operations. While there may be some breaking up of congested conditions, yet it may be difficult to make progress, and there may be some sudden visitation bringing a radical and perhaps not entirely happy change. This should be avoided and travel deferred. Those in the employment of others should be careful not to give offence to superiors. Other affairs show more auspicious planetary government.

Those whose birthday it is are not promised an altogether satisfactory year in which important changes or journeys may wisely be deferred. Those in the employment of others are warned against offending those above them in authority. A child born on this day will be talented, and although proud and independent will be popular and affectionate. It is promised good recognition.

That this is the last week of real summer, of the happy life in camps and cottages on the lake and river for school begins on Tuesday next, and the little people, who are generally in the majority, will have to come home on Labor Day.

That one wonders why girls who can wear cool muslin frocks, can be foolish enough to wear hot, unbecomingly knickerbockers.

That a subscriber says "no one wants to pay a big price for coal."

That the beacon fires burning on the shores every evening which would have filled the early settlers with alarm, are no warning of danger, but a sign that a jolly party of campers are holding a corn roast.

That the Kingston market was a fine sight on Saturday, great piles of green corn, big baskets of red tomatoes and quantities of lovely flowers being for sale.

Efficient Housekeeping
By Laura A. Kirkman

Household Helps from Reader Friends.
R.A.C.: "Not long ago one of your readers asked for directions for trimming for the top of knitted bedroom slippers, and you asked any reader who had such directions, to send them to you for publication. Here are mine:
Trimming for Knitted Bedroom Slippers: Two steel needles, number 12 or 10, are required. Put one five stitches. First row: Knit plain. Second row: Put needle in first stitch as if to knit, but wind yarn around the left index finger and between the two needles three times; the fourth time the yarn is used to knit off the stitch. The second stitch is plain, and the third and fifth are the same as the first. Third row: Knit plain, knitting the loops off as one stitch. Fourth row: Same as second row, except that you only make loops in two stitches, knitting one, three, and five plain. Fifth row: plain. Alternate rows (from first row to fifth row) until the piece of wool trimming is long enough to go around the top of the slipper. Then sew its two ends together and sew it on the slipper. When finished, this band of trimming looks like plain knitting on the under side, but has loops three-fourths of an inch long all over the upper side of it."

Milk in Its Safest Form

CARNATION Milk is just pure, rich, cows' milk with part of the water evaporated—sealed in air-tight containers—and sterilized.
It is doubly safe and completely safeguarded. In the can it stays sweet indefinitely. You can keep a month's supply ahead. Your children can have this nourishing milk to drink whenever they need it.
You simply dilute Carnation Milk with an equal part of water. It is ready for every ordinary milk use. Its rich quality adds richness to cocoa, bread-and-milk, puddings, soups, etc.
Or you can use it as cream direct from the can. Carnation is the only milk supply your home needs. Try this convenient milk supply one week and you will never go back to ordinary milk. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer.
Write for the new Carnation Cook Book. It is free and it contains over 100 valuable recipes. Try this recipe.

CARNATION BREAD PUDDING.
3 tablespoonfuls sugar, 2 2/3 cups water, 1 1/3 cups Carnation Milk, 2 cups stale bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 1/4 teaspoonful salt, 1 tablespoonful butter, 1/4 teaspoonful vanilla. Scald milk diluted with the water, pour over bread crumbs, add sugar and salt. Let cool, then add slightly beaten eggs and flavoring. Pour into a buttered pudding pan and bake in a slow oven. This recipe serves six people.

one of your readers asked how to do over her furniture. My relatives run a store where they do over furniture, and this is how they do it: Buy a good paint-remover and apply this. Then apply a good oil stain (this can be bought in any color—cherry, light and dark mahogany and oak colors). Directions for using this stain, come on the can. Finish by applying a wax or shellac in orange, which gives a velvety finish."
Mrs. E.: "I want to tell other women about my experience with simple dyeing. Last summer I bought a lavender orange dress, and when it became soiled I sent it to a professional cleaning establishment (not in this vicinity). It came back almost white, and very limp—and the bill was $3.50. So I came to the conclusion that dry-cleaning was not the right method to employ for an orange dress. I then experimented on it myself. I first wet the dress, wrung it out, then I dissolved a package of lavender cold-water dye (I know you cannot print trade names, but the drug-stores are full of such dyes, nowadays, so everybody will guess what kind I mean). I followed directions on the box, and into this dye-bath I put a little raw starch. I dipped the dress in this, wrung it out, rolled it in a large Turkish towel and let it lie for a half-hour, then gave it a careful pressing. And it was lovely! Now I am going to use the same method with an ecru silk sweater which has begun to lose its color through several washings—this time, buying an ecru-color cold-water dye."
Mrs. A. F.: "This is how I wash my blankets: I use one-half a bar of white soap (or else soap-flakes) melted in a pail of hot water in which a tablespoon of borax has also been dissolved. Soak the blanket in this, then drain off the soiled water. Do not wring the blanket, but squeeze it. Repeat this soaking twice more, with the same amount of water and borax but omitting the soap, then hang on line dripping wet."
