A Sculptor's Golf Model.
In the window of George Van Horne's store on Princess street there is shown a replica of the famous Golfing statuette by Petrucci, the Italian sculptor. The pose for this work of art was made by an English amateur champion of world-wide reputation, and the gentleman was wearing at the time an "English Golfer" suit tailored by the Semi-ready Company, of Montreal and Bradford. The "caddy" is the typical lad one sees at St. Andrew's or Scotch golf links. This replica was presented to the Semi-ready Company by Oscar Petrucci, and was sent by them to George Van Horne.
