes which are said to be the smartest and latest French creations. The character of "Boob McNutt" in itself is sufficient guarantee that all that ensues, proceeds and develops, will be excruciatingly funny. "Boob" gets into all sorts of scrapes, much to the delight and merriment of the audience. A smart cast will be seen in the leading roles, supplemented by a chorus of winsome young girls.

Reck Stock Co.

The bill of the Grand for the last 3 days of this week promises to be one of the best comedies that the Rex Stock Company has yet produced. It is the laughable and yet interesting story of an ordinary "Drummer" or Travelling Salesman for whom this play is named. "Bob" the drummer in question finds himself stranded at Grand Junction, (yes the town looks just as it sounds) and meets the charming little station agent, played by Miss Vaughn. Of course they fall in love at first sight. During the second act Bob discovers that some unscrupulous men are trying to do both out of her land that she has fought all her life to hold on to. In his endeavor to save her from these men he himself goes in wrong with the girl in question, and it takes the rest of this delightful play to straighten things out. Everyone of the company appear in this play to even the Park Kiddies, who appear as the funny little country kids that got into everything they shouldn't around the station. The scenery is well worthy of mention, in the first act, the station in the One Horse Town is a work of art. The other three acts are well mounted, the way they should be. All lovers of the grand old game of poker will enjoy the five-handed game in the second act.

photoplay written directly for the screen by Katharine Newlin Burt. House Peters plays the role of a lumber camp foreman who has known only the association of men and is dumb in the presence of the woman he loves, Allan Forest as a girl love-maker wins the girl but soon proves his utter unworthiness. The girl is admirably played by Fritzi Brunette. How the situation finally becoming unbearable to the girl, is resolved, furnishes one of the most thrilling climaxes seen on the screen in a long time. "The Man From Lost River" is a Frank Lloyd production.—Adv.

EXPOSITORY PREACHING

Presbyterian Witness.

In summoning the church to a ministry of Biblical exposition, Dr. W. G. Jordan has performed a signal service for the cause of true religion. In the preface of his little book—"The Challenge of the Book"—of which a notice appears elsewhere in this issue, Professor Jordan says: "The following pages are written by one who during several years of regular pastoral service learned that, both for preacher and people, it is important that careful exposition of the Sacred Scriptures should form a considerable portion of the weekly deliverances from the pulpit. Since that time the writer has spent many years in the study and teaching of the Old Testament and this experience has only confirmed the earlier conviction." And further, "In these days when the whole church service is only about the length of the sermons that were delivered to previous generations, it is seldom possible to attempt comment upon and exposition of the Scripture lessons, so there is all the more need that the expository sermon or lecture should not lose its place."

In his plea for expository preaching Dr. Jordan is just going back to the apostolic method, and back of that to the example of Christ Himself. Jesus' first recorded discourse was an exposition of a passage in the Prophets. He commended the searching of the Scriptures, and out of Moses and the Prophets he expounded in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself. The discourses of Peter, of Paul, of the evangelists, Stephen and Philip, were expositions of the Scriptures. The Bereans were commended for their willingness to search the Scriptures and to test the new teaching by this divine standard.

One obvious and great advantage of expository preaching is its authoritativeness. It carries with it the conviction of a "Thus saith the Lord." Sermons may be eloquent and earnest, but if they express only the views of the preacher they do not bear the authority of a divine message. Today, as in the early days of Christianity, and in the times of the Prophets, the effect of the message is in proportion to the conviction that it has back of it divine authority.

