Give Your Eyes the Consideration Due Them

Seeing is by far the most important sense of the human body. And still it is the one most frequently neglected.

If your power of speech were impaired, or your hearing below normal, you would not hesitate about consulting a specialist—and yet good eyesight is the easiest to restore if taken in time.

If you do not know what it is that is troubling your eyes, or if you are in doubt as to your seeing power, we invite you to allow us to make a thorough test to convince yourself of the truth.

THE GRADUATION OF ROCKWOOD NURSES

The Event Took Place on the Spacious Lawn—A Gracious Occasion.

The graduating exercises at the training school for nurses, Rockwood Hospital, were held on Wednesday afternoon and drew a very large gathering of people from Kingston and outside points. The weather was ideal and the institutions and the beautiful grounds were decorated with flags for the occasion which was made a notable one by the presence of men distinguished in the medical profession, and by the brilliant addresses heard.

Rockwood hospital holds a unique place in the history of medicine in Canada, and in North America, being the first institution to institute a nurses training school, and it was Dr. Edward Ryan, the able superintendent, who organized here the Ontario Psychiatric Association marking a new epoch in scientific progress in the study and treatment of mental disease.

Dr. Ryan had provision made for holding the exercises on the spacious lawn under the graceful trees that ornament the grounds and make them one of the most charming spots one could wish to see. Here he welcomed the guests and visitors in the most warm terms and then introduced Rev. Dr. D. M. Gordon, D.D., who gave an opening prayer. Dr. F. J. Farley, past president of the Ontario Medical Association, Trenton, was chairman and in opening the programme, he gave a brief address in which he reviewed the progress made in medical science, and especially the wonderful advances in the treatment of mental cases during the past twenty-eight years in this country. But the knowledge of mental cases is only in its infancy yet, said he. He advocated some system by which discharged patients might be followed up and their progress recorded. There was still much to be done and he looked to the establishment of outside clinics to complete the important work carried on in the treatment of mental disease. He also thought that the government might wisely consider the advisability of paying to the families of mechanics committed to mental hospitals their earnings for work performed in the institution. There was still something to do on borderline cases and a consulting staff was needed to examine these and the mental defectives who might be successfully treated at their homes.

The Graduate Nurse. The services of the graduate nurse should be utilized in the care of mental cases treated outside of the institutions. Some movement such as this should be taken up. He was of the opinion that the government should pass a registration act providing for the registration of all graduate nurses who would thereby become county and municipal nurses. Who is better able to do municipal work than the graduate nurse? By their careful training and varied experience they are best qualified for such positions if we ever get the government to put this through. The rural practitioners know the value of the graduates in municipal nursing and there is an immense field for their very valuable service.

Dr. L. J. Austin. The address to the graduating class was given by Dr. L. J. Austin, professor of surgery, Queen's University. He congratulated them upon successfully passing the prescribed examinations which admitted them to one of the most ancient and honorable professions. Dr. Austin gave a most interesting account of surgery and medicine as practised in the past centuries. The Greeks had attained a high standard of proficiency in surgery and in medicine, but the little knowledge that has come down to us shows what was accomplished during wars and plagues. There were no hospitals as we have them today. Indeed the modern hospital and modern nursing owe their origin to that wonderful woman Florence Nightingale. But for war we would never have organized nursing service as it exists today. There were no nurses in Wellington's time. Soldiers' wives went with them to wars and nursed them when wounded. The last war saw a great advance, and you are now called upon to put into practice the principles you have learned here. I might emphasize some points, fidelity to the men you work for; secrecy respecting your patients condition, and the confidences of the medical practitioner. It is absolutely necessary that the condition of patients should not be matters for gossip. In private nursing success will depend upon your fidelity and the practise of the virtues of patience and sympathy with the sick."

The diplomas were presented to the graduating class by Dr. H. Clare, medical director of hospitals, Toronto. The class was composed of: Ruby Bell, Clara Louise Northmore, Esther May Northmore, Helen Agatha Thompson, Kingston; Anna Brunton, Peterboro; Alice Garner, Harrowsmith; Grace Evelyn Kimberley, Sharbot Lake; Ella Murphy, Renfrew; Elizabeth Elva Reynolds, Verona; Gertrude Sparks, Toronto; Eva A. Sands, Battersay; Mable Grace Veley, Verona.

