Seen on Broadway*

Gilda Gray, New York's most daring dancer, who introduced South Sea syncopation to Broadway. At the famous Rendezvous Supper Club smart society gathers after midnight to admire Gilda's sylvatic sinuities and listen to the tropical tones of "Ty-Tee," first fox trot of the South Seas.

American Singer Named As World's Perfect Baritone

"The perfect baritone"—that's the latest superlative to be applied to Reinald Werrenrath, concert idol. "Handsomest baritone," "most popular" and even "most sartorially exquisite" are titles his admirers have given to him in the past. But when it came to the temerity of awarding the golden apple for singing, even some of them came to a halt.

It remained for Dorothy Donnelly, author of "Blossom Time,"

New York's favorite musical play, built on the life and music of Franz Schubert, to take the courageous step. She wanted a singer to put the great baritone song of the play, "Tell Me Daisy," on the records for the first time, and she naturally longed for the perfect baritone.

"I found him," she declared happily announcing her selection, "and best of all he is not a foreign singer but a one hundred per cent American—Reinald Werrenrath, perfect baritone."

Summer Hints.
Just before serving cream of celery soup pour it on to a well-beaten egg, stirring constantly.
An unthreaded sewing machine can be used instead of a tracing wheel to mark paper patterns.
To get the true flavor of raspberries sprinkle with sifted sugar and stand in sun for an hour, covered with light muslin to keep flies away.
Shrimp and cucumber make an excellent combination for a summer salad. Run the shrimps through the food chopper and garnish with water-cress.
When putting up lunches or picnic meals, use the small receptacles which have no cover of their own by pouring melted paraffin over top after filling.
Before paring apples for cooking pour scalding water over them and allow them to stand for several minutes. The peeling will come off as thin as paper.

A deliciously cool drink for a hot summer day is made by pouring one pint of hot tea over cracked ice and adding one pint bottle ginger ale. Serve with sugared lemon slices.
If you are having an ice or fruit punch as part of the menu of a formal dinner be sure to serve it between the meat and game courses. If game is not served omit the ice.
When making a salad never touch the lettuce or anything used in salad with steel or silver. If you cannot prepare certain things with your fingers use an ivory paper knife.
To remove finger marks—sweet oil will remove finger marks from varnished furniture and kerosene from oiled furniture.
Lamb fat makes excellent shortening for ginger snaps.

RED AND BLACK ELEVEN
MAY BE SEEN THIS FALL

Watertown Fans Hope to Revive Interest in Football.

Watertown, N.Y., will return to the professional football field for the fall season, it plans of certain leading rosters materialize. The good old days of 1903 and 1904 when Watertown's Red and Black eleven was touted the state over and known as possible champions of America, may be revived. To bring about a squad of professionals it is said that efforts will shortly be put forth to raise a fund aggregating in the neighborhood of $5,000 to guarantee the expenses of so extensive an undertaking.

Watertown Lodge of Elks directed the gridiron destinies last fall and went into the hole financially as a result. Despite this reverse it is known that a number of members of the lodge favor a second trial at the sport, believing that with assurance of financial backing the undertaking can not only be made to pay but to yield considerable amount of amusement to devotees of the sport.

Last year's eleven was admittedly a strong one. This season's is to be made even stronger. The cream of the 1921 line is to be retained, where possible, and it is said that Shag Sheard, captain and quarterback, Bodie and Ned Kenneth and Stanley Ward, Kelly and Nevins are among those sought for the squad. Bodie Weldon is looked upon as the best bet for coach.

MAN'S OLDEST PROBLEM.

Lack in Ancient Rome They Had Trouble Finding Homes.

The housing problem which Canada in common with other parts of the world has felt so much since the war is not a new thing of this century. It seems to be as old as the history of human habitation. In Phoenicia and the ancient Orient the price of building lots must have been high. Still worse were matters in ancient Rome. Especially in the time of the emperors people flocked there from all parts of the vast empire, and as there were no transportation facilities there could be no very great extension of the zone of house building. As a consequence, there was congestion, rents were constantly raised, and there was much agitation of the people.

In the year 47 B.C. the pretor, Marcus Caelius Rufus, enacted a law that released tenants of a year's rent. It is not known what success this had. But the privilege was renewed by Caesar and later by Emperor Augustus, with the restriction that the rent edict should refer only to habitations the rental of which, in Rome, did not exceed 2,000 aesteres, and in smaller towns not 500. Juvenal complains that for the rent one had to pay in Rome for a wretched dwelling one could obtain a magnificent villa with a garden in the provinces. They could not think of an extension of the Forum, for the simple reason that the surrounding houses would have to be appropriated, which in view of prices of real estate would have meant an enormous expenditure.

As old as the housing problem itself is also the effort to meet it by preventing the arbitrary raising of rents by the landlords. Thus the early popes proceeded most radically in combatting such extortions. Julius II. and Paul III. became known for such action. Under Pope Alexander III. a decree was issued requiring the reduction of the rent of a habitation. A decree of the year 124 forbade all proprietors of houses and stores in Rome, no matter how the lease read, under any pretext to drive the tenant into the street, least of all for non-payment of rent.

Education for Musical Pupils.

The successful musicians who have been asked to give their opinion regarding the necessity for education have been very insistent upon one point, that is, that a general education will add a musician to be a better musician. There is always going to be a difference of opinion regarding how much time a child should be compelled to devote to academic training. Personally, says the head of one of New York's musical schools, who desires to remain unnamed, we have always insisted that the present educational standards are not helpful to the student who desires to make music a profession; he is handicapped by ancient traditions which were originated and maintained by people who had no music in their own training, or even in their educational imagination. Mathematics, science and dead languages constitute their idea of what an education means. Strictures have been placed upon the students to the point of driving them away from education rather than toward it. Technic in music means the proper use of the hand and the voice, thoroughly co-ordinated with the mind. Constant practice on the piano, violin, or any other instrument will produce a technical efficiency which can easily be matched by modern, mechanical science, but scientific reproduction cannot supply the intellect so essential to the real interpretation of art in its truest form. Personality is the leading force in music, and personality can only be developed through proper association, whether it be with people, or with greater knowledge.

Dark Blue Linen Makes This Dainty Daytime Frock.

The linen frock is always cool and smart, and the well-assembled wardrobe should contain not only one, but several. There are interesting bright hues for wear in the country and for sports, while the smart, dark tones are stunning for street wear.

Take the dark blue linen shown above. There is something particularly catchy and attractive about the swing of its jaunty, knife-pleated skirt and the inset, strips of purple and red-violet linen.

The purple Milan hat poses a bunch of violets at one side, red violets flanked with purple, which
