HE USES WATER AND OIL TO HEAT HIS RESIDENCE

Henry Wood Has Had Great Success With His Perfected System—Oil Burners Will Also Operate Hot Water Furnaces.

If wood is dear and coal is scarce, why not use water to heat the house? Separate the hydrogen and oxygen, both inflammable gases which in combination form water, mix a little oil and a roaring fire, costing at the most about a cent and a half an hour is available.

This is the principle upon which Henry Wood, Jeweller and inventor of the Wood Air Tight Valve and other contrivances, has been working and during the latter half of last winter he did not use an ounce of coal or a splinter of wood in heating an apartment house on King street where he lives.

Mr. Wood has been dabbling in inventions for the past half century. He has applied for patents on his latest invention, although it is not strictly a new process having been used in various ways for a number of years. However, in his perfected system the burners are heated by the oil for a few minutes and then, drop by drop, the water and oil are fed on the hot surface. A temperature of nine hundred degrees disintegrates the water and by a secret process the separate elements of hydrogen and oxygen are burned giving a tremendous heat.

There is no dirt, dust, smoke or grime and apparently no danger of explosion of the hydrogen, which is highly combustible. The system works splendidly and at small cost, fifteen hours' heat being available from a gallon of oil costing about nine cents.

Straight oil burning attachments have been made in a number of local houses, and J. F. McEwen, King street, is perfecting a system of using coal oil. He has attached three burners in his furnace and expressed the opinion on Friday that he would be able to heat his two-story house during the greater part of the winter with one burner. Recently on testing the apparatus the radiators were so warm that he could not hold his hand on them.

DANGEROUS CROSSINGS STILL AT COLLIN'S BAY

True Solution Is Construction of Diversion Proposed by Highway Department.

When full action be taken to remedy conditions at the eastern Collin's Bay crossing over the Grand Trunk Railway?

For years this matter has been under discussion, as it is the general opinion that this is one of the most dangerous railway crossings to be found in eastern Ontario, and this summer many people who have had occasion to drive over the crossing, have again been asking if any action is to be taken.

About five years ago, the Ontario department of public highways, had a survey made for the purpose of estimating the cost of the construction of a causeway across the foot of Collin's Bay, on the south side of the Grand Trunk, and at that time it is understood that there was a proposition to deviate the Bath Road east of the easterly railway crossing, build a causeway across the foot of Collin's Bay south of the Grand Trunk Railway, and join with the Bath Road again immediately to the west of the westerly crossing, thereby eliminating both crossings.

The construction of the diversion as proposed, would eliminate both the crossings, and it is understood that under the law as it stands today, the board of railway commissioners could contribute twenty-five per cent. of the cost. The provincial and municipal authorities could take the matter up.

BOARD LIKELY TO BE SAME AS LAST YEAR

It Is Said That There Will Be Ample Accommodation For All.

With the opening of the college season only a few weeks distant the boarding house problem will soon become an important one both for the students who will be flocking in looking for accommodation and to the boarding house mistresses who are anxious to rent their rooms.

The indications are that while there will be plenty of places to house the students, the prices will likely remain about the same as last year. It is probable that if there is a fuel shortage and coal is expensive the prices may be raised. Last year prices ranged from about $2.50 to $4 for a single room and about $4 to $6 for a double room. These prices are considered low as compared with some other places. Local students who studied at Toronto last winter state that they were asked on an average $5 a week for a single room.

But while the prices here will likely remain firm students at Syracuse are this winter going to pay about half the amount of last year. This year the price of single furnished rooms in Syracuse is stated to be $2.50 to $5, with double rooms renting for $5 to $8. In that city the students are on a rent strike refusing to pay any more than $4 a week for a single room, and they are having considerable success in their campaign.

Although the exact rooming accommodation of the section of the city which houses the students is hard to estimate, the boarding house list published by the university gives an indication. Although this year's list has not yet been published, last year's included the names of 235 rooming houses accommodating approximately 700 roomers. This number will not likely vary this year but is a minimum estimate as many houses are able to get their number without placing their names with the university authorities.

The boarding prices will also remain at the peak. Last winter the college cafeteria provided weekly tickets for $5.50, but this was hot-atom price, the regular boarding prices being somewhat higher. The prices have remained about the same all summer.

ORGANIZED LABOR IN KINGSTON FORTY YEARS

Kingston Labor Men to Celebrate Labor Day at Picnic at the Fair Grounds.

Monday is Labor Day, and in common with the labor men all over Canada and the United States, the labor men of Kingston will celebrate the day in a most fitting manner. For some years it has been the custom of the local labor men to hold a picnic, but this year the picnic will not be held, but a picnic at the fair grounds will be the chief attraction, and, providing the weather is fine, and those in charge of the picnic say that they have arranged for this, the event promises to be a most enjoyable one. It is expected that a big crowd will attend the picnic and enjoy the programme of sports to be provided.

It is interesting to note that organized labor has been in existence in Kingston for forty years. The honor of being the oldest union in the city goes to the engineers, with the masons the second on the list and then the printers. The printers union has been in existence for thirty-seven years, being organized on March 5th, 1885.

The Kingston Trades and Labor Council was organized about thirty years ago, and during all these years the council has been a strong force in the ranks of labor in this city. The membership is large, taking in the various branches of labor. Ald. William Driscoll is one of its oldest members.

THE SIX YEAR COURSE HAS PROVEN GOOD

And There Has Been No Scarcity of Students Applying.

The institution of the six-year medical course at Queen's does not seem to be diminishing the number of students seeking entrance to the medical profession through the local university's course of instruction.

Since the course was lengthened one year the number of students was limited and in the last two sessions there was no difficulty found in securing the required number. The indications so far this year are that the number will easily be secured for with several weeks yet to receive applications a good majority of the number required have been accepted. The number entering is considered to be even better than in the days of the four and five-year courses.

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY OF BATTLE OF ARRAS

When Canadian Corps Broke Hindenberg Line—Great Victory.

Four years ago, Saturday, the Canadian Corps broke through the Drocourt-Queant switch east of Arras, thus breaking the Hindenburg system of which it formed a part. The attack followed the earlier fighting of the battle of Arras, which opened on August 26th and in which the second and third divisions participated. These divisions had lost heavily in fighting their way to the foot of the switch and the brunt of the attack in the final operation fell to the 1st division under Maj.-Gen. Sir A. C. Macdonell, and the 4th division under Maj.-Gen. Sir David Watson.

Following a dark and stormy night, "zero" hour came at 5 o'clock and infantry pushing forward, captured the first objective on schedule, aided by the artillery, made good by dogged fighting. The divisions encountered considerable resistance but determined efforts held their gains.

In speaking of the victory, Sir Arthur Currie, the corps commander, states that "the enemy had concentrated eight fresh divisions opposite the Canadian corps but the unparalleled striking power of our battalions and the individual bravery of our men had smashed all resistance. Five thousand unwounded prisoners were captured and we identified every unit of the eight divisions engaged."

This great victory started the demoralization of the enemy's fighting strength, the Canadians by breaking through, carrying the operations forward into the ground that had been in the hands of the Germans since 1914. The moral effect of the bitter and relentless fighting, which led to the capture of Cambrai, was tremendous. The Germans had at last learned and understood that they were beaten.

A recent moralist has affirmed that the human heart is like a jug. No mortal can look into its recesses, and you can only judge of its purity by what comes out of it.
