"ALWAYS THE BEST"

What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

At the Allen.
One of the most intensely dramatic situations ever shown on the screen can be seen in "The Invisible Fear," Anita Stewart's latest First National attraction now playing at the Allen theatre. In it Miss Stewart plays the part of Sylvia Langdon, who marries Bentley Arnold after repulsing Arthur Comstock, who has been one of her most persistent suitors. The situation develops at a dinner party, in honor of Sylvia's birthday. A score of persons are grouped about the table and Sylvia is laughing merrily when a figure appears in the door. It is Comstock, whom she had thought dead; and her face pales and she trembles in fear as she looks at what she considers a ghost. "The Invisible Fear" is a tale of mystery and love—and the birthday dinner scene is only one of its many thrilling features.

At The Strand.
In "Her Husband's Trademark," which opened at the Strand yesterday, Gloria Swanson plays the role of a wife whose husband uses her beauty and personality, reinforced by costly dresses, as a bait to lure men of money into financial traps. It is a strong story, suffused with heart interest with the scenes laid in New York and Mexico. The action in this closing scene reaches a high pitch of excitement, making one wonder how the actors did it without damaging themselves. Gloria herself casts her glamor over all, making a bewitching personal pivot on which the plot revolves. Her gown baffle description and her acting combines the charm and force which have made her famous. Richard Wayne, as leading man, does notable work, and Stuart Holmes, as the villainous husband, holds up his end well. "A Barnyard Cavalier," the comedy on the programme, is a riot of fun that does one good. Next week Cecil B. de Mille's "Pool of Paradise" will be the big attraction from Thursday to Saturday.
