GRIM WEST AFRICA

Country of "Heat and Horror" to White Man.

British West Coast Colonies Hold Immense Wealth and Secrets Which Defy Modern Science.

W. Alan Lethbridge, in his book, "West Africa," gives a clear and interesting account of the West Coast colonies as they are today, of their "heat and horror," of their immense wealth, and of their strange medical problems. Wounds in the white man will not heal there and no white child may be born. Nor has the secret of tropical fever been mastered, though Sierra Leone is no longer "the white man's grave."

He has some grim stories to tell—one, which is new, of the haunted castle at Elmira, where no one sleeps without a quail. It appears that a party of three men and one woman were playing bridge very keenly in the tropical night: "Of a sudden the lady put her hands to her eyes as though dazzled. Asked if anything were the matter she denied anything wrong and continued playing. Then again she clapped her hands to her eyes, gave an exclamation, and fainted dead away." What she had seen she could not or would not say, but the tradition is that a headless woman walks the castle.

Nor does Mr. Lethbridge reject the power of native magic. He vouches for one strange story: That at a point in the Niger delta in a hut near a store were a number of native workers, under medical supervision. Their headman said it was "no good place." "One morning a Kroo boy was reported dead; a post-mortem revealed no apparent cause of death. Next morning two men had departed this life and again post-mortems revealed nothing. On the third morning four men were dead and there was something like a panic."

All the men were at once removed and a fresh batch brought up to be placed in "the same sinister house." They, too, died in the same mysterious way, and it was decided to burn down the hut. "Then something fell to the ground and was seized by the headman who rushed up to the doctor shouting, 'He's plenty bad thing, sah! Fit to kill all men, sah!' He held at arm's length two human finger bones which had been tied together with a bit of native twine in the shape of a rough cross."

When this ju-ju was disposed of the deaths ceased. The Niger delta is a place for lonely white men to take walks in the gloaming, an instance is mentioned of one "youngster" who did so and "two days later his mutilated corpse was found waterlogged in the sinister mangrove swamp." Nor is it a place to be buried in; we are told that in digging graves the water is reached and the mourners have to stand upon the coffin to hold it down.

Bungalow "Ointment."
The "sweat" of gas tanks is the ointment of bungalows. A creosote oil which condenses on the inside walls of gas tanks and trickles down is found to make an excellent shingle stain oil. It penetrates rapidly and dries quickly, and is an excellent solvent for stains and preservative for the wood.

To the gas companies it is known as holder oil, once almost a nuisance. The color ranges from amber and ruby to ebony. By keeping it reasonably light and clear gas companies are able to sell it to jobbers and wholesalers for from 5 to 10 cents a gallon. The latter sell it to paint and building material dealers for from 30 to 50 cents a gallon. Goodness knows, says the New York World, for how much they sell it to the public.

When painters learn to buy this oil from the local gas company they will find the cost of materials for painting a shingle house only a small fraction of that for clapboard houses.

The Navy's Mistake.
A clergyman was a geologist and always carried his specimens about in a red handkerchief such as navies use to carry their dinners in. One day as he was going home with it full of specimens he saw a navy at the top of a well using violent language because the windlass refused to work. "My friend," said the parson, "do you know Satan?" "No," replied the man, "but I'll ask my mate, Bill," he cried, "do you know Satan?" "No!" came the answer from the bottom of the well. "Why?" "Well, here's a bloke up here wot's got 'is dinner."—London Tit-Bits.

If President-Elect Should Die.
If the successful candidate for President or vice-president should die before the second Monday in January after an election, the electors would be empowered, under the law, to vote according to their judgment. This contingency has never arisen. No President-elect has ever died. If a President-elect should die between the second Monday in January and inauguration day, the electoral college would not be reconvened, but the house of representatives would have to bear the responsibility.

Disastrous.
"I decided to economize by buying the cheaper cuts of meat instead of the choice ones."
"How did it work out?"
"The butcher got frightened and shut off my credit."—New York Sun.

THE ENGLISH GOLFER SUPPLANTS NORFOLK

Old-Time Favorite Returns in Vastly Different Form.

The old-time Norfolk coat, a favorite for amateur hunters, and with all outdoor men, has given place to the "English Golfer" and the "Dixie," two new models created by the Chief Designer of Semi-ready clothes. The Norfolk lacked the easy grace of its successors. And with these two has come "The Pro" another outdoor model for robust men who like distinctive and graceful garments.

Each of these three garments are shown now in the original models from the Chief Designer's studio by George Van Horne, this city. The suits are four-piece suits for business and play—a pair of golf knickers and a pair of trousers of the same material.

THREE CHICAGO GIRLS WALKING TO NEW YORK

They Stayed in Kingston on Thursday Night—Set Out For Montreal.

Three girls hiking their way from Chicago to New York, with the present objective as Montreal, were in the city over night and left early Friday morning for Gananoque. Dressed in knickerbockers, with twenty pound packs on their backs the girls whose names are Ruth Young, Marion and Kathleen Foster, and who are students at the University of Chicago, attracted attention on the streets. They are receiving a cordial reception on the way and got a lift from Belleville to Kingston. They were also lucky to get drives all along the way.

"This is the way to see the country," stated one of the girls to the Whig. And a revolver which one carried "movie fashion" explained the reason for the fearless manner of their trip through the country.

The community hall, which has been started at Sharbot Lake, will be pushed to a completion as soon as possible and several efforts to raise money are being launched this month. The committee are now working that they may qualify to receive the government grant for such purposes.

The conference will be held in Brookville on July 19th and 20th and from present indication 500 or more merchants from the fifteen counties in the territory covered from Ottawa will be present. WHAT IS A LETTER
Many Times It's a Guide to Health as is This One
Women—Read It

Marmion, Ontario.—"Before using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a total wreck. I had terrible pains in my sides and was not regular. Finally I got so weak I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest half-way up. I saw your medicine advertised in the newspapers and gave it a trial. I took four bottles of the Vegetable Compound and was restored to health. I am married, am the mother of two children and do all my housework, milk eight cows and do a hired man's work and enjoy the best of health. I also found the Vegetable Compound a great help for my weak back before my babies were born. I recommend it to all my friends."—Mrs. HENRY JAMES, Marmion, Ontario.

Letters which you read in the newspapers recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound are genuine expressions from women who have been helped by this splendid medicine. They are anxious for other women, who may be suffering as they did, to know of the great merit of this medicine. Each one, with her reputation, stands behind it, to point out to sick women the way to health. Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Tamworth Orangemen Walk.
Tamworth, July 12.—The place was deserted July 12th, the Orangemen going to Centreville for the "walk." There was a very large crowd there the procession being about one mile long. Lodges from all the eastern parts of Ontario were there. Tamworth defeated Selby in a game of baseball by a score of 12-5.

Mrs. Cuthbertson and children, Dexter, N.Y., are visiting her aunt, Mrs. Ethas McKim. Bashford Close has sold his farm to Mr. Bradshaw, Kobin.
