NOTHING BUT THE BEST

When you are buying general commodities such as groceries, dry goods, etc., you always make sure of the best. Do you overlook this when you buy your milk? Perhaps you don't. If you do, read further; if you don't stop right here.

Milk is one of the greatest commodities of any household—it is a product that can be handled in a very unsanitary way.

Price's Dairy has what is known as the Pasteurized and Clarified system. This system insures the milk consumer that he is buying the best in every respect.

Call us up, and give us a trial to-day.

The wise man knows he knows nothing, but the fool thinks he knows all.

There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood leads on to fortune.

The way to make ourselves admired is to be what we affect to be thought.

There is one thing always best to put off till tomorrow—borrowing trouble.

FORMULATES LESSONS FOR PLAYER-PIANOS

Progressive Salesman Tells How to Get Best Results From Mechanical Players

As a means of popularizing player-pianos, and thereby increasing sales, the progressive manager of a music store has placed in the street window a card, attractively printed, bearing the words:

Free Lessons Given on the Player Piano
All Questions Cheerfully Answered Inquire Within

The lessons he gives were originated by him, and put into printed form. He answers the questions of all inquirers who come into the store at any time, and at certain hours in the day gives short talks and demonstrations on the player-piano, and upon leaving the store each inquirer is presented with a printed list of lesson helps, which cannot fail to be of assistance to any student of the player-piano. These free instructions are given to an inquirer whether or not an instrument is bought.

The lessons formulated by this progressive salesman are printed here for the benefit of those who already have a player-piano as well as those who contemplate purchasing one:

1. Mechanical in principle though it is, the player-piano need not be mechanical in effect. That is just one of the misconceptions that springs from the noise that is produced by those who play as if they were riding a bicycle. The music of the player-piano does not need to be either rigid, cut-and-dried, or erratic.

2. Do not slavishly follow the expression marks that are stamped upon the paper roll. They are intended to serve as a general guide only, and may be varied to suit the taste of the performer.

3. There are three things which you can regulate on a player-piano, namely, the tempo, the degree of loudness or softness, and the pedal. The tempo is the easiest to control. It is possible by the touch of a finger to cause the music roll to run rapidly or slowly through any section of a piece, or to retard or accelerate any given note. It is by studied and alert changes of tempo that a mechanical effect is avoided.

4. The levers and buttons determine how low or how soft you may play at any given point, but still more important in this connection is the supply of wind to the bellows which regulates the pneumatic action. Surprising results are to be obtained by skilful "pumping." The motion of the feet should keep time to the rhythm of the music in cases where a measured effect is needed, as in martial or dance music. In music of a more delicate or intimate nature the pumping should not try to follow the rhythm of the piece, but should merely aim to supply a sufficient quantity of air to keep the piece running smoothly. In cases where a single note or chord needs special accent this may be produced by a sudden thrust of the foot. For the same reason that good "foot-work" on the pedals is what determines the best playing of a pipe-organ, so it is that thoughtful and constantly regulated pumping is what produces the best effect from a player-piano.

5. The pedal should be used sparingly and only when it is desirable to prolong the vibration of a certain note or group of notes or to bind chords together. Never keep the pedal on to produce a more powerful fortissimo; that only produces a blurred discord almost intolerable to sensitive ears.

6. If you study your player-piano seriously, practicing faithfully, and following these simple directions, you will produce results that will delight all who listen to you.

MUSIC AT WHITE HOUSE.

Wireless Telephone is Installed in President's Study.

At Secretary Denby's request Commander Stanford C. Hooper has installed a wireless telephone receiving outfit in the study of the President on the second floor of the White House.

The President is now able to put the phones to his ears as he sits at his desk in his study, overlooking the lawn toward the Washington Monument, and hear the latest news or snatches of music.

It is expected that a similar receiving instrument will be installed in the White House press room for the correspondents.

Simultaneously with this news comes the announcement that the Department of Commerce has issued a temporary order forbidding amateur radio sending stations from broadcasting addresses and music until some system is worked out which will eliminate interference.

Professionals who hold commercial licenses are not affected by this order.

The order does not affect receiving stations, which are not under license, these it is estimated are now 100,000. In the last three months they have been receiving addresses, songs and phonograph records sent out via radio telephone in homes and public buildings. This grew to such large proportions that it almost stopped other telegraphic work of amateurs.

The order is intended to assist amateur operators in getting their work established on a more satisfactory basis.

Tucks and Pink Georgette Bands Embroidered in White Trim This Pink Crepe-de-Chine Pajama Suit.

Pajamas seem to find increasing favor, especially when they introduce some novel touch which makes them a bit different from the ordinary.

Pink crepe de chine is used in the model above, which gains added character by the introduction of matching georgette bands embroidered in white polka dots.

Note the novel use of tucks, running both vertically and crosswise, at the front and back of the coat effect. This draws the material up shorter here, while the untucked portion drops down longer at either side.
