QUEEN'S MEDICAL BOYS MAKE A FINE SHOWING

Twenty-six out of Thirty-three Get the Ontario Council.

The results of the Ontario medical council examinations announced at Toronto Saturday indicate that of the thirty-three Queen's graduates who wrote the examinations this year, twenty-six have received the certificates allowing them to practice in the province of Ontario. Those were all members of this year's class. There were two graduates of longer standing who wrote the examinations. The results of these council examinations as well as those of the Dominion Council show that at the local university the students are receiving as good instruction as at the other colleges. At Queen's the fewer numbers in the classes allows for the personal touch between student and professor which is of great benefit in the training of doctors. This is particularly so in the years of clinical work.

About 155 doctors of the province received the standing. This year's results are not quite as good as last year, which was a record, but is considered excellent. Following are the successful Queen's men: C. W. Atcheson, Kingston; A. C. Baiden, Kingston; F. H. C. Baugh, B.A., Kingston; W. J. Brough, Hamilton; F. W. Bush, Cardinal; W. Campbell, Cobden; A. S. Chance, Port. of Spain, Trinidad; W. R. Crowe, Orangeville; G. P. Fairburn, Brockville; H. P. Folger, B.A., Kingston; N. V. Freeman, B.A., Kingston; N. R. Houston, Carleton Place; K. Kiehl, B.A., Kingston; D. O'G. Lynch, Kingston; John Mackie, Kingston; N. J. Margerson, Bassetterre, St. Kitt's, B.W.I.; S. E. McDowell, Shawville, Que.; W. J. H. Pitkey, Wexford; A. D. Roberts, Toronto; K. B. Subbady, Kingston; W. J. Nicholson, Trenton; N. C. Sully, Wakefield; S. A. Wallace, Ottawa; T. N. Wallace, Lyndhurst; R. C. Wilson, Bolton; C. R. Young, Bath.

ORANGEMEN AT SYDENHAM

Parade to Church on Sunday—High School Appointments Are Made.

Sydenham, July 3.—The annual church parade of the Orange Lodge, L.O.L. No. 444, took place on Sunday afternoon to St. Paul's Anglican church. Rev. Thomas Leach, the rector, preached an appropriate sermon to the assembled members. A number of ladies, belonging to the Ladies' Lodge, attended the service in a body, and altogether about fifty took part in the march from the hall to the church. Some Orangemen were also present from Harrowsmith. Two appointments to the staff of the high school were made by the high school board last week. Miss Edith Truscott, Sydenham, and Miss Edith G. Sheridan, Brockville, have been engaged for the coming year. F. Sine as principal, G. A. Oatway, and Miss H. McLean have been re-engaged, making a staff of five for next year.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Montgomery, Port Arthur, are spending some time with the latter's sister, Mrs. Adam Davy.

F. W. Read left on Saturday on a holiday trip to Algonquin Park, as a member of the Hundred Thousand Club of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company.

At the meeting of the Women's Institute in the township hall on Friday evening, Miss E. Hopkins, Lindsay, of the department of agriculture, institutes branch, gave an address on the beautification of the person, the home and the community.

Allen Knapp went to Cobourg on Thursday last. The high school entrance examination concluded on Friday. Mrs. F. Sine and Miss E. Truscott were the presiding officers.

Miss Ida Harker left on Saturday for Madoc where she will attend the summer school session. Miss Marjorie Lytle, Kingston, spent a short time with Dr. and Mrs. M. Tovell.

Among the teachers home for the vacation are Miss Eva Guess, Misses Marion and Kathleen Clow and Miss Ivey Lake. Mr. and Mrs. Hanlon and son left last Wednesday for Kapuskasing, Ontario, where they will reside.

F. Sine is in Kingston for the summer as a lecturer on mineralogy and geology at Queen's summer school.

S. W. and Mrs. Alexander returned home on Thursday from a two weeks' holiday trip. During his absence Mr. Bush has been acting manager of the Union Bank. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Ross, New York, are here for a short time with relatives. The road work on Wheatley street is going along very well. The township crusher and tractor are being used, and considerable improvement is being made in the road.

LARGE AUDIENCES ARE DAILY ATTENDING

The Instrumental Quartette. On Monday, at the afternoon and evening entertainments, the Chautauqua lived up to its reputation of bringing only first-class entertainments within the reach of the people. The instrumental quartette, under the direction of Herbert Macfarren, delighted exceptionally appreciative audiences with charming programmes of classical music. The quartette consists of Herbert Macfarren, who is a talented graduate pianist of the Royal Academy of Music, London, England, and a former student under distinguished masters in Paris, France, Israel Turek, principal violin, Mandel Witpekie, second violin and viola, Ludwig Works, violoncello. Each of the members is an accomplished artist of outstanding ability, and yet the ensemble playing was perfect.

