What the Press Agents Say About Coming Attractions

Good News For Movie Fans. An unusual comedy treat is in store for the patrons of the Allen Theatre commencing Monday...

Now, however, the theatrical director sees other possibilities in Tina, but these centre about a matrimonial venture. And here is where Mabel Normand give another exhibition of temperament. It would be unfair to those who will enjoy "Head Over Heels" to disclose the solution of the plot.

The second is another great favorite, Mary Miles Minter with her golden curls splayed back and nary a French frock, will win all hearts this week as the wistful Mennonite maid in Helen R. Martin's famous story, "Tillie." Alan Forrest is leading man.

Mrs. Walker Hoskins, whose home was at Latta, Thurlow township, passed away on Wednesday at the Belleville hospital after being ill for some time. Deceased was thirty-five years of age.

The slip between Swift's wharf and the locomotive works is a favorite spot for boy swimmers nearby, and even if the water is a bit "thick" at times, the youngsters enjoy themselves to the limit.

A barn at Emerald, the property of Robert Reed, was struck by lightning, the second time this season during the storm on Wednesday night. The blaze was put out with fire extinguishers.

J. A. Cooke, principal of Picton collegiate institute, will take his family toward the end of August and settle in his new home in time for opening of school after vacation. Mr. Cooke is a Cataract boy.

Thomas J. Kirby, sentenced at Belleville to two years and six months in the penitentiary on a charge of bigamy, was brought to Kingston on Friday by Sheriff Morrison and Jail Governor Ketcheson.

A great deal of interest has been shown in the work of the painters engaged, during the past few days, and it is quite obvious that the majority of citizens would hardly crave for a similar job.

Prof. J. C. Ballard, who for two years has been at Queen's as assistant professor of political and economic science, is leaving to accept an appointment at Texas Christian University, Fort Worth, Texas, in the department of business administration.

GIRL GUIDES IN CAMP.

They Are Having a Fine Time At Beau Rivage.

The Girl Guides are getting on splendidly at their camp at Beau Rivage. The storm visited Kingston Wednesday evening did not miss the camp but the guides weathered it in splendid style and much of the anxiety of the parents at home was unnecessary as the girls were all under shelter "carrying on."

Wednesday the guides were divided into patrols in which they will work, the patrols being named after the different trees. The leaders are appointed as follows: Florence Newman, Kathleen Healey, Matton Anglin, Edith Rees, and Pat Lyster. The Guides in the afternoon had a patrol competition in the form of a leaf hunt.

Thursday was a big day at the camp. After the regular morning routine, Mrs. Redcliffe gave a boat-sweeps talk. After dinner the Guides were divided according to the tests they have passed and signalling, legends of the flag and badge work were taken up. A nature study competition in which the girls gathered fruits followed and proved very interesting to all particularly to those who are camping for the first time. After the afternoon swim which was welcomed by all, the officers played a memory test game in which Miss E. Henstridge came out first.

The officers in training at the camp are Margaret Stafford, Rita Fenwarden, Edith Allard, Betty Murray, Mary Rowland and Jean Wilton.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

The steamer Concretia arrived here last night and cleared this morning for an inspection trip.

The steamer Kingston arrived this morning from Toronto and Rochester on the way to Prescott.

The steamer Winona arrived down this morning from Port Colborne with freight for Montreal.

The steamer Brockville arrived this morning from Bay of Quinte ports, and cleared with freight for Picton.

The steamer Dornoch is in the Collingwood Shipbuilding Company's drydock for minor repairs.

The yacht Summertime, from Clayton, N.Y., is in the Davis drydock for repairs, and it is expected that she will clear in a day or two.

The steamer Kayvive passed down today from Port Colborne to Mont-real.

The steamer Britannic cleared late Friday afternoon with a heavy cargo of freight and passengers for Montreal.

Traffic at this end of the Rideau canal is very dull just now, and the steamers Susie Chipman and Dard-anilla have been laid up for some days.

Experience is Good Teacher. Elzeur Rioux, back woodsman and policeman, giant in strength and stature, is going to have a try at Champion Jack Dempsey in Quebec City on Monday, according to Dr. Gadbol, Rioux's athletic mentor. It is understood that Dempsey will offer a certain sum to any man in the district during his tour who can stand up against him for four rounds, and Rioux will take advantage of this. Rioux is only a novice in boxing, but packs a tremendously heavy blow.

What It Is For. A retired naval officer said that he could not understand "all this disarmament nonsense." No sir! What would Britain be without her navy? Had we forgotten Trafalgar? Was it not our glory and our tradition to maintain the freedom of the seas?

It was pointed out to him that this was an attempt—wise or not—to remove the menace from the seas.

"Hang it all, sir!" roared the old sea warrior, bristling. "What's the confounded sea for?"

Knew at Last. An old Scotch minister who tried to indoctrinate his congregation with a belief in a fire and brimstone hell was preaching an appropriately heated sermon. His most cogent argument ran as follows: "And on the last day, when ye'll be surrounded by roaring flames in a sea of brimstone ye'll cry out to the Lord, 'Oh, Lor-rd, we did not know—we did not know!' And the infinitely merciful Lor-rd will say, 'Weel, ye ken the noot!'"

Certainly They Had. "Golf is a very old game, isn't it, papa?"

"Yes, my son."

"They played golf in the Ark, didn't they, papa?"

"What are you talking about?"

"Why, they had lynx in the Ark, didn't they, papa?"

WHAT THE HURRICANE DID AT SIMCOE, ONTARIO.

