LARGE AUDIENCES ARE DAILY ATTENDING
SPLENDID CHAUTAUQUA PERFORMANCES

Prof. John Duxbury, England's Great Reciter, Captivates the Crowds—The Children's Chautauqua is Morning Feature—Programmes All Excellent.

Prof. John Duxbury, "England's Greatest Reciter," is more than a versatile elocutionist, more than a facile handler of words, more than a clear expressionist and character actor. He is a master exponent of living writings because he gives to them a vital significance, an intense interest and a background that allows the imagination full scope for its pictures.

On Saturday evening he enthralled a large audience in the Chautauqua tent on the Crickers Field with his portrayal of Jean Valjean, Alexander Dumas' scoundrel in the classic, "Les Miserables," and of the lovable bishop who sheltered him in his darkest hour.

Prof. Duxbury was brought to the city under the auspices of the Rotary Club and the Dominion Chautauqua in conjunction with the other attractions that are drawing such large numbers of Kingstonians and persons from the surrounding district during this week to the Chautauqua tent. As an institution worthy of support and serving a useful purpose in bringing music and oratory of the highest class within the means of all the people the Chautauqua has already demonstrated its value.

The President, Leman Guild, and officers of the Rotary Club, are appreciative of the support which has been received during the first few days of the Chautauqua engagement and it is certain that the wide circle of admirers of the principles on which the Rotary International organization is founded will be still further expanded as a result of the efforts to strengthen community appreciation of music and letters. The local organization has led in this respect in Kingston and it is a gratification to the officers to note that their efforts are commended.

The Ferguson Quintette.

In spite of the heavy downpour of rain, the lack of appreciation of what was the exact nature of Chautauqua on the part of many citizens and also despite several counter attractions the tent was well-filled on Saturday afternoon with music-lovers who were entertained by the Ferguson Quintette. After being introduced by the superintendent, L. D. Baker, an efficient and affable young man whose geniality has already won him many friends in the city, the quintette presented a well-balanced programme of songs. It consists of three charming young ladies endowed with splendid stage presence, Miss Etie Burgess, soprano, and her sister, Miss Frances Burgess, contralto, and Miss Margaret Malowney, pianiste, and Miss H. O. Ferguson, director of the organization and baritone, and Francis Diers, tenor.

Hits from the comic operas, favorite songs of by-gone days, an operatic medley, sacred songs, negro character songs and other popular melodies endeared the quartette to the audience, and the solos of each member were also greatly appreciated. Miss Frances Burgess rendered "My Ain Folk" and "My Love is a Muleteer," in splendid voice, and Mr. Ferguson received great applause with his rendering of "Duna" and "Big Brown Bear." Mr. Diers has a colorful tenor voice and sang very sweetly "Little Mother o' Mine" and "Marguerite." In the evening before the reading of Prof. Duxbury the quintette sang the comic operetta, "Martha," a romantic piece which gave splendid opportunity for the respective abilities of the members of the cast and was greatly enjoyed.

Prof. Duxbury's Readings.
Following the operetta Prof. Duxbury was introduced by Rev. R. J. Wilson, who mentioned the exceptionally fine advance reports that had come of the elocutionist's efforts and of the gratitude that would doubtless be expressed to the Rotary Club and to the Dominion Chautauqua for bringing such a distinguished speaker to Kingston.

Prof. Duxbury was indeed a revelation. There are those who have marvelled at the slovenly, lazy and monotonous way in which the beautiful English language is spoken on the streets. To those who heard

Prof. Duxbury revealed the power and depth of our tongue, its capabilities for rich intonation and nuances and its inherent beauty when correctly spoken.

For his first recitation Prof. Duxbury chose a portion of "Les Miserables," by Alexandre Dumas, in which is narrated the search of Jean Valjean, an escaped convict, for kindness, of the rebuffs which he received at the doors of his fellow-men during his quest for food and lodging, of his gracious reception by a kindly bishop at the house made for the use of every man and where the door was never locked in the faces of the orvid's unfortunates, of his temptation and his theft of his benefactor's silverware, of his subsequent arrest and of the bishop's forgiveness. It was a selection full of pathos, translated from Dumas' best style, and giving a rich opportunity for the splendid powers of delineation which Prof. Duxbury possesses.

"The Shades Banquet."
As an encore Prof. Duxbury recited "The Shades Banquet," an amusing skit of the journey of such immortals as Christopher Columbus, Francis Bacon, William Shakespeare and of some of the Victorian poets across the River Styx in a first-class steamer. After some preliminary conversation among these distinguished gentlemen of all ages, parodies on the nursery rhyme about little Jack Horner sitting in the corner were presented in the best style of each of the poets present. It drew laughter and applause from the audience, demonstrating at the same time the wide range of the abilities of Prof. Duxbury. During the evening he also delighted everyone with some truly comical stories which he had gathered during his journeyings in many countries.

Sunday Evening Concert.

The interest being aroused in Chautauqua was evidenced by the very large crowd which attended the sacred concert held later in the evening. The large tent was filled to capacity, all of the available chairs were occupied, and hundreds stood outside to listen to the splendid programme organized by the Rotary Club and generously rendered by local talent.

The president of the Rotary Club, L. A. Guild, acted as chairman, and in a few opening remarks, following prayer by Dr. R. Bruce Taylor, stated that the Rotary Club had brought the Dominion Chautauqua to Kingston for two reasons, first, for its educational and inspirational influence for Chautauqua was a power for good in the community; and secondly, for any profit which might be derived. This latter, Mr. Guild explained, would go toward the welfare work conducted by the club for the underprivileged boys and girls of the city.

Prof. John Duxbury, whose readings had been the delight of the early programmes of the Chautauqua, gave a reading more particularly for the children. It was entitled "Worms for Feathers" and pleased young and old alike.

Miss Jean Chown, whom Kingston is pleased to call her own contralto, charmed her audience with "I Lift My Heart to Thee" by Michael Coste, and as an encore rendered the old favorite, "My Task." She was accompanied by Miss Phyllis Knight, whose playing was a sympathetic support.

City Composer Played.

Another of the city's talented musicians, Harold Packer, in a piano solo, "Spanish Dance," won the hearts of the audience. This delightful selection was of his own composition. As an encore he gave "Minuetto" by Beethoven.

"O Divine Redeemer," by Gounod was pleasingly sung by Mrs. Jerome, who is always favorably received. She received excellent support from her talented accompanist, Miss Frances Devlin.

In a concise address, Dr. R. Bruce Taylor spoke on "Chautauqua and its Purpose." He described the origin of the movement from a summer school, started at the place of the same name in New York state, which had evening programmes of a popular nature. From this beginning two streams were derived, the university summer schools and the travelling organizations known as Chautauquas. These latter give what is inspirational in music, speech and letters. Through these events, districts, which otherwise could not have the privileges of hearing the good things of music and literature, have them brought to their doors. He hoped that this first Chautauqua would be the forerunner of many more in Kingston. He told of the effort made by Queen's during the winter to bring artists to the city, $1,200 being set aside for this purpose. He also lauded the Rotary Club which he stated had endeared itself to the community by its unselfish work.

Miss Christine Diack, accompanied by Miss Lois Taylor, gave the solo "Ninety and Nine" by Campion. The selection was a very pleasing one. The band of the P.W.O.R. to no small extent assisted in the programme, giving three selections which were a credit to the organization and to its leader, W. J. Christman. A varied programme consisting of "Maritana," by Wallace; "Largo" by Handel and "Perfect" (Continued on Page 7)
