"Over Hills to Poorhouse." Playwrights from time immemorial have attempted, in depicting mother love to place "mother" on the highest pedestal...

In the dramatization of Will Carleton's enduring poems the adapter found "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse" to possess that studious power of appeal that has made for the play a place in the hearts of every man, woman and child who learn from it a lesson of unselfish devotion.

Aside from its fidelity to human nature "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse" which comes to the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening, March first, affords an entertainment of soul gripping as well as amusing surprises, all of which are insured through its presentation by well known artists.—Adv.

At The Grand. Next time the Rex Stock Company rings up its front curtain it is to give Zana Vaughn a real chance, and it will be really the first chance to show her ability since the company opened its run in Kingston. A few months ago, Margaret Illington had a pronounced success, a play that sought everyone's fancy over night.

"Yankee" Great Comedy. The William Fox special production of Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," which opened an engagement last night at the Allen Theatre, deserves to rank with the best dramatizations of famous literary classics which Mr. Fox has given to the public.

"A Connecticut Yankee" is a classic. It has been translated faithfully to the screen, and all the rollicking humor of the book is heightened by the visual appeal.

Mark Twain was not a humorist alone; in each of his books, even the funniest, he pleaded a cause. In "A Connecticut Yankee" he argues for the modern way of doing things, and proves that we are lucky to be living to-day and not in the days of old when knights were bold.

NO LONGER A PRINCESS

Few Royalties Present. The only foreign royalties present at the abbey during the wedding ceremony were the Infante Alfonso and the Infanta Beatrice, children of the King of Spain, Prince Nicholas of Rumania and the Grand Duke Michael of Russia.

The wedding procession inside the abbey, with the bridesmaids' formed, moved forward to the altar to the music of the 62nd Psalm, and the anthem: "Let Us Love One Another."

Viscount Lascelles and his bride departed from the abbey at about 13 o'clock. They drove down Whitehall to the Admiralty arch, and turned down the Mall, which was lined with thousands of cheering Londoners and visitors, towards the palace.

The wedding breakfast, confined to one hundred guests, including the families and intimate acquaintances of the bride and groom, was held at half-past twelve.

A score of the most accomplished bell ringers from all parts of the British Isles rang out the wedding chimes from the Abbey towers after the ceremony.
