BRITISH WHIG INSURES ALL ITS EMPLOYEES

Has Completed Arrangements for Immediate Enforcement of New Type Policy.

After careful consideration of all sides and phases of the matter, the British Whig Publishing Company has entered into an agreement with the Metropolitan Insurance Company, through Harry Miller, the local superintendent, by which every employee will be insured at no cost to himself. This method of insurance has not been in vogue for any great length of time, and the British Whig is but the third Kingston firm to adopt it, two other local corporations having similar policies. The company pays the premiums, and the general plan of the agreement is one which even the most skeptical will appreciate. Every employee is so insured that, in case of his or her death, the wife, father, mother, next-of-kin or person signified in the individual agreement will receive, every week for fifty-two weeks thereafter, a sum which is about the equivalent of the weekly salary of the employee at the time of death. In other words, each person is insured for the full amount of one year's salary.

Should an employee become totally disabled and unable to work, no matter what the cause, the same insurance will be paid, forming a very substantial sickness benefit.

The advantages of such insurances are many and can at once be seen. In the first place, the company places the employees and their families in positions of financial security, so long as they are in the employ of the firm. Should they leave the employ, be discharged, or sever their connections with the company in any other manner, the insurance automatically ceases to be in force.

This, by way of repaying the company for the investment, makes for continuity of service and a greater degree of contentment amongst the employees, thus insuring against losses from transient or dissatisfied workers, who cause great losses to every firm yearly and generally hamper the wheels of trade and industry, in many cases to an embarrassing degree.

"OFFICER 666" AT GRAND

With William Yule in Title Role—Rex Company Is Playing.

Everybody has at one time or another laughed at the antics and witty remarks of the time-honored "Irish policeman," who has endeared himself to thousands of children and grown-ups throughout the entire English-speaking world, but when two hundred pounds of "Irish" is bundled up in one Scotchman, then the situations brought about are indeed laugh-provoking. Such was "Officer 666" as rendered by the Rex Stock Company at the Grand on Thursday evening, with William Yule playing the title role, though this popular actor was in "hot water" during the whole performance. "Officer 666" found himself in a very sad predicament, though mirthful to the audience, when he was persuaded to hand over his uniform for a few hours, after being tendered a small token of $500 by Travers Gladwin (Rex), who sought to capture a wife and a thief by some neat strategy. Gladwin succeeds in this, but finds a real friend in the thief, and lets him, even assists him to escape, as he admires Wilson, the thief, (Billy Seymour) for his cool audacity and bravery. The play is full of plots and counter-plots, each one more full of mirth than the last, not the least of which are the comic situations brought about by the bewilderment of Officer 666.

Rex is at his best as Travers Gladwin, the poor rich young man, who is in continual search for amusement and romance, and who finally seeks out the right girl, and then devotes his energies to save her from the nice villain in the plot, W. F. Mitchell as "Winney Barnes," the friend and advisor of the hero, is especially good, though he nearly has heart-failure in his search for the policeman who was unkind enough to place the "nippers" on his delicate wrists, and then lose the key. Florence Winter, as "Mrs. Burton," the aunt of the girl, increased her popularity with the Kingston theatre-goers, by her clever impersonation of a high-strung and sarcastic spinster, and "Sadie" (Hazel Williams) was also good. Zana Vaughn as "Helen," the girl, was her usual self, and was almost as much bewildered as Officer 666 over the dual personalities of Gladwin the real, and Gladwin the impostor. The battle of wits between the art thief and the rich young man, each claiming to be Gladwin was very amusing. The same performance will be rendered on Friday and Saturday, with the usual bargain matinee on Saturday afternoon.

J. E. L. Goodwill Dead. J. E. L. Goodwill, Peterboro, died at Asheville, North Carolina, on Thursday after a long lingering illness. The news of his death was announced in a telegram from his wife, who had accompanied him on his trip to the south during the last week in January. He graduated from Queen's University and took the law course at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, later locating in Peterboro. His wife was formerly Miss Nellie Kipatrik, of Kingston. The remains are to be buried in Cataract cemetery on Saturday.

Weapons bode peace.