The masterpieces of the masters of music such as Schumann, Beethoven, Rubenstein, Handel, Liszt and even of the more modern composers such as Duovak and Fritz Kreisler were played with warmth and color. The programme involved technical skill of the highest degree and the quartette left nothing undone to give a finished presentation. In rippling cadences as in thundering melodies, they interpreted the works with such pleasing effect, such rhythm and such feeling that the difficult technique necessary was not made ostentatious.

In the evening the quartette supported Miss Hazel Huntington, the New York concert and opera singer, who is favorably known in the United States for her splendid singing last winter as the prima donna soprano in the English version of Mozart's Opera Comique, "The Impresario." Miss Huntington, who was introduced by Miss Jean Chown, whose contralto singing and artistic efforts gained for her such favorable comment in England last year and who is now widely known in Canada, possesses a sweet and rich soprano voice. With perfect command and rare artistry she enraptured the large audience with a varied programme of favorite and classical melodies such as "Comin' Through the Rye," "Killarney," "Oh, Had I Jubal's Lyre," "Somewhere a Voice is Calling." These and many other songs well known to music lovers present were appreciated more than the plentiful meed of applause could testify. They were like sparkling gems in a programme of rare musical worth.

The aria, "Ah, Forza but," from "La Traviata" was thrilling and singular for its perfection. Besides the delightful singing of Miss Huntington and some classics by the instrumental quartette, such as Handel's "Largo" and the melodious "Andante" movement from "String Quartette" by Tschalkowsky. Mr. Macfarren was a delight with his skillful interpretation of the difficult "Twelfth Rhapsodie" by Liszt, and of the ever-popular "Prelude" of Rachmaninoff. Ludwig Works also charmed his audience, as in the afternoon, with a cello solo, "Hungarian Fantasie" by Popper, deep and rich in appreciation and interpretation. As an encore he played "The Rosary" by Novins, with grace and feeling.

Israel Turek favored the audience with that sweetest of captivating melodies, "Meditation" from "Thais", in a style that could bear no improvement. It was a masterly rendition and no one was satisfied until he had played "The Dance of the Sylphs" by one of his teachers, Goldblatt. Mr. Turek possesses a violin of excellent tonic qualities and the full beauty of his selections is brought out on it.

The programme provided over the week-end, it will be generally agreed, has amply justified the local Rotary Club in bringing Chautauqua to Kingston for the first time. That the concerts are appreciated is demonstrated by the attendance and by the applause. Contrary to opinion that the low price of admission might have formed, the Chautauqua has no place for amateurs. All of the programmes and each of the artists assisting have been meritorious and during the rest of the week, without a doubt, the interest will continue to increase. If the coming concerts are as enchanting as those already heard it will be worth considerable inconvenience arising from distance from the city, the inclemency of the weather or other causes to go to the Chautauqua tent to attend them. They are a treat for lovers of the arts.

DELIGHTED CROWDS.

Prof. John Duxbury Spoke in Two Churches.

Prof. John Duxbury delighted hundreds of Kingstonians with his recitations over the week-end and on Sunday morning Chalmers Presbyterian church was crowded to the doors to hear his reading of the book of Job and in the evening hundreds were turned away from Sydenham street Methodist church when he gave his famous reading, "The Desire of All Nations."

Of his addresses in the two city churches on Sunday little need be written. Rev. R. J. Wilson characterized them as "wonderful," and he epitomized without extravagant language the opinion of all who heard him.

His readings from the revised and modernized version of the Book of Job in the morning and of the life of Jesus Christ in the evening were heard with rapt interest by the throngs who hung on every word. He gave to those to whom the Bible had been an unopened book a new and

"BERT" WINNETT CHOSEN

Elected Chief Executive of the Junior Chautauqua on Monday Morning.

Miss Ruth Hubbell is a young lady who rather bursts into prominence at the Chautauqua when it is nearing its conclusion. Perhaps it is because she comes from Smith's Falls where, it has been said, the staid residents run away from the railway trains lest they be observed. At any rate, few are ever seen on the station platform, and it may be that the opinion formed of the town and of the retiring disposition of its inhabitants arises from that fact.

The secret of the whole affair is, however, that Miss Hubbell is director of the Junior Chautauqua and on the last afternoon the children who have season tickets or who are using their parents' season tickets put on a show all of their own, which is said to be eminently worthwhile. The nature of it is not to be disclosed for the present but if the preliminary meeting on Monday morning is a criterion it is sure to be interesting.