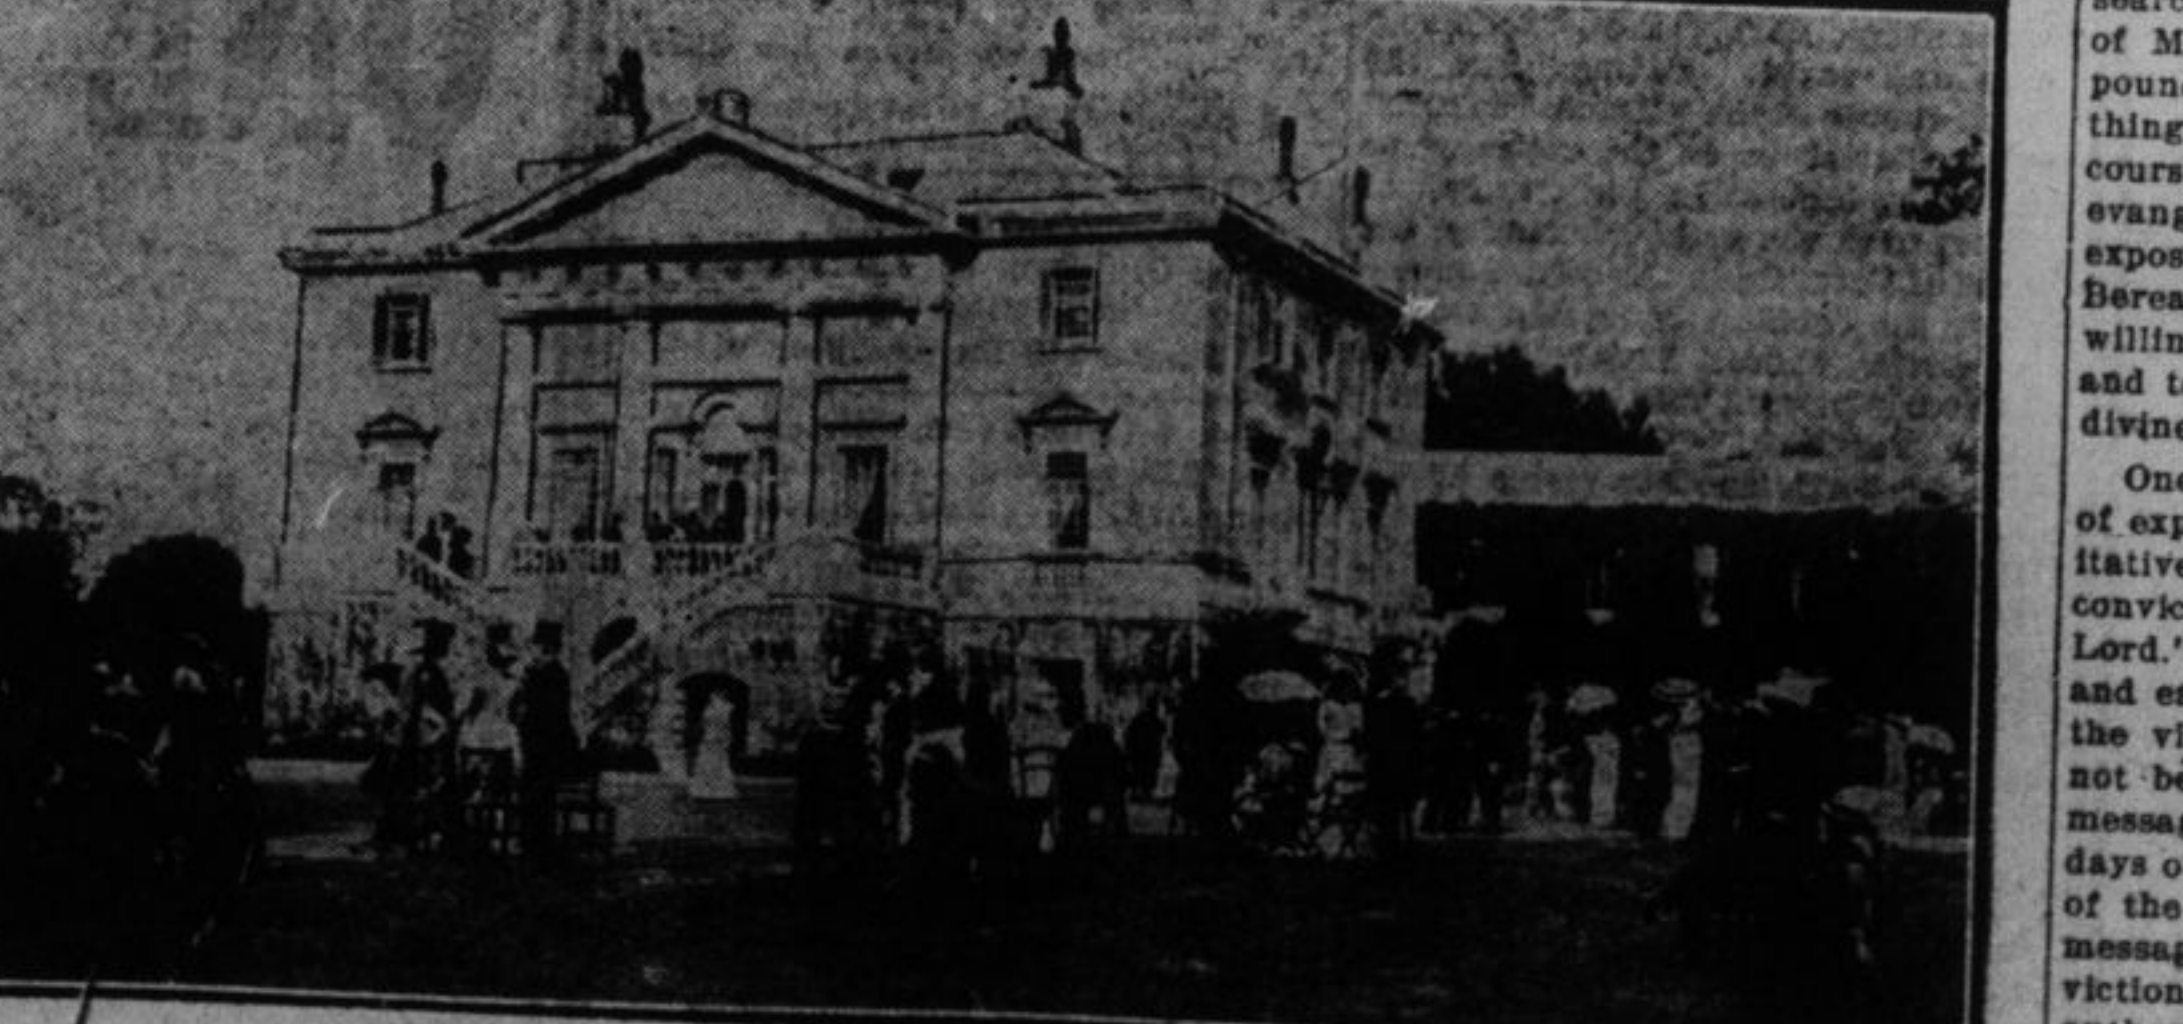

The advantage to the preacher himself, Dr. Jordan points out, is in the variety of matter which it supplies. "Only gradually does the rich suggestiveness of this style become apparent when subjects that seem at first to be uninviting and barren, yield up their hidden treasures. For a man who speaks often to the same audience, variety is desirable and may be sought in many ways, sober or sensational. One of the most satisfactory of these ways is keeping close to the passage or subject, recognizing that each story, prophecy or poem has an individuality, while the same lesson may be taught by more than one passage in each case. It will have its own peculiar setting."

One only has to think of the new interest and light which a passage or book of the Bible yields in the hands of a great expositor like George Adam Smith to realize the possibilities of this kind of preaching. To many the prophecies of Isaiah have become a new book, throbbing with life and modern interest, when placed in their true historical setting by this prince of expositors. Space will not permit even a reference to many of the illuminating and helpful suggestions of Professor Jordan's little book, but we cannot close without an illustration of what the author means by the right sort of expository preaching:

"Psalm lxxix, a complete poem with a definite course of thought running through it, telling how a man almost lost his faith as he looked out upon the world and saw the prosperity and popularity of the wicked, how he was arrested by the fact that his experience, if turned into a doctrine, would work mischief among men of simple faith, and finally how he saw his own stupidity and realized that no mere external success can be the reward of the good man. To tell such stories over again with sincerity and simplicity, to say to our hearers, here is the thought of a reverend thinker, the wavering yet victorious faith of a noble soul—is there not in that a real ministry which, apart from apology or controversy, will address to those who face similar conditions and carry similar burdens? Thus the intelligent interpretation of ancient thought may exercise a living ministry in our own day."

It was Miss Carrie Robinson, public stenographer, Hamilton, who typed the original "beauty powder" circular for the late James Buchanan from his pencil notes. The Ontario government announces it will also reimburse municipalities to the extent of one-third of the expenditure for the relief of single men who are out of employment. Canadian government suggests national organization for Russian relief.
