YOUR FRECKLES

Need Attention in March or Face May Stay Covered

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish to look well the rest of the year. The March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all Summer unless removed. Now is the time to use Othine—double strength. This preparation for the removal of freckles is usually so successful that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of Othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Will Vanish

(Boudoir Secrets)

The judicious use of a delicate paste insures any woman a clear, hairless skin. To prepare the paste, mix a little of the powdered delatone with some water, then apply to the objectionable hairs for two or three minutes. When the paste is removed, and the skin washed, every trace of hair will have vanished. No pain attends the use of the delatone and it will not mar the most sensitive skin, but to insure results, see that you get real delatone.

To-morrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kumble

FRIDAY, MARCH 10.

An active and interesting day is forecast from this day's astrological chart. With the aggressive, and stimulating Mars in benignant mood, there is promise of initiative, bold adventure and large projects, but these should be handled with the foresight which precludes deception, fraud and misrepresentation, as the subtle Neptune is in unfriendly position. Old institutions and elderly persons may receive and confer benefits. There may be some friendly recognition from these. Some slight disappointment or inharmonies in the home may be possibly.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an active and adventurous year, with fine initiative for new and important projects. They should be on guard against deception or fraud, however. Friendly benefits are pre-arranged. A child born on this day, although clever, industrious and enterprising, may possibly suffer through intrigue, but will, however, make a success of its life.

Efficient Housekeeping

BY Laura A. Kirkman

How One Woman Solved the Laundry Problem.

This morning I received the following interesting letter from a distant housekeeper to whom a subscriber of this paper mails clippings from this column after reading it herself.

Efficient Housekeeping has been so helpful to me that I feel myself called upon to pass on to its Readers the solution of one of my problems which might prove of benefit to the rest of my fellow-sufferers. One of the bugaboos in the life of most housekeepers is the disposition of the laundry. She has the choice of three things: 1. Hire a woman to do it. 2. Do it herself. 3. Send it to a public laundry. I have tried all three ways and know whereof I speak.

To hire a woman nowadays is an expense, and to find a really competent and conscientious one is not easy. Then, it means that most of the ironing is left over, and if the day is unfavorable the housewife must see to most of the drying of the clothes on the following day.

The second day—doing it oneself—is all right if one has an electric washing machine—most most of us haven't! And unless a woman is abundantly healthy sometimes she saves doctors' bills by not doing her own washing.

Sending a family wash to a public laundry is out of the question for most of us because of the expense. But I wonder if many housewives know of the so-called "Bundle Wash" which most public laundries now do? I heard of this and am now sending everything except silks to a laundry that has two kinds of "Bundle Wash." One kind they call "Rough Dry," and the other goes under the name of "Ironed."

For the "rough dry," they charge ten cents a pound for the first 12 pounds, and eight cents a pound for every pound additional. Everything sent to be Rough Dried comes home machine-ironed. I sent to be Rough Dried all my tablecloths, napkins, sheets, pillow cases, towels, nightgowns, children's underwear, napkins, handkerchiefs—in fact anything that does not need hand-ironing.

The "Ironed" wash goes for ten cents a pound for washing, with an additional 15 cents per pound for ironing—making it virtually 25 cents a pound. However, if flat work is included in the bundle to be ironed, it is not charged the 15 cents additional. The only trouble I found at first was that, as they require you to have two dollars' worth of either one or the other, I had always to send everything to be ironed, which of course, made my laundry come high. Then I hit upon this plan:

One week I send only such things as I need hand-ironed, making up the weight required, if necessary, by adding some flat wash. The following week I see that I have the required number of pounds, 22, in Rough Dry to make the two dollars' worth. Although two dollars seems a good deal to have to pay every week for wash, it is no more than the expense of hiring a woman to do the work in your home, and giving her lunch. I hope this letter may help other women.

Tomorrow—Two Dinners for the Week-end Guest.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question—The Editor.

A SIMPLE LUNCHEON

One of the easiest and simplest meals to which the busy housewife can invite her friends is luncheon. It may be, it should be, a very simple affair and admits of far more originality than the more ceremonious dinner.

In the first place the cloth may be gray linen, embroidered simply in bright colors. It may be rather small, and blind-fashioned is a clear expression), on the table, the corners of which will show. Charming lunch cloths are made of deep blue, also with simple embroideries in white or darker blue, and it is nice to have the napkins, which, of course, are smaller than dinner napkins, (and may be fringed, hem-stitched or embroidered) to match the cloth.

Everything goes on the luncheon table at one time, or at least it may at a simple luncheon, the courses are few and each course should, in itself, be distinguished by simplicity. The elaborate, many-coursed luncheons, which have developed of recent years and last from one to half-past three, have become a tiresome feature of modern social life. Avoid them.

Quite a nice luncheon consists of soup bouillon, or some cream soup—in cups or on soup plates, just as you will, only if you serve it in cups you must use teaspoons, and if in soup-plates, tablespoons or if you have them ladies. Never use dessert spoons for soup, unless you're compelled to. Of course, if it is a case of not having luncheon or using dessertspoons, use them—it is better to be openhandedly hospitable than perfectly correct.

A nourishing salad with rolls and butter, is a splendid second course. One capital salad, that a good housekeeper always called her "vulgar" salad, it was so beautiful, is made of some cream cheese, rolled into a ball, as large perhaps, as a golf ball, or larger, ornamented with cut stuffed olives—if you have no olives, stick a few pieces of boiled carrot or beet root, here and there to add piquancy to the color scheme. Lay this ball on a lettuce leaf. On another leaf place a small tomato, peeled and serve with stiff boiled dressing mixed with whipped cream. Cream puffs may form the sweet course and with well made tea or coffee, you have given your guests all they need for a midday meal.

Grape fruit or orange salad with a dressing of salad oil, vinegar and Worcestershire sauce is another excellent first course, with chicken cutlets and puffed potatoes for the "solid" course, and a meringue made of whipped cream and white made of egg and sugar colored and flavored with a little raspberry or strawberry jam for the sweet.

Luncheon is the great absorber of left-overs and if simple enough to allow for a few minutes gossip is a delightful social interlude.

Like the Arab, the Afghan considers it unnecessary and even unwise that women should learn to read and write. No girls are admitted to the bazaar schools and no mullahs are employed to teach them.

Housewives Revel

In Furnishings that are New and Pretty

In the modern home there is no place for the closed-all-week room. Every thing is used every day and the housewife wants colorful, attractive things in her home. She is going to have them. It is her right to have them.

The attractive home is the home of HAPPINESS.

Merchants who have a stock of new and attractive furnishings will do well to tell the young housewives all about that stock. The just-been-marrieds and the going-to-be marrieds are interested. They must be told, and as 100% of them read this newspaper, this newspaper is the logical medium through which to tell them.

Goodness, this is a cold town. My skin needs twice as much attention as usual. However, with the aid of my old friend Campana's Italian Balm I don't have to worry at all. I find it protects against any kind of weather and it certainly keeps my face and hands wonderfully soft and white all the time.