It is well-known by this time that the Chautauqua is not a fly-by-night organization. It is not like a circus for it is not the purpose of Chautauqua to take all the money it can get out of town and leave behind only the remembrance of littered grounds. Chautauqua endeavors to leave the communities with memories of masterpieces of music, with the best in literature and of orations with a message.

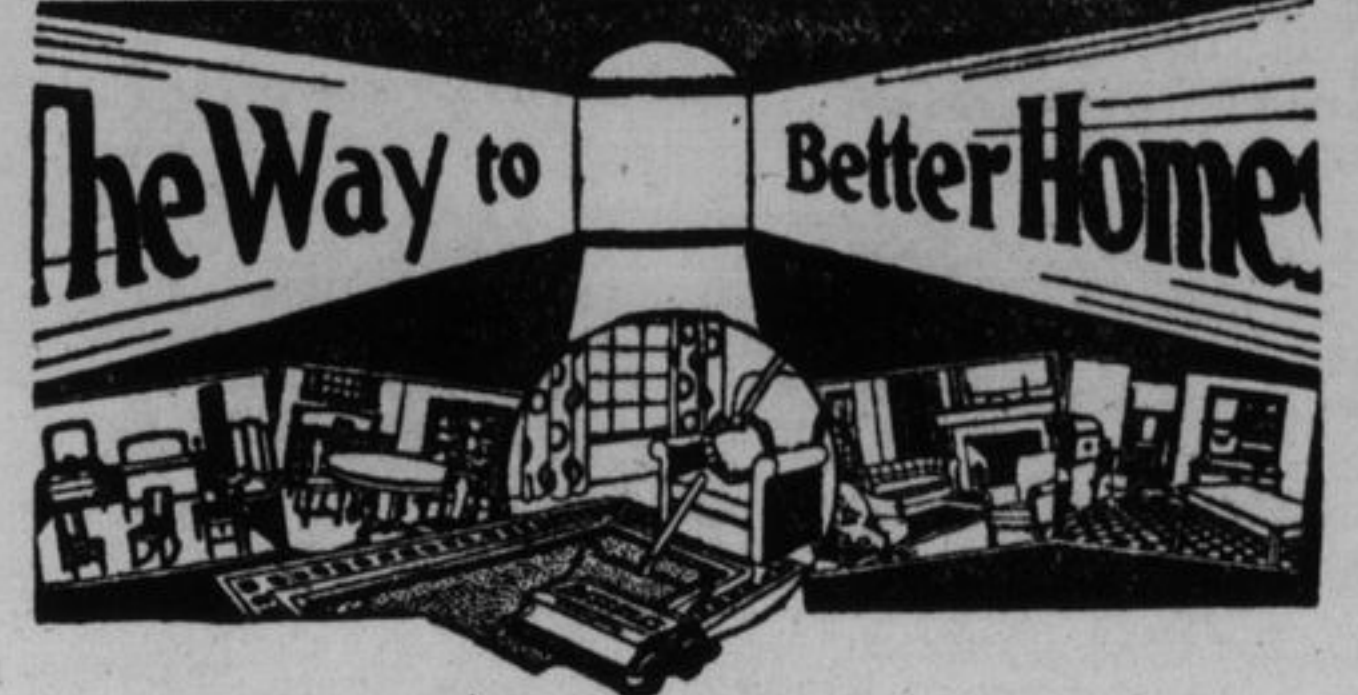

Miss Hubbell in a neat speech on the opening night remarked that she considered the children the most important part of the community. It probably is a fact. Because she believes it Miss Hubbell meets the children every morning at the tent school, although it is not a summer school, the entertainment that is afforded leaves fragrant thoughts and high ambitions in the minds of her audience.

At the same time the kiddies prepare for their performance on the last afternoon and that it is to be unique is shown by the fact that already they have formed their own city government, not with the idea of ousting Mayor Corbett and the worthy city council on the eve of the consummation of their plans for civic improvement, but with the purpose of carrying forward their projects with business decorum and despatch.

On Monday morning, "Bert" Winnett, aged twelve, and son of Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Winnett, was elected mayor of Junior Chautauqua, Miss Louise Wilder, town clerk, Miss Jean Dunlop, health commissioner, Stuart Wilder, chief of police, and "Jim" Davis, chief constable. "Bert" is an elusive youngster and could not be interviewed, but with executive authority and police vigilance behind him he probably has some plans up his sleeve for widening the scope of Chautauqua. We'll see by Friday afternoon anyway.

Little Mamie Whitty is visiting at her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Woods, Upper Charles street, Kingston.

Hugh Lawson, Watertown, N.Y., was a visitor in the city over the week-end. He was at one time a member of the Kingston police force,