The Florence Nightingale Pledge was given by Dr. Wallace, Guelph. All of the nurses carried large bouquets of beautiful flowers and the entire audience stood while the pledge was recited by the class. The ceremony was very impressive. Pins were distributed by Miss Ella Jamieson, president of the Graduate Nurses of Ontario who gave good advice, and told of her efforts to secure the registration act.

W. F. Nickle, M.P.P., presented the silver medal donated by Dr. Edward Ryan for general proficiency and awarded to Miss Ella May Murphy.

Miss Maud Abernethy, R.N., president Kingston Chapter, G.N.A.O., presented the prize awarded to Miss Elizabeth V. Reynolds for capacity in ward administration and donated by Miss McMillan, superintendent of nurses.

Miss J. Stronach, R.R.C., matron Sydenham Hospital, presented to Miss Grace Evelyn Kimberley the prize awarded for the highest marks in the provincial examinations. This prize was donated by Miss M. Stronach.

Dr. Frederick Etherington, C.M.G., D.S.O., gave an address in the absence of Hon. H. C. Nixon, provincial secretary. He referred to the splendid work of all the graduates of Rockwood hospital during the war. One of them, Miss Leslie brought honor to herself and to her profession. He congratulated the nurses who successfully completed their training and paid a high tribute to Dr. Edward Ryan whose ceaseless endeavors contributed to make Rockwood hospital the best in Ontario.

The intermediate class prizes were presented as follows: Highest marks in psychiatry, won by Miss Mary Murphy, donated by Dr. T. D. Cumberland and presented by Miss L. M. Homing, superintendent of nurses, Ontario hospital, Brockville; highest marks in provincial examinations, won by Miss Anna McCambridge, donated by Miss D. Martman, and presented by Miss M. Fay, graduate nurse, Rockwood hospital; general proficiency, won by Miss Tena Fitzgerald, donated by C. C. Hodgson and presented by Dr. D. E. Mundell; general proficiency in psychiatric nursing, won by Miss Mary Murphy, donated by Miss E. Maud McTavish and presented by Miss M. L. Hemming.

Junior Class Prizes. Highest marks in provincial examinations, won by Miss Carrie Edmonds, donated by Dr. C. H. McCuaig and presented by Dr. R. J. Gardiner; general proficiency, won by Miss Ella Nafin, donated by Dr. E. R. Houston and presented by Mrs. McPherson, Ottawa.

The general prize for greatest attention to patients and having the highest standing among her nurses, won by Miss Ruby Bell, donated by Dr. F. H. C. Baugh and presented by Dr. James Miller, professor of Pathology, Queen's University.

Special prizes were won by Anna Branton, Gertrude S. Sparks and Eva A. Sands. The Rockwood Hospital orchestra played during the programme and refreshments were served on the grounds at the close of the exercises.

Wish To Visit Kingston. Mayor Corbett on Thursday morning received a letter from a party in Erie, Pa., asking about auto conditions between Watertown, N.Y., and Kingston. The party wishes to make the trip to Kingston. Mayor Corbett replied that the "going" from Watertown to Cape Vincent was good, and that the steamer Waubac gave splendid transportation across the river to Kingston.

Deaths of Pneumonia After 5 Days Illness. Thomas Forsythe, whose home is near Kaladar, died Tuesday night after five days' illness from pleuropneumonia, at the residence of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James Forsythe, West Huntingdon. Mr. Forsythe was a brother of the late James Forsythe, who met such a violent death in his saw mill at West Huntingdon a little over a month ago, and had been out of the affairs of his brother, when he was taken ill. He leaves besides his widow, three sons and two daughters. He was about sixty-five years of age, and was a member of the Methodist church. The remains were removed to his home at Kaladar. The funeral took place at Tweed on Thursday. Deceased was a Conservative in politics.

Some Grocers Defy Wednesday Closing By-Law. The police found that several grocers kept open Wednesday afternoon, violating the by-law passed by the city council last week requiring all grocery and butcher shops to close at one o'clock Wednesday afternoons during June, July, August and September. These grocers defy the by-law, claiming that the council cannot force them to close up. The names of the offending grocers have been handed to the city solicitor who will have to advise as to whether the by-law passed is valid. If he considers it is, prosecutions will follow.
