ANNIVERSARY SERVICES IN QUEEN STREET CHURCH

The Rev. W. T. G. Brown, Ottawa, Preached—Collection Realized $1,242.88.

Rev. W. T. G. Brown, B.A., B.D., of Dominion church, Ottawa, occupied the pulpit in Queen street Methodist church on Sunday, on the occasion of the special anniversary services conducted there. The church was crowded to the doors at both services, and during the special service, as a result of the special appeal for $1,000, it was announced that contributions totalling $1,242.88 had been received during the day. This was in addition to the regular envelope collection from the church congregation.

In the morning, Mr. Brown took as his subject "The Fourth Beatitude," discussing the qualities of true Christianity, the text being from Matthew V, 6, "Blessed are they that do hunger." Those people who belonged to an artificial religion did not have the true elements of righteousness, and worshipped more the offices and other matters of the church. If the two plain words "good" and "bad" were used more openly in the church, the people might be much better off. If a man says his prayers properly, attends church in the approved manner, thus making righteousness a theological virtue, he often forgets many of the essentials which are not on the surface, and as a consequence the church has suffered on this account.

The speaker told of some of the old ideas of the sacredness of the altar in the church in ancient days. A man might flee from justice and hide himself at the altar of a church, where he was rarely touched, as it would be a sacrilege to slay the man on this sacred spot. This was not because of the sacredness of the man, but of the altar, and in the same way it was at that time considered far worse to steal on the Sabbath than on any other day. Not for the fact of stealing but because the Sabbath had been broken. It was one of the great principles of Wesley that he told his people they must live a true Christian life always not along certain grooves and paths.

Righteousness was the act of living right, though some people are so sluggish in nature that they do nothing, either good or bad. It is not what you don't do—it is what you do, that counts. Righteousness means a proper knowledge of the sense of human relationships, and in this Christian world of ours we must do better than the law asks us to do.

"The Authority of Christ" was the subject taken by Mr. Brown in the evening, when he told of the gentle teachings of Christ, such as the Sermon on the Mount, when the people were amazed at His methods. The common people were greatly impressed with His teachings, but He was severely criticized by the Pharisees and the Scribes. After the Sermon on the Mount, the people compared Him with others whom they had heard before, and they came away saying that "He spoke as one having authority." Christ was essentially a teacher, and there was never any doubt in the hearts of the people after they had once heard Him. They knew that He spoke from the heart, and were thoroughly convinced of His power and authority. No man can speak with authority who does not know. He needs to know, and know well, just what he is talking about. Christ made use of the parable, and by His simplicity and use of simple truths, He taught even the most simple-minded people.

Here was a man who spoke with such convincing authority that men said "I believe it." This authority rested solely on His knowledge, and because He believed His own teachings. If a man wishes to teach a foreign language he of course first studies all the elements of the grammar, but he may never teach it properly until he can think and almost feel in that language. Christ spoke as one who really knew God, and entered into His own heart.

There is nothing so real as pure manhood, touched by the Spirit of God, continued the speaker. The man who speaks with authority must have courage. He does not give the order to charge. He leads the charge, and His moral courage makes him strong. Don't let any man think that to be courageous is enough—there must be vision and humanness and tender kindness.

The splendid music marking the anniversary, as arranged by Miss Pearl Nesbitt, L.T.C.M., was very beautiful, though at the morning service the organ prelude was not played owing to the electric power in the church being shut off. The offertory quartette "How Long Wilt Thou Forget Me?" (Carl Flueger), was sung by Mrs. J. Evans, Miss Stagg, and Messrs. Middleton and Gask. The postlude played by Miss Nesbitt was the "Festal March" from Boulet.

In the evening, solos were rendered by L. W. Gask and Mrs. J. Evans, "There is a Green Hill," and "Not a Sparrow Falleth" respectively. The organ prelude was well interpreted by Miss Nesbitt, including a selection from Rudolph Bibl in B flat; an Elisabethan Idyll by Tertius Noble; "Now Oh Lord" by Wolsterholme. The augmented choir rendered a special anthem: "The Day is Past and Over," and the offertory prelude was "At Twilight," (Frysinger). The organ postlude was "Grand Choeur" by Ernest Shepherd.

Deceased was born at Wicklow, Ireland, on February 1st, 1830. Her maiden name was Jane Dack, and with her family she came to Canada in the year 1840. She was married to John G. On February 1st, when friends gathered at her home in celebration of her birthday, it was remarked that she appeared to be in better health than she was a year ago. But in a few weeks after she contracted a cold which developed into pneumonia, and on Saturday, March 18th, she fell asleep, without showing any signs of suffering.

TELFORD-AVERY NUPTIALS.

At the Home of the Bride at McDonald's Corners.
 McDonald's Corners, March 23.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Avery was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, Monday, March 22nd, when their sister, Hester Helena Avery, was united in matrimony to Robert Telford, Madison, Sask. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. M. Little. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Benjamin, entered the parlor promptly at 5 o'clock to the strains of the wedding march played by her sister, Mrs. Donald McLellan. She was becomingly attired in a gown of white silk crepe de chine over ivory satin, trimmed with pearl and silver beads. She also wore a bridal veil with wreath of orange blossoms. The bride's only ornament was a gold chain and pendant set with pearls and peridot stones, the gift of the groom.
 After the ceremony the immediate friends of the bride and groom sat down with them to a dainty repast in the dining room, which was tastefully decorated with wedding bells and pink and white roses. The handsome wedding gifts testified to the esteem in which the bride was held, chief among which was a splendid cabinet of silver from the Wampole Company in whose employ she had been for several years.
 After a few days visiting friends in the vicinity and in Shawville, Que., the happy couple will leave for Madison, Sask., where the groom has a comfortable home awaiting his bride.

Want Doughty to Speak.
 It is thought that the real reason for the refusal of the department of justice to release John Doughty, serving a six-year term in Portsmouth penitentiary, is that he knows more about the disappearance of A. J. Small than he has so far told, and that continued prison life may induce him to tell more.

The Amusement Tax.
 In Kingston last year, according to figures now made public, the amusement tax paid locally amounted to $17,025.76. Every man, woman, and child in the city, therefore, must have contributed about 75 cents. Most of this tax was collected through theatres.
