"Daddy Long Legs" at Grand.
The Grand Opera House was crowded to the doors on Friday evening for the second performance of "Daddy Long Legs," which was presented by the Rex Stock Company. This show is about the best which the popular Rex company has offered for the approval of Kingston audiences during its long stay in this city. Rex Snelgrove, who played the role of "Daddy Long Legs," the man who paying for the education of "Judy" Abbott (Zana Vaughn), a child from an orphanage, certainly played his part to perfection. Zana Vaughn, who has made a warm place in the hearts of Kingston audience, did full justice to the difficult role which she took. Between the acts William Yule and the Park Kiddie gave excellent specialties. The show will be given at the Grand Opera House on Saturday matinee and evening.

Big Drama Promised.
"The Child Thou Gavest Me," which will be shown at the Allen Theatre for three days, starting Monday, sets forth the complications that arise from a marriage solemnized without the groom knowing that his bride has a child. The girl herself does not know that the child is still alive until after the wedding, and then, for sufficient reason, she refuses to reveal the identity of its father. It is an obsession with him that casts suspicion upon every man who shows the slightest friendship for his wife. In a jealous rage he tries upon his best friend one night, only to learn later the real identity of the object of his search—a revelation that fully vindicates his wife and brings him to realize how unjust has been his treatment of her. The friend's wound proves to be slight, and the story ends in reconciliation and happiness. "The Child Thou Gavest Me" was produced for Associated First National Pictures, Inc. A sterling cast interprets the story, including such accomplished actors and actresses as Barbara Castleton, William Desmond, Lewis Stone, Adele Farrington, Winter Hall and little Richard "Ritchie" Headrick, who is the most wonderful child actor in the motion picture business.—Adv.

At the Strand.
Since "The Sheik" was shown at the Strand in January there has been a steady stream of enquiries about this remarkable picture. Over the telephone at the box office, in the street, people have been asking, "Is 'The Sheik' coming again? Are you going to bring 'The Sheik' back to Kingston?" These enquiries have come from regular fans who saw it and want to repeat the pleasure from those who did not see it and feel that they missed something good, and from many who rarely enter a motion picture theatre. To put the matter in a nutshell, "The Sheik" is the most popular picture of the season and everybody wants to be in the fashion and see it. As a story and as a spectacle this powerful production stands in a class by itself. "Different," that much-used and much-abused adjective, applies to it without a shadow of doubt. Rudolph Valentino, who made such a big name in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," has made more than a name in "The Sheik," he has become a personality. He has taken the fair sex have taken him to their hearts, and Rudolph's name is often on their lips. Agnes Ayres, as the dashing young Englishwoman, has won a niche all her own in the "Temple" of Film Fame, while the haunting melody of the Kashmiri song has taken hold of the crowd like a Harry Lauder ditty. The main thing is, "The Sheik" will play at the Strand for the first three days of next week. Special music will be provided. Miss Mignon Teagman taking charge. The second half of the week the Strand offer the famous "Three Live Ghosts," described on every hand as the funniest picture ever filmed, will be the attraction.—Adv.

MURIEL KERR TO PLAY UNDER KIWANIS' AUSPICES.
The child genius who is to play at Memorial Hall on Monday night, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club of Kingston, has played at Belleville, Brockville and Ottawa this week to crowds that seemed literally "crazy" about her. Not raving with purposeless exuberance, but just carried away with wonder and enthusiasm about the 11-year old child who handles the piano with such mastery that trained critics vie with each other in their praise of her. Muriel's memory is phenomenal. It is said that like Macaulay she can read a page of prose straight off, close the book, and repeat it without a mistake. Well, one can believe a great deal of a juvenile who can sit down and

The accompanying chart prepared for the Whig is designed to portray the average price trend of securities during the past two years. The solid black line represents important rallies and declines in the average price of 20 active common and preferred stocks listed on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Steels, Rails, Public Utilities, Textiles, Papers, and other Industrials are included. The dotted line represents the number of shares traded in monthly, on the Exchange.

In 1917 prices on the Stock Exchange commenced a gradual upward swing, which finally culminated in July 1920. Three months before—in April—a real deflation in wholesale prices had commenced, and a few months later we were faced with unemployment and other serious problems which attend all business oppressions.

From the high point of 94, stocks showed an almost unbroken decline until August of 1921, when the downward movement was definitely checked. From the peak of July 1920, to this extreme low point, the drop amounted to 45 points or about 52 per cent. For the past seven months, there has been a gradual increase in prices, the average now being 56—which represents a gain of 7 points. In December of last year the Market was apparently in a healthy position for the next broad upward swing, but the Merchants Bank affair put a temporary quietus on any impending bull movement.

Now, however, the majority of our larger industrial organizations have written down their inventories adequately, and decreased overhead expenses to a normal level, with the result that fundamental conditions should gradually grow brighter.

The dotted line shows that the peak of trading—July 1920—coincided in date with the price peak, and also that the low point in trading occurred at about the same time that prices hit bottom. In a general sense, the trends of trading volume and prices seem to have something in common, but it is left to the various investors, speculators, gamblers, scalpers, bulls, bears and lambs to determine the relationship.—WILLIAM MILLER.

LATE WILLIAM LOCKHART
A Sydenham Resident Dead—
Domestic Science Course
Well Attended.
Sydenham, March 25.—The death occurred at his late residence on Friday morning of William Lockhart, at the age of sixty-five years. Deceased had been in poor health for some time past, and his condition rapidly became worse. He had always lived in Sydenham, and was unmarried. The late Mr. Lockhart is survived by three brothers and one sister: T. J. Lockhart, Kingston; Dr. Alfred Lockhart, Toronto; Dr. George Lockhart, King, Ontario; and Mrs. William Chown, Kingston. Arrangements have been made to hold the funeral service on Monday morning at ten o'clock, and will be in charge of Rev. G. Stafford. The body will be placed in the vault here.

Stevenson-Janeway Wedding.
A very pretty wedding took place at St. Paul's church, Wednesday evening, when Canon Eric Gerald united in marriage Ernest Stevenson and Miss Mildred Janeway, both of this city. The bride looked charming in her wedding dress of dove grey embroidered crepe de chine, with black lace hat and fox lined stole, the gift of the groom. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Edith Janeway, sister of the bride, wore taupe crepe de chine and black hat and a corsage bouquet of pink roses. The groom was supported by Harry Janeway, brother of the bride. The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The rooms were prettily decorated with the colors yellow and white. A three-tier wedding cake surrounded by daffodils centered the bride's table. During the evening delightful music was supplied by Messrs. Allen, Newlands and Salisbury. The popularity of the bride was shown by the numerous and beautiful wedding presents, among them being a handsome leather rocker from the groom's associates at the Frontenac Floor and Wall Tile Company. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a pearl ring, and to the best man a pearl stick pin. The happy couple left amid a shower of confetti for Montreal, after which they will make their home in Kingston.

Canada's Golf Champion Writes for You

Frank Thompson, Amateur Golf Champion of Canada, has written ten splendid articles dealing with the minimum essentials of Golf. They are written from the point of view of a man who knows the game, for beginners and seasoned players alike. The idea underlying them is that there are a few prime essentials that are necessary to any one ambitious to play a good game. That is why they are more than usually interesting and appealing.

The titles of them are:—

1. Theory and Practise.
2. The Grip.
3. The Stance.
4. The Wrists and How They Work.
5. The Wooden Clubs.
6. Iron Play.
7. Putting.
8. Common Faults.
9. Tournament Golf.
10. Temperament.

This series will be published in the Whig as a weekly feature, beginning April 8th.