Health Committee Accepts His Tender of $26,400 For Three Years.

At a meeting of the health committee on Thursday afternoon, the tenders for garbage collection were opened and considered. There were several tenderers seeking the contract and the lowest was E. G. Dennee who offered to do the work for a period of three years for the sum of $26,400. Mr. Dennee's tender was accepted, subject to the execution of a contract satisfactory to the city solicitor. It cost the city $10,000 for garbage collection the past year, so Mr. Dennee's offer is somewhat lower.

Robbed Toronto Telephones May Have Turned Trick Here

Word was received to the effect that a couple of men had been rounded up in Toronto on a charge of robbing the pay stations of the Bell Telephone Company and it is thought that perhaps one of the men arrested was one of the men operating in this line of business in Kingston recently and inquiries are being made about the men who have been taken in charge.

Tamworth Tidings. Tamworth, March 8.—The remains of the late Richard Coulter were brought home last week and placed in the vault. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Smart, Tweed. Mrs. Taylor and son, James, Ottawa, and the family of Tweed, attended the funeral. The choir of the Methodist church gives an "at home" in the township hall to-night. Miss Turner, the missionary of South America, gave a very impressive sermon in the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening last. The rain of Monday and Tuesday last flooded streets and cellars. William Lacey, Jr., died on Sunday last. The funeral was held at the Roman Catholic church on Tuesday last.

St. Andrew's Anniversary. St. Andrew's church will hold its anniversary services Sunday, March 12th. Rev. S. Banks Nelson, D.D., of Knox church, Hamilton, will conduct the services. On Monday evening, March 13th, in St. Andrew's hall, Dr. Nelson will also deliver his popular lecture, "Ireland To-day." The public are cordially invited.

Rev. Dr. Love, Quebec, was nominated by the Brockville presbytery as the next moderator of the general assembly. Miss E. V. Greasa announces her millinery showing, Saturday, March 11th, and following days.

THE FEEDING OF POULTRY

An Address Given Before the Poultry Association by A. W. Sirett.

A. W. Sirett gave a most instructive address before the Kingston Poultry Association on Thursday night, on the subject of "Housing and Feeding of Poultry." J. S. Munshi, president, occupied the chair. There was a large attendance of bird fanciers, representing all classes of chickens. At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Sirett called for discussion and many of those present showed a profound knowledge of scientific methods.

Without referring to any particular breed, Mr. Sirett described the up-to-date poultry house and told of the needs of the birds in the way of treatment, feeding, etc. It transpired that poultry are fond of salts, and a pound of this should be dissolved in the drinking water of one hundred hens per week in winter. It is beneficial in winter when there is a scarcity of green food. The address was a most appropriate one because of the approach of the hatching season, and the breeders can prepare their fowl and get them into high condition for laying. A little later Mr. Sirett will give a special address on "Incubation."

On the motion of Col. G. H. Ogilvie, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the speaker for his most instructive address.

Missionary Meeting. An interesting gathering was held Thursday evening, under the auspices of the W.M.S. of Princess Street Methodist church, when Mrs. Dunlop delivered an address dealing with her work in Japan. Mrs. Dunlop went into the work in Japan from its beginning up to the present time, and also dealt with the outlook for the future.

The society presented three life memberships. They were received by Mrs. John Clark, Mrs. John Gwatkin and Mrs. J. E. Chown. During the evening Mrs. Fred Rutherford and Mrs. Percy Ward rendered a fine duet. Rev. J. A. Waddell presided.

"Jimmy" Back on the Job. Detective James Cotter, who was shot in the arm by the auto bandits last September, and who has been off duty for some time, resumed his duties on Friday morning, and was given a warm welcome by his brother officers at the police station and his wide circle of friends around the city. "Jimmy" is feeling much better now, and it is hoped that he will continue to improve in health.

St. Andrew's Anniversary. St. Andrew's church will hold its anniversary services Sunday, March 12th. Rev. S. Banks Nelson, D.D., of Knox church, Hamilton, will conduct the services. On Monday evening, March 13th, in St. Andrew's hall, Dr. Nelson will also deliver his popular lecture, "Ireland To-day." The public are cordially invited.
