London Exchange Stocks Hold Up Under Crisis

London, Aug. 8 .- Every influence militated against a good showing by the stocks on the London exchange during the last week, and considering all possibilities, it is a wonder that prices did not suffer more. With the Greek crisis, France's ultimatum to Germany; the Balfour note bringing the sore point of the inter-allied debts forcibly to the attention of uneasy debtor nations, the markets have been decidedly scary. Added to all this was the collapse of the mark which infused the entire foreign exchange with unstability.
