

MOTHER PROVIDES CLIMAX
At Enquiry into Killing of Daughter—Had Lived With Accused Doctor.

Huntingdon, Penna., April 12.—“My daughter told me she was married to Dr. Bryson and I believed her.

They have taken my girl's life, but they shall not take her honor. She's mine, and I will fight for her to the end,” exclaimed Mrs. C. G. Kirby, of No. 125 Post avenue, New York City, at the coroner's inquest here in the death of her daughter, Helen, who was shot late Saturday night at Casaville by Dr. Herbert Bryson, with whom she had lived for the last year. The coroner's jury held Dr. Bryson on the charge of murder. Mrs. Kirby was called to the stand in a room adjoining that in which was lying the body of her young daughter. A telegram sent to the mayor of Huntington by the chief of the Washington detectives was read to her. It stated that her daughter, who was known here as Mrs. Bryson, was the legal wife of Bruce H. Haines, a chauffeur for a wealthy banker, living at No. 1119 Fourteenth street, N.W., in Washington. Mrs. Kirby stared at the coroner for a few seconds. Then she spoke—a torrent of words in which affection for her daughter was mingled with hatred for Haines. “It is true,” she said. “My daughter was Bruce Haines wife. She was justified in leaving him. He was cruel to my daughter. He forced her from his home.”

“When was your daughter married to Dr. Herbert Bryson?” the mother was asked. “In September, 1920,” she declared. “Did you witness the ceremony?” Coroner Schum asked. “No, I did not,” said the mother. “But my daughter told me she was married to him and I believed her.” “Did she divorce Haines?” Mrs. Kirby was asked. “I don't know,” was the answer, and Mrs. Kirby then became hysterical.

“You are trying to strip my poor daughter of her honor,” she shouted at the coroner. “Punish Dr. Bryson, but do not try to destroy the good name of Helen, my only girl.” Mrs. Kirby's statement that Dr. Bryson had confessed to her was the first information given to the authorities to the effect that the physician admitted his guilt. Since bringing his wife to the hospital here Saturday evening he had maintained steadfastly that she shot herself.

Mrs. Bryson accused her alleged husband of shooting her in an anteroom statement to the district attorney. This statement was not produced at the inquest, but incriminating testimony was offered by Dr. Fred Hutchinson, the hospital surgeon who attended the dying woman when she was brought to the hospital.

“I knew from Dr. Bryson's actions that there was something queer about his statement that his wife had shot herself. I sought an interview with her alone while one of the other surgeons engaged Dr. Bryson in conversation. Mrs. Bryson then told me that their domestic life had been troubled for some time past.

“We quarrelled Saturday afternoon about 5.15 o'clock. After one of the women neighbors left our house,” she told me, “he pursued me to the second floor and I finally threw a lamp shade at him. He then went downstairs and I knew he was going for his revolver. He had told me several times that if I did not listen to him he would kill me and shoot himself.

“I went into a dressing room and locked the door. A few moments later he returned to the second floor, smashed down the door, and started for me, revolver in hand. He had covered half the distance of the room when he fired.”

On the Night before Wash Day

DO this, and you will have a pleasant, easy, work-free wash-day—with wonderfully clean sweet clothes;

For each tub of clothes take half a package of Rinso, dissolve in just enough cool water to make it as thick as cream. Then stir in two quarts of boiling water, and stir well. When the bubbles disappear you will have a clear, amber-colored liquid that is the magical Rinso washing solution. Pour it into your tub of cool or lukewarm water, and put in the clothes and soak. For extra hard water or extra dirty clothes add more Rinso solution.

In the morning rinse thoroughly and hang out to dry—the washing is done! That's why Rinso is different from all other Soaps and Washing Powders.