Tuesday night's storm wrecked the house and demolished the barn of George Day, near Creemore in Simcoe County. The above picture shows the wreck of the house. Mr. Day was in the room at the corner reading and Mrs. Day was running the sewing machine. They were both blown out through the demolished side wall and landed to the right of where the men are working in the picture.

Letters to the Editor

G. N. Gordon, M.P. re Birmingham Motors.

Peterborough, Ont., July 14.—(To the Editor): In the British Whig and Kingston Standard of the 13th instant, was an attack, prepared in Peterborough, and taken to Kingston by Byron Lederer, the promoter of Birmingham Motors, because I dared to tell some of the public in Kingston the facts regarding Birmingham Motors and Mr. Lederer.

If any person desires to know H. Buott, who has been the cat's paw of Mr. Lederer in signing this letter, enquiry at Peterborough will satisfy those who are curious, as to his standing in this community.

In the letter attacking me on the 13th instant, the statement is absolutely untrue that I was the solicitor and advisor for the city of Peterborough, when the city entered into a contract to build the Hunter street bridge.

The statement of Mr. Buott is also absolutely untrue, that I was a member of the city council, or that I was city solicitor when the city entered into obligations to build the Hunter street bridge.

After a contract had been entered into by the city of Peterborough, I became a member of the council, but I had nothing to do whatever, either with the contract or as city solicitor. When it was found that the sum was insufficient to construct the bridge, I did urge the voting of further sums, in order to have the work completed. That, I think, was businesslike and proper, under the circumstances.

When the Red Arrow Tires, Ltd., was incorporated, my firm acted as solicitors for the company, and the Peterborough men who were directors of this company, are men of the highest standing and of splendid integrity.

When the work of my firm was completed with the incorporation of the company, that was as far as our duties went, except some small solicitor's work, which was requested a couple of times afterwards.

Any person who desires to know my record can come to the city of Peterborough, and they will find it as wholesome and decent as that of the man who prepared that letter for another man to sign. The trouble is, that the man who wrote the letter is the one who has little scruple in trying to injure others in this city.

The real question is, whether the Birmingham Motors Ltd., is something the careful business man desires to invest his money in. In view of the fact that Byron Lederer, a foreign promoter, receives $1,499.95.00 in paid up stock, and $15,000.00 in cash for his patent rights of specifications for Birmingham Motors; and the lease of the premises, upon which $2,000.00 rent is in default, and a seizure has been made of all the assets in sight, in the factory.

These bitter sore-heads, whose peculiar make-up makes it necessary for them to loose their spleen through the press, will be found in every city, and Peterborough is not free of them, as indicated by the fact that H. Buott signs his name to a letter which falsely makes statements about me, and which he knew were false at the time he made them.

Yours truly, G. N. GORDON.

Had a Choice Trip. Mr. and Mrs. E. Armistage, Miss Mae Armistage and Messrs. Norman and Arthur Armistage, Deseronto, motored to Harrowanith, north to Godfrey, Sharbot Lake and by way of Arden and Tamworth home. It was a very enjoyable trip through picturesque country of hills and valleys and lakes. About 125 miles was made in one day.

After That He Evaded Traps. "Why have I never married?" the confirmed bachelor repeated a leading question. "Well, once upon a time in a crowd I trod on a lady's gown. She turned, furiously, beginning, 'You clumsy brute!' Then she smiled sweetly, and said: 'Oh, I beg your pardon, I thought you were my husband. No, it really doesn't matter in the least.' And when I came to think it over I decided that I'd better let marriage alone."

Merely an Armistice. Nurse—You must forgive your little brother before you go to bed. You might die in the night. Bobby (reluctantly)—Well, I'll forgive him tonight, but if I don't die he'd better look out in the morning.

Three Minute Journeys

Where Men Do The Family Washing and Mending.

An explorer in Congoland—for he who ventures into this wild place must be an explorer, not merely a traveler—will find the most unusual customs.

A stranger going through the country is at liberty to stop at any hut and spend the night or remain as long as he feels inclined. This is expected, and no conversation is even required to negotiate the arrangements.

But if the stranger is tired, he is "out of luck," because hospitality in Congoland is expressed in a strange fashion. To give their guests a real welcome the host and hostess gather all of their neighbors and friends around their home and plan for the evening's entertainment.

They are bent on giving their guest what they consider a good time. They dance for him, and are so anxious to give him a pleasant visit that they keep the dance up all night. He is expected to appreciate it, and, naturally, should not show any signs of fatigue.

After a perfectly sleepless night he is surprised to find that his host-ess is out in the fields, bright and early, with her cigar in her mouth—because in Congoland only the women smoke, the men prefer to take snuff. They consider smoking effeminate.

The women not only do all the heavy work in the fields, but sell the produce as well. They are really "the men of the house." They are the "bread winners," while the men take over the domestic duties.

It is no strange sight to see the man of the house engaged in doing the family washing, and then hanging the clothes out to dry on the branches of the trees around the home.

After he has his "Monday's work" out of the way he takes his sewing basket and sits down in the shade.

Admiral Sims, discussing the war decorations controversy that still crops up at times, said at a dinner: "There's a good deal of truth in the story about the chap who held down a dangerous post at the Hotel Crillon in Paris all through the war, with occasional sallies by Hmoustine to Tours and London and the Riviera in the season."

"Father, this chap's kid said to him the other day, 'what did you do in the World War?'" "Oh, don't ask such ridiculous questions, Willie," said the veteran. "Just keep on cleaning my medals and be quiet."

Rich Uncle—You might just as well stop mooning about Miss Bute. She hasn't been in love with you. She's been after the money she thought you would inherit from me. Nephew—Impossible! Why do you think so? Rich Uncle—I have proposed to her myself and been accepted.—New Haven Register.
